REDS AGREE TO ALLIED PROPOSAL

Allies May Ask U. N. Act On Laos Invasion

Appeal Under Consideration, Dulles Reveals

Advised Not To Shut Door On Possible Use Of U. S. Planes, Ships

WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP)—Sen. Knowland (R-Calif) today advised Secretary of State John Foster Dulles "not to foreclose the possibility of using our air and naval power" if it should prove necessary to stop Communist aggression in Southeast Asia.

The Californian offered this advice as Dulles appeared before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in support of the administration's proposed $5,800,000,000 foreign aid bill.

Dulles said the United States has started talks with several Allies on a possible appeal to the United Nations for action to deal with the Communist-led invasion of the Indochinese state of Laos.

No Plans To Send Yanks

He said flatly, however, that this country had no plans to send American troops to fight the Communists in Southeast Asia.

Much of the questioning was taken up with the invasion of Laos by Communist forces. Senator after senator expressed concern that loss of Southeast Asia to communism would be a staggering blow to this country and its free world allies.

Knowland, long interested in Far Eastern affairs, pushed this view vigorously.

He told newsmen later he believes the U. S. and its allies must draw a line some time and say to the Communists that to cross it means war.

U. S. "Can't Sit Back"

The American people, he said, "realize we can't sit back and do nothing while one country after another falls to the Communists."

Dulles had told the House Foreign Affairs Committee earlier and reiterated in the afternoon to the Senate group that the U. S. was discussing with the French and the Southeast Asia countries the possibility of taking the matter to the United Nations.

France and Thailand are being consulted along with invaded Laos and the other two associated Indochina states—Vietnam and Cambodia—Dulles told the House Foreign Affairs Committee. The development followed disclosure that the United States has virtually assured Thailand of emergency aid in arms and supplies to help meet the threat to that Southeast Asian neighbor of Laos.

Aggression, Dulles Says

The attack on Laos, Dulles testified, "does not even pretend to be a revolutionary effort but is straight military aggression" which "very vitally affects us." It poses the threat of an attack on Thailand, he said, which in turn would raise grave doubts about the security of the rest of free Asia, including Japan.

A subcommittee of the House Foreign Affairs Committee today branded the Red drive in Laos "an alarming extension of international aggression" and recommended that the matter be placed before the U. N.

Atom Explosion Scheduled Today

LAS VEGAS, Nev., May 6 (AP)—A large scale atomic explosion, eighth of the spring series, will test 2,000 Army ground troops and a big Air Force continent after dawn tomorrow, weather permitting.

It was indicated the Air Force, continuing its crew indoctrination program, may send a record number of planes over Yucca Flat after the blast. A dozen B36 bombers flew over the atomic cloud on March 24.

That a big blast is planned was seen in the Army's announcement that no troops would be closer than 9,800 yards (nearly six miles) to Ground Zero, compared to 2,500 yards, the closest observers have been thus far.

Continue Sparring

SEOUL, Thursday, May 6 (AP)—Allied and Communist armies sparred through another day of sit-down war Wednesday as negotiators at Panmunjom debated the issues blocking an armistice.

High up in North Korea, the big supply area of Kanggye, 20 miles south of the Manchurian border, still smouldered from an early morning Thunderjet raid that destroyed at least 17 buildings.

500 Saved After Ship Collision Off England

Four Feared Dead; Vessel's Bow Sliced Off

HARWICH, England, May 6 (AP)—Fast-working crewmen on two American freighters rescued around 500 passengers and crewmen of a British ferry steamship whose bow was sliced off in a pre-dawn North Sea collision today.

An Englishwoman, trapped below for hours, died after being pulled out, and there may have been three other deaths.

ARRAIGNED — Mrs. Carol MacDonald, 29, leaves Bergen County Court in Hackensack, N. J., after entering mandatory plea of not guilty to the carbon monoxide murder of her four young children. Police say the mother tried too late to save the victims in her Mahwah, N. J., garage after she had changed her mind about killing herself.

Many of the rescued were Americans. They were traveling aboard the 4,190-ton steamer Duke of York, operated by the government-owned British Railways on a 106-mile ferry run between The Hook of Holland and Harwich.

One rescue vessel, the 7,607-ton U. S. government freighter Haiti Victory, had collided with the ferry in the misty dark.

British Ship Loses Bow

The Duke of York lost all her bow forward of the superstructure housing in the crash; the Haiti Victory, riding higher in the water, escaped with a slash in her bow.

The English woman penned in for hours below decks in the after portion of the steamer died soon after she was freed. Unofficial reports said another body was sighted in the sunken bow, and two other passengers were still unaccounted for late tonight.

Five survivors were injured. No Americans were known to be among the casualties.

All others aboard the ferry steamer, including dozens of American servicemen and their wives bound from Germany for leave in England, were picked up in the dramatic sea rescue.

Those listed aboard the steamer were 437 passengers and 72 crewmen.

Skeleton Crew Aboard

The Duke of York's skipper and a skeleton crew of 15 remained aboard the steamer's floating remnant as it was being towed toward Harwich by two tugs.

The collision occurred about 4:45 a.m. in a morning mist about 40 miles off Harwich.

Survivors told of a desperate scramble for safety, devoid of panic. They said the only thing approaching confusion was a rush for the lifeboat stations and shouts of "What happened?"

Two young U. S. Army privates, James Bragg, 22, Binghamton, N. Y., said they were sleeping on the steamer and were awakened by the first shakeup of the collision. They went back to sleep without realizing what had happened and were reawakened later.

McKay Opposes Changing Tariff Legislation Now

WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP)—Secretary of the Interior McKay predicted today that a proposed foreign trade study commission would "recommend major revision in our tariff legislation."

But until the commission can make its study and recommendations, he told the House Ways and Means Committee, the present Reciprocal Trade Act due to expire June 12 should be extended for one year without major change.

He said he wouldn't dare suggest now what changes the commission might find to be needed.

McKay joined other Cabinet members in opposing a bill by Rep. Simpson (R-Pa) which would extend the act but insert a series of provisions designed to increase protection of American industries.

The Simpson bill singles out oil, lead and zinc for special mention. McKay said the proposed curb on oil imports could impair national security and "have very serious effects upon our economy."

Secretary of Agriculture Benson also asked for a year's extension of the present act, saying it has "proved its advantages." Farm exports in the last five years, he said, have averaged 3½ billion dollars each year.

But he noted that large quantities of U. S. exports have been financed by government loans or gifts and said this must be replaced with "some means of making the trade sheet balance. Imports to match our exports is the practical answer."

Quotas to limit imports of foreign agricultural goods may be needed because of this government's policy of supporting prices of domestic farm products, Benson said, but this should be done under the Agricultural Adjustment Act.

Lightning Kills Train Brakeman

BALTIMORE, May 6 (AP)—Spring storms brought death and injury in Baltimore and damage in Anne Arundel County tonight.

In Baltimore a railroad brakeman was killed and his partner badly burned when they were hit by lightning while atop a freight car. The men were struck in the Western Maryland Railway yards at Port Covington.

At about the same time, a violent hailstorm hit the Round Bay section of Anne Arundel County, knocking out lights, stalling traffic and battering spring gardens.

The brakeman killed was Jack A. Evans, 37. His companion, Carroll McBee, 27, was admitted to South Baltimore General Hospital with burns and shock.

The hailstorm which hit Anne Arundel lasted almost an hour. A fireman said the storm's path was about a mile and a half wide and extended from Severna Park to Jones Station south of Round Bay.

Senate Passes Bill To End Mixup Over Divorce Laws

WASHINGTON, May 6 (INS)—The Senate passed and sent to the House today a bill which would free millions of American men and women from the stigma of bigamy.

The legislation—the "full faith and credit" bill introduced by Sen. McCarran (D) Nev.—would require all states to recognize divorce decrees granted in the courts of other states.

The Nevadan pointed out that his act would do away with the situation in which a person divorced in one state is held to be still legally married in another and thus, in the view of that jurisdiction, becomes a bigamist if he remarries.

A Senate Judiciary Committee report estimated that several million Americans have found themselves in such embarrassing circumstances.

The report noted: "The refusal of the various states to abide by the rulings of each other's courts leaves perhaps as many as four million people facing, in the words of Mr. Justice Black, 'criminal prosecution and harrassment.' "

The divorce-law mixup, resulting from the varying residence requirements and the widely differing grounds for dissolution of marriage has frequently been a matter of controversy before the Supreme Court, and has brought conflicting decisions from the high tribunal.

U. S. 'Boxcars' Give Indochina Morale Boost

Vietminh Pullback Indicated As Patrols Meet No Opposition

HANOI, Indochina, May 6 (AP)—Six U. S. Flying Boxcars—the first of possibly two or three dozen under stepped-up American aid—flew into Hanoi today, loaded troops and war cargoes, and immediately took off to reinforce French and Laotian forces against Vietminh invaders of Laos.

They roared away for Luang Prabang, 275 miles southwest of Hanoi, and the broad Plaine des Jarres, giving a tremendous morale boost to French and Laotian defenders hopeful the Communist-led Vietminh can be brought to battle at these fortified positions and defeated.

Red Withdrawal Indicated

American crews flew the giant C119s, here from Japan via the Philippines. They are capable of carrying 64 parachute troopers or a whopping cargo of weapons and ammunition.

French and Laotian patrols probed in a wide arc around Luang Prabang, the residence town of Laotian King Sisavang Vong, without making any contact with Vietminh forces believed encamped in surrounding hills and mountains.

This was the second day patrols had failed to encounter enemy opposition. There was speculation that Vietminh leaders are pulling out some units and withdrawing northward.

Thailand Bolsters Border

The French disclosed today that Gen. Hoang Minh Tao, trained in war by Communist Chinese, is directing the Vietminh's southern division operations which have sent advance elements from the heart of Laos towards the Thailand border.

Reports received here said the Thai government is reinforcing a long string of police posts along its northern border and increasing Mekong River patrols to meet the Vietminh invasion threat posed by Hoang Minh Tao's feints in neighboring Laos.

At the same time the French Command worked at top speed to build up defenses at Vientiane, the official Laotian capital across the Mekong from Thailand, and 140 miles southeast of Luang Prabang.

Freed American Civilians Reach Moscow Monday

WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP)—Russia has advised the United States that seven American civilians released from detention in Korea will arrive in Moscow Monday.

The State Department, announcing this late today, said it was trying to arrange for an American plane to fly them to the United States.

The seven Americans were seized at the outbreak of hostilities in Korea nearly three years ago. They include five Methodist missionaries and a Catholic Maryknoll priest.

The Russian Foreign Office notified the American embassy in Moscow of their impending arrival. It said they would reach the Russian capital at 11:20 a.m., Moscow time, Monday.

The United States appealed to Russia several weeks ago to use its influence with North Korean authorities to obtain the release of the Americans. The embassy asked for Russian aid in freeing 13 Americans.

In reply, the North Koreans said they would free seven but that three others had died and the remaining three never had been heard from.

Uruguay Senate Head Fights Pistol Duel

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, May 6 (AP)—Alfredo Brum, president of the Uruguayan senate, and Ulisses Pereira Reverbel fought a pistol duel today.

They fought at the airstrip of the military aviation school located in the town of Tango, 20 miles from Montevideo. Neither was wounded.

The duel was the outgrowth of a fistfight between the two last week at the Carrasco Airport.

Yanks Forced To March Under Red Banner

Faces were grim when these captured American soldiers were marched through the streets of Seoul, Korea, in July, 1950, under a banner which proclaimed the Red cause as righteous and attacked U. S. "intervention." This picture, obtained by Life Magazine, was "taken under circumstances so strange and perilous that its source cannot be revealed even yet," the magazine said.

McCarthy Offers Acheson Chance To Defend Books

WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP)—Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) today offered his old enemy, former Secretary of State Dean Acheson, a chance to explain why 30,000 to 40,000 books by authors alleged to be Communist or pro - Communist were bought for U. S. information libraries overseas.

McCarthy also directed a former FBI undercover worker in the Communist ranks to give his Senate investigations subcommittee a list of all Communists he knew to be employed in any news medium—press, radio, movies or television—between 1947 and 1951.

This order went to Harvey Matusow, who appeared before the committee today at a televised hearing. McCarthy told newsmen he has asked ex-Communist Louis Budenz, a frequent witness before congressional investigators, to perpare a similar list. The Wisconsin senator didn't say what he proposes to do with the lists.

Appearance Up To Acheson

As for Acheson, McCarthy laughingly declined to say whether the Truman administration cabinet member might be called as a witness in the subcommittee's investigation of alleged Red subversion in the government's overseas library program. But he told reporters:

"You would normally think that Acheson might want to come in and explain why the taxpayers' money was spent for such books. If he asks to appear before this committee he will be given that right."

There were these othr dvelopments as the committee heard the last of th alleged Communist or pro-Communist writers it intends to call in the current phase of its inquiry:

Writers Balk At Red Query

1. Writers Millen Brand, Dr. Philip S. Foner and Dr. Herbert Aptheker, together with painter William Gropper, declined to say whether they are Communist party members. The works of all four have been stocked by U. S. libraries overseas.

2. Aptheker, in his testimony, blasted Matusow as a "dastardly" informer. Then, in a prepared statement McCarthy wouldn't let him read, the New Yorker denounced committee members as "cultural illiterates" and "McCarthyism" as a "front for war-mongering big business."

3. McCarthy announced that in a few days he'll invite fellow legislators and newsmen to a showing of several movies made under the sponsorship either of the State Department or the United Nations.

Slayer Gets 10 Years For Manslaughter

HAGERSTOWN, Md., May 6 (AP)—A jury today cleared Robert L. Benner of murder but convicted him of manslaughter and he was sentenced to ten years in prison for the slaying of Thomas Brashears, 69-year-old boarder at the Benner home in nearby Sharpsburg.

19 Reported Dead In Chilean Quake

SANTIAGO, Chile, May 6 (AP)—A severe earthquake rocked most of Chile today, and unofficial reports said at least 19 persons were killed in the Southern part of the country. The reported casualties were tabulated by newspapers.

The quake struck at 1:23 p.m. (12:23 p.m. EST). The known dead were listed tonight as five in Chillan, two in Concepcion, three at Parral, two at Linares, two at Cauquenes, and five at Anglo. These same towns were devastated in a quake in 1939, when about 50,000 lives were lost.

'Misled' POWs Granted Leave

PHOENIXVILLE, Pa., May 6 (AP)—Sixteen of the 25 repatriated prisoners of war now at Valley Forge Military Hospital will go on 30-day leave within the next three days—including 14 of a group flown back from Tokyo last week under a Pentagon-imposed veil of secrecy.

The 14 were included in a band of 20 brought to Valley Forge Hospital last Friday. The Pentagon announced while they were en route home details on the flight were being withheld "because of the position taken by the Army and others these men may have been misled under conditions of duress and hardship during the period of their captivity."

Ten of the 20 took part in press interviews at the hospital on Sunday—and denied bitterly they had been influenced by Communist propaganda while prisoner of the Reds in Korea. Four of the 20 refused to be interviewed and a hospital spokesman said their refusal stemmed from their "extreme bitterness" over the situation. The rest were either too ill to talk or wanted to be with their families at the time of the interviews.

Newspaperman Dies

WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP)—William J. Wheatley, 62, member of the Washington Star staff for 32 years, died last night at Mt. Alto Hospital after several months illness.

Songwriter Who Sings Startles Hearing On Reds

NEW YORK, May 6 (AP)—A songwriter burst into song from the witness stand today and startled a House Unamerican Activities Committee hearing on communism.

The witness, Jay Gorney, refused to tell the committee whether he ever was a Red. However, he broke unbidden into a full voiced rendition of a tune he once composed on the subject of the First Amendment.

Committee Counsel Frank Tavenner, taken aback, told the caroling Gorney:

"I thought you said you're not an actor."

Vilde Halts Assertion

"I am not an actor, Mr. Tavenner," Gorney agreed, "but since you have allowed other singers before this committee, trained pigeons I call them . . . ."

He got no further as the committee chairman, Rep. Velde (R-Ill) halted the assertion and also ordered Gorney to confine himself to prose.

Gorney wrote the plaintive song, "Brother, Can You Spare a Dime." It became sort of a national theme song of the depression of the 1930s. He also claimed to have discovered Shirley Temple as a child star for the movies.

His appearance provided an unusual highlight in the third day of committee hearings on whether Communists have infiltrated the fields of education and entertainment.

Reds Reported In Fleet

Another witness, Robert Gladnick, an organizer for the AFL International Ladies Garment Workers Union, gave the committee a chilling description of Communist infiltration into America's armed forces in years past. He said he is a former Red.

He spoke of Communists aboard the nation's fleet, and of others who bored into navy yards and dock unions.

Gorney's refusal to say whether he ever was a Red was echoed by another witness, deep-voiced, articulate movie actor Lionel Stander, now appearing in a Broadway play.

38 More GIs Freed By Reds Return To Their Home Soil

TRAVIS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif., May 6 (INS)—Travis Air Force Base was turned into one gigantic family reunion today as 38 American GIs liberated from Communist prison camps were returned to their home soil.

The giant C-97 Stratocruiser touched down at Travis Field northeast of San Francisco at 2:12 p. m. EDT. It was the next to last flight of the freedom airlift.

Families of eight of the 38 men, one family group consisting of 12 persons, were waiting at the ramp as the men arrived from their overseas flight from Honolulu, the last stage of their transpacific journey.

The first man down from the plane was Sgt. Donald A. Rose, a Marine from Redlands, Calif., who had cabled his family in advance to "roll out the barrel. I'm back in circulation." Six members of his family were at the field.

The greeting was the most exuberant to date, mainly because of the large number of relatives present. There were so many that Travis public information officer, Maj. Tom Barbour, called a pre-landing conference to make arrangements for the reunions.

The men, who had left Tokyo as the fourth and fifth flights of freedom airlift, were grouped together for the flight rom Honolulu. The 38 include 33 men well enough to walk and five litter patients.

Approve Plan To Keep Balky POWs In Korea

Talks Recess After Communists Offer 8-Point Formula

PANMUNJOM, Thursday, May 7 (AP) — The Communists agreed today to leave in Korea those prisoners of war who do not want to go home after an armistice is signed. That was an unshakable Allied demand which has tied up the revived truce talks for days.

The Reds submitted an eight-point proposal, that called for a five-national neutral commission to supervise prisoners refusing repatriation.

They nominated Poland, Czechoslovakia, Switzerland, Sweden and India.

Lt. Gen. William K. Harrison, Jr., chief Allied negotiator, said after the 26-minute meeting:

"This is an important proposal and any comment made on it now would be premature."

At Allied request, the talks were adjourned until 11 a. m., tomorrow (9 p. m. EST, Thursday).

Abandon Demand For Moment

Harrison said the Reds had reserved the right to renew their April 26 proposal that the 48,000 Chinese and North Koreans in Allied hands who refuse repatriation should be transported to a neutral caretaker nation.

But they abandoned that demand, for the moment, at least.

"The Communists admitted that the POWs shall not be physically removed from Korea," Harrison said when he emerged from the conference hut.

The Red proposal called for the return to their homelands within two months after an armistice of all prisoners who want to go home.

The others would be placed in custody of the neutral commission in Korea.

Four of the nations suggested as custodians already have been agreed upon by both sides as the neutral supervisory commission to observe how armistice conditions are carried out.

India has not been approached.

Commission Proposed

Point three of the Red proposal was to hand over to the neutral repatriation commission all prisoners of war of both sides who are not repatriated.

These prisoners would be released from all military control.

The neutral nations would have custody over them until their future had been decided.

The commission would have the authority to exercise its legitimate functions and responsibilities for the control of the prisoners under its temporary jurisdiction.

Point four was that the commission would allow the homelands of such prisoners to send personnel to the original places of detention to talk with the prisoners.

This would be done within four months after the commission took over.

In Baltimore a railroad brakeman was killed and his partner badly burned when they were hit by lightning while atop a freight car. The men were struck in the Western Maryland Railway yards at Port Covington.

At about the same time, a violent hailstorm hit the Round Bay section of Anne Arundel County, knocking out lights, stalling traffic and battering spring gardens.

The brakeman killed was Jack A. Evans, 37. His companion, Carroll McBee, 27, was admitted to South Baltimore General Hospital with burns and shock.

The hailstorm which hit Anne Arundel lasted almost an hour. A fireman said the storm's path was about a mile and a half wide and extended from Severna Park to Jones Station south of Round Bay.

Atom Explosion Scheduled Today

LAS VEGAS, Nev., May 6 (AP)—A large scale atomic explosion, eighth of the spring series, will test 2,000 Army ground troops and a big Air Force continent after dawn tomorrow, weather permitting.

It was indicated the Air Force, continuing its crew indoctrination program, may send a record number of planes over Yucca Flat after the blast. A dozen B36 bombers flew over the atomic cloud on March 24.

That a big blast is planned was seen in the Army's announcement that no troops would be closer than 9,800 yards (nearly six miles) to Ground Zero, compared to 2,500 yards, the closest observers have been thus far.

Continue Sparring

SEOUL, Thursday, May 6 (AP)—Allied and Communist armies sparred through another day of sit-down war Wednesday as negotiators at Panmunjom debated the issues blocking an armistice.

High up in North Korea, the big supply area of Kanggye, 20 miles south of the Manchurian border, still smouldered from an early morning Thunderjet raid that destroyed at least 17 buildings.

Senate Passes Bill To End Mixup Over Divorce Laws

WASHINGTON, May 6 (INS)—The Senate passed and sent to the House today a bill which would free millions of American men and women from the stigma of bigamy.

The legislation—the "full faith and credit" bill introduced by Sen. McCarran (D) Nev.—would require all states to recognize divorce decrees granted in the courts of other states.

The Nevadan pointed out that his act would do away with the situation in which a person divorced in one state is held to be still legally married in another and thus, in the view of that jurisdiction, becomes a bigamist if he remarries.

A Senate Judiciary Committee report estimated that several million Americans have found themselves in such embarrassing circumstances.

The report noted: "The refusal of the various states to abide by the rulings of each other's courts leaves perhaps as many as four million people facing, in the words of Mr. Justice Black, 'criminal prosecution and harrassment.' "

The divorce-law mixup, resulting from the varying residence requirements and the widely differing grounds for dissolution of marriage has frequently been a matter of controversy before the Supreme Court, and has brought conflicting decisions from the high tribunal.

U. S. 'Boxcars' Give Indochina Morale Boost

Vietminh Pullback Indicated As Patrols Meet No Opposition

HANOI, Indochina, May 6 (AP)—Six U. S. Flying Boxcars—the first of possibly two or three dozen under stepped-up American aid—flew into Hanoi today, loaded troops and war cargoes, and immediately took off to reinforce French and Laotian forces against Vietminh invaders of Laos.

They roared away for Luang Prabang, 275 miles southwest of Hanoi, and the broad Plaine des Jarres, giving a tremendous morale boost to French and Laotian defenders hopeful the Communist-led Vietminh can be brought to battle at these fortified positions and defeated.

Red Withdrawal Indicated

American crews flew the giant C119s, here from Japan via the Philippines. They are capable of carrying 64 parachute troopers or a whopping cargo of weapons and ammunition.

French and Laotian patrols probed in a wide arc around Luang Prabang, the residence town of Laotian King Sisavang Vong, without making any contact with Vietminh forces believed encamped in surrounding hills and mountains.

This was the second day patrols had failed to encounter enemy opposition. There was speculation that Vietminh leaders are pulling out some units and withdrawing northward.

Thailand Bolsters Border

The French disclosed today that Gen. Hoang Minh Tao, trained in war by Communist Chinese, is directing the Vietminh's southern division operations which have sent advance elements from the heart of Laos towards the Thailand border.

Reports received here said the Thai government is reinforcing a long string of police posts along its northern border and increasing Mekong River patrols to meet the Vietminh invasion threat posed by Hoang Minh Tao's feints in neighboring Laos.

At the same time the French Command worked at top speed to build up defenses at Vientiane, the official Laotian capital across the Mekong from Thailand, and 140 miles southeast of Luang Prabang.

Freed American Civilians Reach Moscow Monday

WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP)—Russia has advised the United States that seven American civilians released from detention in Korea will arrive in Moscow Monday.

The State Department, announcing this late today, said it was trying to arrange for an American plane to fly them to the United States.

The seven Americans were seized at the outbreak of hostilities in Korea nearly three years ago. They include five Methodist missionaries and a Catholic Maryknoll priest.

The Russian Foreign Office notified the American embassy in Moscow of their impending arrival. It said they would reach the Russian capital at 11:20 a.m., Moscow time, Monday.

The United States appealed to Russia several weeks ago to use its influence with North Korean authorities to obtain the release of the Americans. The embassy asked for Russian aid in freeing 13 Americans.

In reply, the North Koreans said they would free seven but that three others had died and the remaining three never had been heard from.

Uruguay Senate Head Fights Pistol Duel

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, May 6 (AP)—Alfredo Brum, president of the Uruguayan senate, and Ulisses Pereira Reverbel fought a pistol duel today.

They fought at the airstrip of the military aviation school located in the town of Tango, 20 miles from Montevideo. Neither was wounded.

Yanks Forced To March Under Red Banner

Faces were grim when these captured American soldiers were marched through the streets of Seoul, Korea, in July, 1950, under a banner which proclaimed the Red cause as righteous and attacked U. S. "intervention." This picture, obtained by Life Magazine, was "taken under circumstances so strange and perilous that its source cannot be revealed even yet," the magazine said.

McCarthy Offers Acheson Chance To Defend Books

WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP)—Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) today offered his old enemy, former Secretary of State Dean Acheson, a chance to explain why 30,000 to 40,000 books by authors alleged to be Communist or pro-Communist were bought for U. S. information libraries overseas.

McCarthy also directed a former FBI undercover worker in the Communist ranks to give his Senate investigations subcommittee a list of all Communists he knew to be employed in any news medium—press, radio, movies or television—between 1947 and 1951.

This order went to Harvey Matusow, who appeared before the committee today at a televised hearing. McCarthy told newsmen he has asked ex-Communist Louis Budenz, a frequent witness before congressional investigators, to perpare a similar list. The Wisconsin senator didn't say what he proposes to do with the lists.

Appearance Up To Acheson

As for Acheson, McCarthy laughingly declined to say whether the Truman administration cabinet member might be called as a witness in the subcommittee's investigation of alleged Red subversion in the government's overseas library program. But he told reporters:

"You would normally think that Acheson might want to come in and explain why the taxpayers' money was spent for such books. If he asks to appear before this committee he will be given that right."

There were these othr dvelopments as the committee heard the last of th alleged Communist or pro-Communist writers it intends to call in the current phase of its inquiry:

Writers Balk At Red Query

1. Writers Millen Brand, Dr. Philip S. Foner and Dr. Herbert Aptheker, together with painter William Gropper, declined to say whether they are Communist party members. The works of all four have been stocked by U. S. libraries overseas.

2. Aptheker, in his testimony, blasted Matusow as a "dastardly" informer. Then, in a prepared statement McCarthy wouldn't let him read, the New Yorker denounced committee members as "cultural illiterates" and "McCarthyism" as a "front for war-mongering big business."

3. McCarthy announced that in a few days he'll invite fellow legislators and newsmen to a showing of several movies made under the sponsorship either of the State Department or the United Nations.

Slayer Gets 10 Years For Manslaughter

HAGERSTOWN, Md., May 6 (AP) — A jury today cleared Robert L. Benner of murder but convicted him of manslaughter and he was sentenced to ten years in prison for the slaying of Thomas Brashears, 69-year-old boarder at the Benner home in nearby Sharpsburg.

19 Reported Dead In Chilean Quake

SANTIAGO, Chile, May 6 (AP)—A severe earthquake rocked most of Chile today, and unofficial reports said at least 19 persons were killed in the Southern part of the country. The reported casualties were tabulated by newspapers.

The quake struck at 1:23 p.m. (12:23 p.m. EST). The known dead were listed tonight as five in Chillan, two in Concepcion, three at Parral, two at Linares, two at Cauquenes, and five at Anglo. These same towns were devastated in a quake in 1939, when about 50,000 lives were lost.

'Misled' POWs Granted Leave

PHOENIXVILLE, Pa., May 6 (AP) — Sixteen of the 25 repatriated prisoners of war now at Valley Forge Military Hospital will go on 30-day leave within the next three days—including 14 of a group flown back from Tokyo last week under a Pentagon-imposed veil of secrecy.

The 14 were included in a band of 20 brought to Valley Forge Hospital last Friday. The Pentagon announced while they were en route home details on the flight were being withheld "because of the position taken by the Army and others these men may have been misled under conditions of duress and hardship during the period of their captivity."

Ten of the 20 took part in press interviews at the hospital on Sunday—and denied bitterly they had been influenced by Communist propaganda while prisoner of the Reds in Korea. Four of the 20 refused to be interviewed and a hospital spokesman said their refusal stemmed from their "extreme bitterness" over the situation. The rest were either too ill to talk or wanted to be with their families at the time of the interviews.

Newspaperman Dies

WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP)—William J. Wheatley, 62, member of the Washington Star staff for 32 years, died last night at Mt. Alto Hospital after several months illness.

Songwriter Who Sings Startles Hearing On Reds

NEW YORK, May 6 (AP)—A songwriter burst into song from the witness stand today and startled a House Unamerican Activities Committee hearing on communism.

The witness, Jay Gorney, refused to tell the committee whether he ever was a Red. However, he broke unbidden into a full voiced rendition of a tune he once composed on the subject of the First Amendment.

Committee Counsel Frank Tavenner, taken aback, told the caroling Gorney:

"I thought you said you're not an actor."

Vilde Halts Assertion

"I am not an actor, Mr. Tavenner," Gorney agreed, "but since you have allowed other singers before this committee, trained pigeons I call them . . . ."

He got no further as the committee chairman, Rep. Velde (R-Ill) halted the assertion and also ordered Gorney to confine himself to prose.

Gorney wrote the plaintive song, "Brother, Can You Spare a Dime." It became sort of a national theme song of the depression of the 1930s. He also claimed to have discovered Shirley Temple as a child star for the movies.

His appearance provided an unusual highlight in the third day of committee hearings on whether Communists have infiltrated the fields of education and entertainment.

Reds Reported In Fleet

Another witness, Robert Gladnick, an organizer for the AFL International Ladies Garment Workers Union, gave the committee a chilling description of Communist infiltration into America's armed forces in years past. He said he is a former Red.

He spoke of Communists aboard the nation's fleet, and of others who bored into navy yards and dock unions.

Gorney's refusal to say whether he ever was a Red was echoed by another witness, deep-voiced, articulate movie actor Lionel Stander, now appearing in a Broadway play.

38 More GIs Freed By Reds Return To Their Home Soil

TRAVIS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif., May 6 (INS)—Travis Air Force Base was turned into one gigantic family reunion today as 38 American GIs liberated from Communist prison camps were returned to their home soil.

The giant C-97 Stratocruiser touched down at Travis Field northeast of San Francisco at 2:12 p. m. EDT. It was the next to last flight of the freedom airlift.

Families of eight of the 38 men, one family group consisting of 12 persons, were waiting at the ramp as the men arrived from their overseas flight from Honolulu, the last stage of their transpacific journey.

The first man down from the plane was Sgt. Donald A. Rose, a Marine from Redlands, Calif., who had cabled his family in advance to "roll out the barrel. I'm back in circulation." Six members of his family were at the field.

The greeting was the most exuberant to date, mainly because of the large number of relatives present. There were so many that Travis public information officer, Maj. Tom Barbour, called a prelanding conference to make arrangements for the reunions.

The men, who had left Tokyo as the fourth and fifth flights of freedom airlift, were grouped together for the flight rom Honolulu. The 38 include 33 men well enough to walk and five litter patients.

No Ike News Conference

WASHINGTON, May 6 (INS)—The White House announced today that President Eisenhower will not hold a news conference this week.

Along The Potomac

by Rep. DeWitt S. Hyde

Marylanders in the House and Senate had the opportunity last week to give short talks at the congressional dinner given by the United States Chamber of Commerce during its annual convention in Washington.

Talking to such a large group of business executives, I could not resist giving my views on certain fundamental issues affecting the economic welfare of our country.

To begin with, I believe the Eisenhower administration and a majority of congressmen are pledged to redirect our steps toward preservation of free enterprise. Many controls and restrictions are being removed from private enterprise, and more will be lifted from the burden businessmen have had to carry these last two decades.

Government's true role as an umpire, rather than a manager of the team, is regaining recognition. Responsibility to lead in making economic decisions is being tossed back into the hands of businessmen. They must make and enforce their own rules to keep our economy in high gear.

Our Constitution and basic laws won't permit the government itself to lapse into socialism or communism, but this could happen if we as free individuals fail to make intelligent and unselfish decisions.

Our economy can roll smoothly and prosperously without the aid of government crutches, but this means hard work, enlightened foresight and keen awareness of responsibility by our free businessmen.

If the Eisenhower administration fails in its restoration of faith in businessmen, I think two things are certain: First, the next administration will go further "left" than any we've had before. Second, blame for the failure will fall directly on the free, private businessmen who are now being given their chance.

THE WEEK'S WORK

I am preparing a bill to make the Bureau of Standards, now in the Department of Commerce, an independent agency. I will introduce it soon . . . I'm looking into the possibility of reopening Flat Rock bridge at Barton, Allegany County . . . I've asked the Post Office Department to see if Takoma Park residents can have mail delivered out of their own post office instead of neighboring ones as they now do.

Saturday I'll review the Safety Patrol parade and speak Sunday at the Elk's Mother's Day observance in Hagerstown . . . Monday I will speak at the Olney Citizens Association meeting, and Tuesday I'll attend the Maryland Farm Bureau dinner.

During medieval times the Dutch practiced a system called "dike or depart." Under this method, any man unable to mend his section of the dike must release his farm to one who could.

Peron Without Evita

When Eva Peron died less than 10 months ago, it was predicted in some quarters that her passing could prove a political as well as a personal tragedy for her husband, president and dictator of Argentina. Recent developments in Buenos Aires and elsewhere in the nation today show Juan D. Peron considerably less secure than when he lost his consort.

Peron has lost some of Evita's strong hold on the "decamisados"—or shirtless ones—despite his pledge to spend three half-days each week at her old Labor Ministry office to continue her social work. By July 1952 the cost of living in Argentina had soared 185 per cent over a four-year period, according to a UN International Labor Office report. Less than a month ago—after the General Confederation of Labor "held a knife to my guts"—Peron posted ceiling prices on food and other essential commodities.

Last fall Peron purged another great source of his strength, the army. And on April 9, Peron's former right-hand man, former Governor Mercante of Buenos Aires province, was suspended by the Peronista party. The news came on the same day that the suicide of Eva Peron's brother was reported. The brother, often charged with having been a leading blackmarket operator, had resigned three days earlier as Peron's private secretary, on the eve of an investigation into corruption in high government circles.

Peron could now give up the pretenses to constitutionality of his government and admit he is dictator. On April 15 he declared, "If in order to finish with the evils within and without, to finish with dishonesty, it becomes necessary for me to go down in history as a tyrant, I shall do so with much pleasure. Until now I have employed persuasion; in future I shall employ repression." The bomb explosions on April 15, allegedly instigated by Peron himself, are cited as further evidence of his weakness.

Peron's "persuasion" has taken the form of widespread arrests. Many of the victims have been merchants accused of price-gouging; others have been "rumor-mongers." Argentina's broadly drawn security law provides punishment for circulating rumors causing public alarm—including the gathering or transmitting of statistics, even those not held secret by the government.

To alleviate the meat shortage in Buenos Aires, Peron threatened to send troops to "raid the cattle ranges." The Radical party candidate who ran against Peron for president in the November 1951 election was arrested on May 1. On the same day additional bombs exploded, without reported injury.

The "evils without" feared by Peron appear to include Uncle Sam again. The government-controlled Argentine press had hailed the inauguration of President Eisenhower in January. But in his May Day speech Peron frequently denounced the United States, though failing to mention this country by name. He castigated the Christian Science Monitor by name, and he asked the Argentine Congress for a swift and complete investigation of the three great U. S. news services, the Associated Press, the International News Service, and the United Press.

Worrying The Reds

Psychological warfare is a vague term, comprising roughly the area between propaganda and shooting warfare. General Clark's offer of $50,000 reward for each enemy jet plane delivered in reasonably good flying condition is an example of it.

The offer is made in handbills printed in Russian and dropped where they will do the most good. It promises asylum to pilots who comply, an extra $50,000 for the first plane delivered, and anonymity for pilots who wish it.

If the offer accomplishes no more than forcing the Reds to tighten their security measures, it will be worth while. That would sow suspicion among enemy pilots and might result in restrictions on their activities. And it could have other advantages.

It is believed that Russian pilots have been operating in Korea, although concrete proof is lacking. This conjecture is buttressed by the fact that the Reds have been extremely careful to operate only over their own territory, as if they feared exposure if their planes were shot down over Allied territory. If a Russian pilot surrenders a plane, this will be proof of what is suspected.

Rather than have the U. S. obtain this proof, the enemy might quit stalling and agree to a cease-fire in Korea. This sort of psychological pressure might be more effective, and certainly would be less costly, than applying military pressure with the same aim.

The method is worth applying in the diplomatic field as well. It would not be feasible to offer a flat sum to Russia's satellites to follow Yugoslavia's example and become independent of Moscow. But this country has nothing to lose by giving other Communist governments incentives to desert the Kremlin.

If such a course accomplished nothing else, it would have the effect of keeping the enemy off balance. And that is one of the main aims of psychological warfare.

Grandmother Routine

Figures don't lie. Neither do clear, sharp pictures. Seven New Jersey boys have found out all about this to their misery.

The other day the Yankees played the Boston Red Sox at Yankee Stadium. On the same day seven seniors at Perth Amboy high school were absent. This wasn't too out of the ordinary, for The Bug is still making the rounds, despite antibiotics.

But next day, when the seven presented illness excuses, the principal haled the group into his office and presented the sports page of one of the New York newspapers. A two-column photo, taken with a telephoto lens, showed with painful clarity a frustrated Boston outfielder pulling up while a home run ball settled into the lower right field stands.

Centered in the picture were seven youths—count 'em — with faces raised, mouths open, clearly recognizable.

Many a baseball fan can remember the days—before the telephoto lens — when the mortality on grandmothers was terrific. Most of the time the young fry got away with it, or else their urge to try the spring sun from the bleachers was overlooked by the boss.

But no more. There are too many machine-made eyes — including the worst prober of all, the TV camera—always on the lookout to trap the unwary. Certainly the seven lads from New Jersey didn't expect to get their pictures in the paper when they went to a ball game in Gotham.

Attacks On Warts

Warts are mysterious lesions and our knowledge of these blemishes is composed of a mixture of science and superstition. We have reason to believe they are caused by a filtrable virus that enters areas of the skin that have been damaged through pressure, scratches, bumps, or bruises. The ugly looking mess that follows results from the peculiar way in which the skin acts toward the intruder. Superstition entered the picture through the folklore that warts resulted from touching a frog or toad.

The common wart is seen on the hands and fingers and, occasionally, on the scalp. It is recognized as a pea sized growth with a horny top protruding from the surface approximately ¼ inch. These warts obtain their tattletale gray color in much the same way as do the neighbor's sheets—from ingrained dirt. The growths may be single or multiple and now and then coalesce to form large, unsightly plaques. The common wart is partial to children but other varieties have age preferences all their own.

The plantar wart is made of the same basic material as the common type except that pressure on the sole changes its appearance. The ball of the foot and the heel are favored and instead of projecting outward, the wart presses into the toughened skin of the sole and is surrounded by callus. There is exquisite tenderness on walking and more pain is produced than by a nail or pebble in the shoe. A related type, the mosaic wart, also selects the sole but unlike the plantar wart usually is not over a pressure point. The lesion often extends under the toes and behind the heels and paring discloses individual cores that impart the mosaic pattern for which the condition is named. The ordinary plantar wart oozes when the layers are removed and after the blood is wiped away, the under surface is studded with brownish-black dots grouped together in a bundle.

The filiform, or thread-like wart looks like a tiny flap of normal colored skin. It is found more frequently on the eyelids, nostrils, and neck of older women. The digitate wart is slightly larger and protrudes from the surface like a miniature finger. It is grayish in shade and is seen most often in the bearded areas in men.

It is in treatment that science vies more strongly with superstition. Suggestion is ancient as a lay remedy but rarely was considered useful by the medical profession until approximately 25 years ago when the Swiss physician, Bruno Bloch, startled the medical profession by reporting cures by suggestion alone in 78 per cent of 179 cases. Such results have been substantiated but the rationale is puzzling and never fails to intrigue dyed in the wool scientists who figure that most cures of this type occur only in old warts; the original virus is dead and all that remains are bits of overgrown tissue.

Removal by surgery, radiation, electrodesiccation, caustics, and carbon dioxide snow are scientific therapies that offer a high percentage of cures. The aim is to remove the lesion without leaving a scar. There are several internal remedies which usually are reserved for children. Here again, how much of the effect results from the drug and how much from suggestion?

STUFFY NOSE

W. V. writes: My doctor tells me I have vasomotor rhinitis, which seems to me to be more like a constant cold. Can you tell me something about this condition?

REPLY

Vasomotor rhinitis causes sneezing associated with nasal discharge and obstruction, hence does resemble a cold. The cause is allergy and the most common culprits are dust, animal dandruff, feathers, and sudden changes in temperature. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on this disorder.

BITTER TASTE

T. M. writes: I awaken every morning with a bitter taste in my mouth. I am 70 years old and feel well otherwise. What could cause this bad taste?

REPLY

Don't take it so hard. Conditions are bound to improve. Among the many causes of halitosis are infection of the mouth, nose, tonsils, or bronchi, digestive disturbances, and smoking. Dental decay and dentures that are not properly cared for can be responsible.

SHINY SKIN

L. P. writes: The skin over my mother's swollen legs is so shiny it reflects the light like a mirror. Is this unusual?

REPLY

No, as the skin over swollen tissues usually is stretched and without wrinkles, which leads to a glossy appearance. This phenomenon is more noticeable in fair-skinned persons.

Parents Join Commie Fronts To Help Sons In Prison Camps; Our Nation Has Thrived On Criticism; Notes From The GI Mailbag

WASHINGTON—One distressing aspect of the Korean prisoner release is that some families of American POW's were inveigled into joining Communist-front organizations in the U.S.A. in hopes of getting their sons released.

Just how extensively parents joined up is now being investigated by the Pentagon. The belief is that only a few did so. However, the Pentagon first learned of the matter when some of the parents told of receiving letters from their sons asking them to join Communist-front organizations in the hope that it would speed their release.

Those parents who reported the matter to Washington did not join. But some did.

What happened was that 47,000 letters have been delivered from UN war prisoners in North Korea and China since the truce talks began. These letters, uncensored by UN officials, were forwarded intact to relatives. For this reason, Pentagon officials did not know that suggestions were being made by POW's that their families join Communist-front groups.

It was not until the wounded prisoners began arriving on our side of the line that news of the brain-washing of American parents, as well as the POW's themselves, came to light.

Since then, mail from POW's has been censored. The Pentagon is also appointing a committee of civilian specialists to study the unfortunate situation.

Criticism Of Eisenhower

Some administration leaders have been complaining privately that the press has been too critical, that they have to labor under such an intense spotlight of publicity that they can't accomplish anything. That may be one reason why the secrecy orders from the White House and various government departments have made information tighter than ever.

Those who complain should take a look at criticism back in the early days of the republic. This nation has thrived on it. It was press criticism that kept the struggling young republic going. Thomas Jefferson in those days called John Marshall a "crafty chief justice who sophisticates the law to his reasoning," while the New York Herald once said the Supreme Court deserved no more respect than a "majority of those congregated in any Washington barroom."

Abraham Lincoln once used these choice words in describing the Supreme Court's doctrine of democracy: "As thin as the homeopathic soup made by boiling a pigeon that had starved to death;" while Judge Black of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court called Chief Justice Taney "a mush toad spotted traitor to the Constitution" and a "political turkey buzzard." "Shall he be permitted," Judge Black asked, "to vomit the filthy contents of his stomach on every decent man in the country without having his neck twisted?"

This was some of the criticism which the men who made this country hurled at the highest court of the land. They had even stronger words for other people. Later Woodrow Wilson summed up the generally accepted idea of government criticism in this language:

"We do not need less criticism, but more. It is hoped that criticism will be constructive, but better unfair criticism than autocratic repression."

GI Mail

Because it's sometimes difficult for GI's to criticize armed service inequities while in uniform, a lot of them have written to this columnist. The column in turn has endeavored to take up some of these problems with the armed services and straighten them out. Here are some notes from the GI mailbag:

An Air Force Sergeant, Wheelus Field, Tripoli, Libya—"We are living in tents, eight men to a tent. The floor boards are covered with a fine layer of sand, our clothes are full of it, our beds and blankets are full of it, and I just finished my Sunday dinner and it was full of it. It is very hot inside the tent, but a person can't open a door or lift a flap, because the sand will blow in your face and get in your eyes, ears, hair, down your neck and in your shoes. So we sit in the tent and sweat. The morale of the men in this wing is the lowest of any that I have ever seen. Enlisted men with many years service are taking their discharges. They are getting out of the Air Force any way possible. They don't want to do this, but they are doing it in preference to staying here."

Answer—I have investigated living conditions at Wheelus Field, and unfortunately must report that you have understated your case. Conditions there are sub-human. It is not the fault of the Air Force, however, which has asked Congress for the money to build ventilated barracks and even a swim-

These Days

Gladiators For Peace

My old friend, Karl von Wiegand, is a reporter of the old school, which means that he regards an event of the moment as a continuing development in the history of man.

I therefore noted keenly Von Wiegand's reference to the contest for credibility between Eisenhower and Russia (whoever governs there): "The Kremlin in the Pravda article used typical Asiatic tactics which all Asians understand — that of turning Eisenhower's bold spearpoint against himself and, directly and by implication, falsely charging that America, not Russia, is a threat to world peace."

The Russians have conducted a peace campaign since 1946. They organized the Stockholm Peace Petition; they have used their vast propaganda organizations in every country in the world to advocate peace. True, during this peace crusade, they have made war in China, in Iran, in Germany, in Korea, in Indo-China. But they have employed natives and not Russians; they have given the impression of a people's movement rather than an imperialist adventure.

The point needs to be made that the Russians have succeeded in creating the impression that they favor peace, and that the United States is actually creating conditions favorable to war. No American effort to counteract this Russian propaganda has been successful.

President Eisenhower, in his speech on foreign policy, laid down the American maximum peace terms. The Russians replied in two ways: by a lengthy article in "Pravda," on April 25, and by an expansion of the Far Eastern War into Laos in Indo-China.

The Russians, as Marxists, employ the identical words that we do, but the meaning is different. For instance, by peace, President Eisenhower and every American means an end to war, a restoration of the normal commercial and diplomatic relations among nations, disarmament on an accepted program and a recognition of the rights of peoples to governments of their own choosing.

By peace, the Russians mean a changed world of no boundaries, no nations, no races, no separation of human beings by religious or philosophic cocepts. All human beings would be one people in one world governed out of the Kremlin until government would wither away altogether. There will be no coercion, no force, no use of power—that is eventually. Meanwhile, men must fight and die, particularly those who are not Russians, to achieve this end.

And the only country that is preventing this heaven on earth from immediate accomplishment is the United States!

Here then is the conflict and, just as Von Wiegand wrote, in Asia, the Russian rather than the American view makes sense because of long repetition and the genuine dislike of the Asiatic for the Western European and the Americans who are regarded as exploiters.

American and British propaganda has up to now been not only futile but fatuous. If Chester Bowles suggested that the Voice of America tone down its anti-communism, it could be that its efforts irritated rather than informed. The Russians devoted themselves to one line of propaganda, peace, and peace as defined above. We have become involved in a defense of errors. To the Asiatics, and to many Europeans, we have lost face because we lost China and permitted ourselves to be tricked in Korea.

The "Pravda" article raised this question:

". . . Those wishing to see in Eisenhower's speech a real striving for peace cannot but ask why was it necessary for the President in a speech calling for peace to threaten unequivocally with the possibility of an atom war. Is it possible that such kind of arguments will make the speech of the President about peace more convincing? In any case, as regards the Soviet Union, such arguments, or speaking more plainly such threats, have never attained and cannot attain their purpose."

This has a clear meaning to those who live in fear of the atom bomb and who also fear that whatever happens, the war is merely likely to be fought on their soil than on either American or Russian terrain. The Indians have that in mind all the time and therefore they favor peace at any price, which is cheaper than having a major war fought in their country.

So far, the Russians have been very effective in their propaganda. If this country is to make up for lost time, it needs a different approach to a psychological offensive. Certainly, a nation always on the defensive does not present an appearance of courage or even wisdom.

Matter Of Fact

By JOSEPH AND STEWART ALSOP

Not A Happy Party

WASHINGTON

The Republican congressional leaders are frankly dissatisfied with President Eisenhower's eight and a half billion dollar cut in the Truman budget. According to indisputable report, it was not at all a happy party at the White House when the new economy program was unveiled for Sen. Taft, Speaker Martin and the others.

For his part, the President must have been conscious of having taken enormous and really terrifying risks, in order to slash defense and foreign aid spending so deeply. But in the eyes of the congressional bigwigs, the slash was not nearly deep enough.

It would not assure an immediately balanced budget. It would not give room for the kind of tax reductions Congress wants, especially for next year. It was still just a cut in a Truman program, and not a brand new Eisenhower program promising this country much more security at much less cost. Such was the litany of the leaders' complaints, made somewhat sharper by the vagueness that marked the presentation of the President's plan.

Several curious interesting lines of thought are suggested by this highly significant espisode. For example, it explains the agitation by Sen. Taft and others for a whole new set of Joint Chiefs of Staff. The present Joint Chiefs have failed to devise a national security system with a bargain basement price tag. The conviction is firmly held that such a system is somehow feasible (hence the demand for an "Eisenhower program"). If the old Joint Chiefs cannot achieve this miracle, then we must get some new ones.

Uncomfortable Choice Ahead

This is the current mood. The existence of this impatient mood in turn speaks volumes about the future relation between the President and the Congress.

The President has stated his theory of the right way to deal with the Congress in simple language—"I speak my piece, and then it's up to them." It is of course constitutionally correct that the President proposes and the Congress disposes. But the Eisenhower phrase, "then it's up to them," indicates wide tolerance of any disposition Congress may choose to make. "Harmony" is to be pursued as an end in itself.

Of course if you want harmony enough, you can always have it by letting the other fellow decide whether the tune to be sung is "Sweet Adeline" or "Take Me Back to Old Virginie." But you cannot always have harmony if you will not let the other fellow call the tune. And that uncomfortable choice, about letting or not letting the other fellow call the tune, now seems to be looming ahead for the White House.

The cut in the defense appropriations, although attacked as inadequate, is unlikely to be greatly surpassed by the Congress. It can be shown to be a dangerous cut; and the Democrats mean to show the danger very dramatically.

Unfortunately, foreign aid appropriations, although already reduced by 1.8 billion dollars, are much more unpopular than defense appropriations on The Hill. Sen. Milliken, of Colorado, a highly responsible Republican who is also very loyal to Eisenhower, has already commented that Congress will be "merciless" towards foreign aid.

Congressional Fight Possible

In the Senate Appropriations Committee, moreover, there is a perfect nest of the sort of senator who regards Secretary of State Dulles as a probable subversive, and would greatly prefer to have no foreign policy whatever.

The Appropriations Committee chairman is Bridges of New Hampshire. Sens. McCarthy, Mundt, Dworshak and Cordon among the Republicans, and McCarran on the Democratic side, are likely to go to any lengths. Sens. Ferguson and McLellan will not be far behind. Sen. McCarthy has long previously hinted that Secretary Dulles would "get what was coming to him" when the foreign aid and State Department appropriations came before this committee. Hence, if the congressional leaders are not minded to fight all the way for the President's program, Sen. McCarthy's forecast is only too likely to come true.

The leaders' lack of passionate belligerence has meanwhile been indicated in the sphere of foreign economic policy. The White House pleaded for a simple one-year extension of the reciprocal trade agreement act. The President further agreed to take the recommendations, one year from now, of a special commission on foreign economic policy that congressional protectionists will quite certainly pack with their sympathizers. This, you might suppose, should have satisfied everyone.

Yet at this moment, the House Ways and Means Committee has pigeon-holed the one-year extension of the reciprocal trade agreements act. It is holding hearings on the Simpson bill, which represents the view of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers Association. It looks as though the House would largely sustain its committee. The Senate outlook is somewhat better, but not a great deal. In short, if the President wants to make the nation's policy—and particularly its foreign policy—he will almost surely have to fight Congress for the privilege of doing so.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—When U. S. District Judge Luther Youngdahl—the former governor of Minnesota who was appointed by President Truman in a political maneuver that caused quite a flurry in Republican ranks in the Northwest—threw out four of seven counts in the indictment against Owen Lattimore, quite a lot of curiosity and puzzlement was aroused in legal circles here. For the judge was not content to dismiss the four counts but in his written opinion said there was "serious doubt in the court's mind whether any count in this indictment can finally pass the test of materiality."

The curiosity arises because it is being asked: How can a federal judge who has expressed doubt about the three remaining counts in an indictment give a fair trial to the Government of the United States in prosecuting the case when he has already prejudged the issues. Wouldn't a juror be disqualified if he expressed publicly such doubts before a trial took place?

There is some question also as to whether Judge Youngdahl has as yet been finally assigned to the Lattimore case for trial but, if he has been, then it would not be surprising if the government asked that another judge be assigned in view of this prejudgment.

Refers To Tydings Committee

Judge Youngdahl's opinion arouses puzzlement not because of the things he said but the things he apparently omitted to say or to take into account in his formal opinion.

Thus, although it wasn't necessary for Judge Youngdahl to do so to make his point, he declared that the Tydings Committee of the Senate had investigated the charges against Owen Lattimore and "concluded there was no foundation to the charges against him." One would have thought in all fairness that the judge would have taken cognizance of the investigation made by a second Senate committee under the chairmanship of Senator McCarran of Nevada, which also investigated the same charges and spent an even longer time doing it and then came up with the conclusion that Owen Lattimore was "a conscious, articulate instrument of the Soviet conspiracy in the United States." To state the conclusion of one committee and omit the conclusion of the other committee is to cause more puzzlement.

The only reference that Judge Youngdahl makes to the McCarran Committee report is to say that "apparently the committee could discover no evidence from its investigation of the testimony of the various witnesses that defendant lied in denying that he was a Communist, a member of the Communist party, a Soviet spy or a fellow traveller."

Here is an attempt by the judge to evaluate the Senate committee's work and yet, so far as conclusions are concerned, he apparently ignores the fact that the Senate committee did ask the Department of Justice to submit the perjury charges to a federal grand jury and did point to specific contradictions which, in its judgment, merited attention. Is it the duty of a Senate committee to submit all its evidence of alleged perjury before the trial begins or is it the duty of the Department of Justice to do so during the trial itself?

Judge Youngdahl did say, with reference to the three counts that remained for trial, that "the question of materiality, like the question of pertinency, is a question of law for the court to decide when the government's evidence is in or at the conclusion of all the testimony."

Decision Termed Unprecedented

But if that's to be the procedure, then why did Judge Youngdahl feel it necessary, even without hearing any evidence, to cast doubt on the counts in the indictment left to be tried? This and other questions are being asked as the case is being discussed among lawyers here, some of whom say the Youngdahl decision is quite unprecedented.

Another cause for puzzlement is Judge Youngdahl's comments as he dismissed the first — and what is considered by all sides as the most important—count in the indictment. He said:

"Under this count, the defendant is charged with lying in denying that he had ever been a sympathizer or promoter of communism or Communist interests."

The judge added that "sympathies and beliefs and what they mean to different individuals involve concepts that are highly nebulous and speculative at best" and that a jury should not be asked "to determine an issue which can be decided only on conjecture."

But, strangely enough, Judge Youngdahl did not take into consideration the possibility that a man could be a "promoter" and do physical acts of "promotion" which would be overt and not just within his own mind. It is susceptible of proof whether a man's activities show that he is or is not a deliberate promoter of certain beliefs or causes. The Communist line in America for several years now has argued that Communism is a mere matter of political belief. Actually mere belief in anything by one individual is not unlawful by itself but when combined with what Justice Jackson of the Supreme Court of the United States has described as "guilt by association," individual acts become more pertinent, especially if they indicate a "conspiracy" to overthrow the government by violence.

Peron Without Evita

When Eva Peron died less than 10 months ago, it was predicted in some quarters that her passing could prove a political as well as a personal tragedy for her husband, president and dictator of Argentina. Recent developments in Buenos Aires and elsewhere in the nation today show Juan D. Peron considerably less secure than when he lost his consort.

Peron has lost some of Evita's strong hold on the "decamisados"—or shirtless ones—despite his pledge to spend three half-days each week at her old Labor Ministry office to continue her social work. By July 1952 the cost of living in Argentina had soared 185 per cent over a four-year period, according to a UN International Labor Office report. Less than a month ago—after the General Confederation of Labor "held a knife to my guts"—Peron posted ceiling prices on food and other essential commodities.

Last fall Peron purged another great source of his strength, the army. And on April 9, Peron's former right-hand man, former Governor Mercante of Buenos Aires province, was suspended by the Peronista party. The news came on the same day that the suicide of Eva Peron's brother was reported. The brother, often charged with having been a leading blackmarket operator, had resigned three days earlier as Peron's private secretary, on the eve of an investigation into corruption in high government circles.

Peron could now give up the pretenses to constitutionality of his government and admit he is dictator. On April 15 he declared, "If in order to finish with the evils within and without, to finish with dishonesty, it becomes necessary for me to go down in history as a tyrant, I shall do so with much pleasure. Until now I have employed persuasion; in future I shall employ repression." The bomb explosions on April 15, allegedly instigated by Peron himself, are cited as further evidence of his weakness.

Peron's "persuasion" has taken the form of widespread arrests. Many of the victims have been merchants accused of price-gouging; others have been "rumor-mongers." Argentina's broadly drawn security law provides punishment for circulating rumors causing public alarm—including the gathering or transmitting of statistics, even those not held secret by the government.

To alleviate the meat shortage in Buenos Aires, Peron threatened to send troops to "raid the cattle ranges." The Radical party candidate who ran against Peron for president in the November 1951 election was arrested on May 1. On the same day additional bombs exploded, without reported injury.

The "evils without" feared by Peron appear to include Uncle Sam again. The government-controlled Argentine press had hailed the inauguration of President Eisenhower in January. But in his May Day speech Peron frequently denounced the United States, though failing to mention this country by name. He castigated the Christian Science Monitor by name, and he asked the Argentine Congress for a swift and complete investigation of the three great U. S. news services, the Associated Press, the International News Service, and the United Press.

Worrying The Reds

Psychological warfare is a vague term, comprising roughly the area between propaganda and shooting warfare. General Clark's offer of $50,000 reward for each enemy jet plane delivered in reasonably good flying condition is an example of it.

The offer is made in handbills printed in Russian and dropped where they will do the most good. It promises asylum to pilots who comply, an extra $50,000 for the first plane delivered, and anonymity for pilots who wish it.

If the offer accomplishes no more than forcing the Reds to tighten their security measures, it will be worth while. That would sow suspicion among enemy pilots and might result in restrictions on their activities. And it could have other advantages.

It is believed that Russian pilots have been operating in Korea, although concrete proof is lacking. This conjecture is buttressed by the fact that the Reds have been extremely careful to operate only over their own territory, as if they feared exposure if their planes were shot down over Allied territory. If a Russian pilot surrenders a plane, this will be proof of what is suspected.

Rather than have the U. S. obtain this proof, the enemy might quit stalling and agree to a cease-fire in Korea. This sort of psychological pressure might be more effective, and certainly would be less costly, than applying military pressure with the same aim.

The method is worth applying in the diplomatic field as well. It would not be feasible to offer a flat sum to Russia's satellites to follow Yugoslavia's example and become independent of Moscow. But this country has nothing to lose by giving other Communist governments incentives to desert the Kremlin.

If such a course accomplished nothing else, it would have the effect of keeping the enemy off balance. And that is one of the main aims of psychological warfare.

Grandmother Routine

Figures don't lie. Neither do clear, sharp pictures. Seven New Jersey boys have found out all about this to their misery.

The other day the Yankees played the Boston Red Sox at Yankee Stadium. On the same day seven seniors at Perth Amboy high school were absent. This wasn't too out of the ordinary, for The Bug is still making the rounds, despite antibiotics.

But next day, when the seven presented illness excuses, the principal haled the group into his office and presented the sports page of one of the New York newspapers. A two-column photo, taken with a telephoto lens, showed with painful clarity a frustrated Boston outfielder pulling up while a home run ball settled into the lower right field stands.

Centered in the picture were seven youths—count 'em — with faces raised, mouths open, clearly recognizable.

Many a baseball fan can remember the days—before the telephoto lens — when the mortality on grandmothers was terrific. Most of the time the young fry got away with it, or else their urge to try the spring sun from the bleachers was overlooked by the boss.

But no more. There are too many machine-made eyes — including the worst prober of all, the TV camera—always on the lookout to trap the unwary. Certainly the seven lads from New Jersey didn't expect to get their pictures in the paper when they went to a ball game in Gotham.

Attacks On Warts

Warts are mysterious lesions and our knowledge of these blemishes is composed of a mixture of science and superstition. We have reason to believe they are caused by a filtrable virus that enters areas of the skin that have been damaged through pressure, scratches, bumps, or bruises. The ugly looking mess that follows results from the peculiar way in which the skin acts toward the intruder. Superstition entered the picture through the folklore that warts resulted from touching a frog or toad.

The common wart is seen on the hands and fingers and, occasionally, on the scalp. It is recognized as a pea sized growth with a horny top protruding from the surface approximately ¼ inch. These warts obtain their tattletale gray color in much the same way as do the neighbor's sheets—from ingrained dirt. The growths may be single or multiple and now and then coalesce to form large, unsightly plaques. The common wart is partial to children but other varieties have age preferences all their own.

The plantar wart is made of the same basic material as the common type except that pressure on the sole changes its appearance. The ball of the foot and the heel are favored and instead of projecting outward, the wart presses into the toughened skin of the sole and is surrounded by callus. There is exquisite tenderness on walking and more pain is produced than by a nail or pebble in the shoe. A related type, the mosaic wart, also selects the sole but unlike the plantar wart usually is not over a pressure point. The lesion often extends under the toes and behind the heels and paring discloses individual cores that impart the mosaic pattern for which the condition is named. The ordinary plantar wart oozes when the layers are removed and after the blood is wiped away, the under surface is studded with brownish-black dots grouped together in a bundle.

The filiform, or thread-like wart looks like a tiny flap of normal colored skin. It is found more frequently on the eyelids, nostrils, and neck of older women. The digitate wart is slightly larger and protrudes from the surface like a miniature finger. It is grayish in shade and is seen most often in the bearded areas in men.

It is in treatment that science vies more strongly with superstition. Suggestion is ancient as a lay remedy but rarely was considered useful by the medical profession until approximately 25 years ago when the Swiss physician, Bruno Bloch, startled the medical profession by reporting cures by suggestion alone in 78 per cent of 179 cases. Such results have been substantiated but the rationale is puzzling and never fails to intrigue dyed in the wool scientists who figure that most cures of this type occur only in old warts; the original virus is dead and all that remains are bits of overgrown tissue.

Removal by surgery, radiation, electrodesiccation, caustics, and carbon dioxide snow are scientific therapies that offer a high percentage of cures. The aim is to remove the lesion without leaving a scar. There are several internal remedies which usually are reserved for children. Here again, how much of the effect results from the drug and how much from suggestion?

STUFFY NOSE

W. V. writes: My doctor tells me I have vasomotor rhinitis, which seems to me to be more like a constant cold. Can you tell me something about this condition?

REPLY

Vasomotor rhinitis causes sneezing associated with nasal discharge and obstruction, hence does resemble a cold. The cause is allergy and the most common culprits are dust, animal dandruff, feathers, and sudden changes in temperature. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on this disorder.

BITTER TASTE

T. M. writes: I awaken every morning with a bitter taste in my mouth. I am 70 years old and feel well otherwise. What could cause this bad taste?

REPLY

Don't take it so hard. Conditions are bound to improve. Among the many causes of halitosis are infection of the mouth, nose, tonsils, or bronchi, digestive disturbances, and smoking. Dental decay and dentures that are not properly cared for can be responsible.

SHINY SKIN

L. P. writes: The skin over my mother's swollen legs is so shiny it reflects the light like a mirror. Is this unusual?

REPLY

No, as the skin over swollen tissues usually is stretched and without wrinkles, which leads to a glossy appearance. This phenomenon is more noticeable in fair-skinned persons.

Parents Join Commie Fronts To Help Sons In Prison Camps; Our Nation Has Thrived On Criticism; Notes From The GI Mailbag

WASHINGTON—One distressing aspect of the Korean prisoner release is that some families of American POW's were inveigled into joining Communist-front organizations in the U.S.A. in hopes of getting their sons released.

Just how extensively parents joined up is now being investigated by the Pentagon. The belief is that only a few did so. However, the Pentagon first learned of the matter when some of the parents told of receiving letters from their sons asking them to join Communist-front organizations in the hope that it would speed their release.

Those parents who reported the matter to Washington did not join. But some did.

What happened was that 47,000 letters have been delivered from UN war prisoners in North Korea and China since the truce talks began. These letters, uncensored by UN officials, were forwarded intact to relatives. For this reason, Pentagon officials did not know that suggestions were being made by POW's that their families join Communist-front groups.

It was not until the wounded prisoners began arriving on our side of the line that news of the brainwashing of American parents, as well as the POW's themselves, came to light.

Since then, mail from POW's has been censored. The Pentagon is also appointing a committee of civilian specialists to study the unfortunate situation.

Criticism Of Eisenhower

Some administration leaders have been complaining privately that the press has been too critical, that they have to labor under such an intense spotlight of publicity that they can't accomplish anything. That may be one reason why the secrecy orders from the White House and various government departments have made information tighter than ever.

Those who complain should take a look at criticism back in the early days of the republic. This nation has thrived on it. It was press criticism that kept the struggling young republic going. Thomas Jefferson in those days called John Marshall a "crafty chief justice who sophisticates the law to his reasoning," while the New York Herald once said the Supreme Court deserved no more respect than a "majority of those congregated in any Washington barroom."

Abraham Lincoln once used these choice words in describing the Supreme Court's doctrine of democracy: "As thin as the homeopathic soup made by boiling a pigeon that had starved to death;" while Judge Black of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court called Chief Justice Taney "a mush toad spotted traitor to the Constitution" and a "political turkey buzzard." "Shall he be permitted," Judge Black asked, "to vomit the filthy contents of his stomach on every decent man in the country without having his neck twisted?"

This was some of the criticism which the men who made this country hurled at the highest court of the land. They had even stronger words for other people. Later Woodrow Wilson summed up the generally accepted idea of government criticism in this language:

"We do not need less criticism, but more. It is hoped that criticism will be constructive, but better unfair criticism than autocratic repression."

GI Mail

Because it's sometimes difficult for GI's to criticize armed service inequities while in uniform, a lot of them have written to this columnist. The column in turn has endeavored to take up some of these problems with the armed services and straighten them out. Here are some notes from the GI mailbag:

An Air Force Sergeant, Wheelus Field, Tripoli, Libya—"We are living in tents, eight men to a tent. The floor boards are covered with a fine layer of sand, our clothes are full of it, our beds and blankets are full of it, and I just finished my Sunday dinner and it was full of it. It is very hot inside the tent, but a person can't open a door or lift a flap, because the sand will blow in your face and get in your eyes, ears, hair, down your neck and in your shoes. So we sit in the tent and sweat. The morale of the men in this wing is the lowest of any that I have ever seen. Enlisted men with many years service are taking their discharges. They are getting out of the Air Force any way possible. They don't want to do this, but they are doing it in preference to staying here."

Answer—I have investigated living conditions at Wheelus Field, and unfortunately must report that you have understated your case. Conditions there are sub-human. It is not the fault of the Air Force, however, which has asked Congress for the money to build ventilated barracks and even a swim-

These Days

Gladiators For Peace

My old friend, Karl von Wiegand, is a reporter of the old school, which means that he regards an event of the moment as a continuing development in the history of man.

I therefore noted keenly Von Wiegand's reference to the contest for credibility between Eisenhower and Russia (whoever governs there): "The Kremlin in the Pravda article used typical Asiatic tactics which all Asians understand — that of turning Eisenhower's bold spearpoint against himself and, directly and by implication, falsely charging that America, not Russia, is a threat to world peace."

The Russians have conducted a peace campaign since 1946. They organized the Stockholm Peace Petition; they have used their vast propaganda organizations in every country in the world to advocate peace. True, during this peace crusade, they have made war in China, in Iran, in Germany, in Korea, in Indo-China. But they have employed natives and not Russians; they have given the impression of a people's movement rather than an imperialist adventure.

The point needs to be made that the Russians have succeeded in creating the impression that they favor peace, and that the United States is actually creating conditions favorable to war. No American effort to counteract this Russian propaganda has been successful.

President Eisenhower, in his speech on foreign policy, laid down the American maximum peace terms. The Russians replied in two ways: by a lengthy article in "Pravda," on April 25, and by an expansion of the Far Eastern War into Laos in Indo-China.

The Russians, as Marxists, employ the identical words that we do, but the meaning is different. For instance, by peace, President Eisenhower and every American means an end to war, a restoration of the normal commercial and diplomatic relations among nations, disarmament on an accepted program and a recognition of the rights of peoples to governments of their own choosing.

By peace, the Russians mean a changed world of no boundaries, no nations, no races, no separation of human beings by religious or philosophic cocepts. All human beings would be one people in one world governed out of the Kremlin until government would wither away altogether. There will be no coercion, no force, no use of power—that is eventually. Meanwhile, men must fight and die, particularly those who are not Russians, to achieve this end.

And the only country that is preventing this heaven on earth from immediate accomplishment is the United States!

Here then is the conflict and, just as Von Wiegand wrote, in Asia, the Russian rather than the American view makes sense because of long repetition and the genuine dislike of the Asiatic for the Western European and the Americans who are regarded as exploiters.

American and British propaganda has up to now been not only futile but fatuous. If Chester Bowles suggested that the Voice of America tone down its anti-communism, it could be that its efforts irritated rather than informed. The Russians devoted themselves to one line of propaganda, peace, and peace as defined above. We have become involved in a defense of errors. To the Asiatics, and to many Europeans, we have lost face because we lost China and permitted ourselves to be tricked in Korea.

The "Pravda" article raised this question:

". . . Those wishing to see in Eisenhower's speech a real striving for peace cannot but ask why was it necessary for the President in a speech calling for peace to threaten unequivocally with the possibility of an atom war. Is it possible that such kind of arguments will make the speech of the President about peace more convincing? In any case, as regards the Soviet Union, such arguments, or speaking more plainly such threats, have never attained and cannot attain their purpose."

This has a clear meaning to those who live in fear of the atom bomb and who also fear that whatever happens, the war is morely likely to be fought on their soil than on either American or Russian terrain. The Indians have that in mind all the time and therefore they favor peace at any price, which is cheaper than having a major war fought in their country.

So far, the Russians have been very effective in their propaganda. If this country is to make up for lost time, it needs a different approach to a psychological offensive. Certainly, a nation always on the defensive does not present an appearance of courage or even wisdom.

Matter Of Fact

By JOSEPH AND STEWART ALSOP

Not A Happy Party

WASHINGTON

The Republican congressional leaders are frankly dissatisfied with President Eisenhower's eight and a half billion dollar cut in the Truman budget. According to indisputable report, it was not at all a happy party at the White House when the new economy program was unveiled for Sen. Taft, Speaker Martin and the others.

For his part, the President must have been conscious of having taken enormous and really terrifying risks, in order to slash defense and foreign aid spending so deeply. But in the eyes of the congressional bigwigs, the slash was not nearly deep enough.

It would not assure an immediately balanced budget. It would not give room for the kind of tax reductions Congress wants, especially for next year. It was still just a cut in a Truman program, and not a brand new Eisenhower program promising this country much more security at much less cost. Such was the litany of the leaders' complaints, made somewhat sharper by the vagueness that marked the presentation of the President's plan.

Several curious interesting lines of thought are suggested by this highly significant espisode. For example, it explains the agitation by Sen. Taft and others for a whole new set of Joint Chiefs of Staff. The present Joint Chiefs have failed to devise a national security system with a bargain basement price tag. The conviction is firmly held that such a system is somehow feasible (hence the demand for an "Eisenhower program"). If the old Joint Chiefs cannot achieve this miracle, then we must get some new ones.

Uncomfortable Choice Ahead

This is the current mood. The existence of this impatient mood in turn speaks volumes about the future relation between the President and the Congress.

The President has stated his theory of the right way to deal with the Congress in simple language—"I speak my piece, and then it's up to them." It is of course constitutionally correct that the President proposes and the Congress disposes. But the Eisenhower phrase, "then it's up to them," indicates wide tolerance of any disposition Congress may choose to make. "Harmony" is to be pursued as an end in itself.

Of course if you want harmony enough, you can always have it by letting the other fellow decide whether the tune to be sung is "Sweet Adeline" or "Take Me Back to Old Virginie." But you cannot always have harmony if you will not let the other fellow call the tune. And that uncomfortable choice, about letting or not letting the other fellow call the tune, now seems to be looming ahead for the White House.

The cut in the defense appropriations, although attacked as inadequate, is unlikely to be greatly surpassed by the Congress. It can be shown to be a dangerous cut; and the Democrats mean to show the danger very dramatically.

Unfortunately, foreign aid appropriations, although already reduced by 1.8 billion dollars, are much more unpopular than defense appropriations on The Hill. Sen. Milliken, of Colorado, a highly responsible Republican who is also very loyal to Eisenhower, has already commented that Congress will be "merciless" towards foreign aid.

Congressional Fight Possible

In the Senate Appropriations Committee, moreover, there is a perfect nest of the sort of senator who regards Secretary of State Dulles as a probable subversive, and would greatly prefer to have no foreign policy whatever.

The Appropriations Committee chairman is Bridges of New Hampshire. Sens. McCarthy, Mundt, Dworshak and Cordon among the Republicans, and McCarran on the Democratic side, are likely to go to any lengths. Sens. Ferguson and McLellan will not be far behind. Sen. McCarthy has long previously hinted that Secretary Dulles would "get what was coming to him" when the foreign aid and State Department appropriations came before this committee. Hence, if the congressional leaders are not minded to fight all the way for the President's program, Sen. McCarthy's forecast is only too likely to come true.

The leaders' lack of passionate belligerence has meanwhile been indicated in the sphere of foreign economic policy. The White House pleaded for a simple one-year extension of the reciprocal trade agreement act. The President further agreed to take the recommendations, one year from now, of a special commission on foreign economic policy that congressional protectionists will quite certainly pack with their sympathizers. This, you might suppose, should have satisfied everyone.

Yet at this moment, the House Ways and Means Committee has pigeon-holed the one-year extension of the reciprocal trade agreements act. It is holding hearings on the Simpson bill, which represents the view of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers Association. It looks as though the House would largely sustain its committee. The Senate outlook is somewhat better, but not a great deal. In short, if the President wants to make the nation's policy—and particularly its foreign policy—he will almost surely have to fight Congress for the privilege of doing so.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—When U. S. District Judge Luther Youngdahl—the former governor of Minnesota who was appointed by President Truman in a political maneuver that caused quite a flurry in Republican ranks in the Northwest—threw out four of seven counts in the indictment against Owen Lattimore, quite a lot of curiosity and puzzlement was aroused in legal circles here. For the judge was not content to dismiss the four counts but in his written opinion said there was "serious doubt in the court's mind whether any count in this indictment can finally pass the test of materiality."

The curiosity arises because it is being asked: How can a federal judge who has expressed doubt about the three remaining counts in an indictment give a fair trial to the Government of the United States in prosecuting the case when he has already prejudged the issues. Wouldn't a juror be disqualified if he expressed publicly such doubts before a trial took place?

There is some question also as to whether Judge Youngdahl has as yet been finally assigned to the Lattimore case for trial but, if he has been, then it would not be surprising if the government asked that another judge be assigned in view of this prejudgment.

Refers To Tydings Committee

Judge Youngdahl's opinion arouses puzzlement not because of the things he said but the things he apparently omitted to say or to take into account in his formal opinion.

Thus, although it wasn't necessary for Judge Youngdahl to do so to make his point, he declared that the Tydings Committee of the Senate had investigated the charges against Owen Lattimore and "concluded there was no foundation to the charges against him." One would have thought in all fairness that the judge would have taken cognizance of the investigation made by a second Senate committee under the chairmanship of Senator McCarran of Nevada, which also investigated the same charges and spent an even longer time doing it and then came up with the conclusion that Owen Lattimore was "a conscious, articulate instrument of the Soviet conspiracy in the United States." To state the conclusion of one committee and omit the conclusion of the other committee is to cause more puzzlement.

The only reference that Judge Youngdahl makes to the McCarran Committee report is to say that "apparently the committee could discover no evidence from its investigation of the testimony of the various witnesses that defendant lied in denying that he was a Communist, a member of the Communist party, a Soviet spy or a fellow traveller."

Here is an attempt by the judge to evaluate the Senate committee's work and yet, so far as conclusions are concerned, he apparently ignores the fact that the Senate committee did ask the Department of Justice to submit the perjury charges to a federal grand jury and did point to specific contradictions which, in its judgment, merited attention. Is it the duty of a Senate committee to submit all its evidence of alleged perjury before the trial begins or is it the duty of the Department of Justice to do so during the trial itself?

Judge Youngdahl did say, with reference to the three counts that remained for trial, that "the question of materiality, like the question of pertinency, is a question of law for the court to decide when the government's evidence is in or at the conclusion of all the testimony."

Decision Termed Unprecedented

But if that's to be the procedure, then why did Judge Youngdahl feel it necessary, even without hearing any evidence, to cast doubt on the counts in the indictment left to be tried? This and other questions are being asked as the case is being discussed among lawyers here, some of whom say the Youngdahl decision is quite unprecedented.

Another cause for puzzlement is Judge Youngdahl's comments as he dismissed the first — and what is considered by all sides as the most important—count in the indictment. He said:

"Under this count, the defendant is charged with lying in denying that he had ever been a sympathizer or promoter of communism or Communist interests."

The judge added that "sympathies and beliefs and what they mean to different individuals involve concepts that are highly nebulous and speculative at best" and that a jury should not be asked "to determine an issue which can be decided only on conjecture."

But, strangely enough, Judge Youngdahl did not take into consideration the possibility that a man could be a "promoter" and do physical acts of "promotion" which would be overt and not just within his own mind. It is susceptible of proof whether a man's activities show that he is or is not a deliberate promoter of certain beliefs or causes. The Communist line in America for several years now has argued that Communism is a mere matter of political belief. Actually mere belief in anything by one individual is not unlawful by itself but when combined with what Justice Jackson of the Supreme Court of the United States has described as "guilt by association," individual acts become more pertinent, especially if they indicate a "conspiracy" to overthrow the government by violence.

Senate Cloakroom

by Sen. J. Glenn Beall

We Americans are great ones to draw comparisons, but our fault lies too often in comparing things which are dissimilar.

Right now in almost every newspaper and magazine you see comparisons between the first 100 days of Eisenhower's administration and the first 100 days of the Roosevelt administration.

Comparisons are apt to indicate that the Eisenhower administration has moved slowly, that the anticipated "change" has not yet occurred. It is said that the Roosevelt group in its first 100 days had its New Deal well underway, and that in comparison it appears the Eisenhower administration has not yet begun to move.

Are the comparisons being made valid? Has the Eisenhower administration actually been too slow in effecting the "change" which was expected by the public?

Some Found Unconstitutional

The first days of the Roosevelt administration were typified by a rash of legislation—some of questionable merit — but the people were aware that things had changed. President Hoover had been immobilized by a Democratic Congress and Roosevelt, with a huge majority, was able to get Congress to act swiftly on measures he requested. The American people, and many members of Congress, grew accustomed to the President sending great stacks of bills over to the Capitol to meet any emergency or to avoid what was feared to be an impending crisis.

In such an atmosphere all kinds of legislation was hurriedly enacted under threat that a day's delay would bring disaster. Much such hurried legislation was later found unconstitutional by the Supreme Court.

But the country was suffering a severe economic upheaval and the public generally looked with approval on any prompt action intended to cure the depression.

President Eisenhower faced no similar situation when he was inaugurated on January 20. Our economy was threatened by inflation, taxes were at such a level as to be confiscatory, public confidence in government was at an all time low. But these problems were not the type that could be remedied by giving the country a physic of new legislation.

The immediate problem of the Eisenhower administration is that of providing leadership to the free world in order to avoid war. On the success of our foreign relations our domestic progress depends.

Course Is Charted

The President has taken dynamic action in meeting the immediate problems, but the American people anticipating an atomic upheaval in Washington has not yet felt the full impact of the changes made.

Our economy has now been decontrolled, and considering that it took 20 years to get it regimented the decontrol process has been remarkably fast. The effect on our economy has not been immediate.

On April 16, the President announced the administration's foreign policy. The speech might have been given earlier if the death of Stalin had not changed the world situation from January 20.

President Eisenhower proclaimed a positive program for peace, if the Russians want to accept it, and a determination to not quietly acquiesce to Communist aggression. More time must elapse before changes resulting from these new policies are evident.

Comparisons can be misleading and it might be wise for us to take a look around us — I think we will find President Eisenhower has charted the course of the Ship of State, and the passengers are moving along the course laid out, whether or not they are aware that the ship is underway.

Reports of the progress of the administration will be related in future issues of this report.

Motions Of Economy

The old new dealers would spin counterwise to gravity if they gandered the strange capers in Washington these spontaneous essions.

There has been a rash of economy that we can afford. It was confirmed by a standing vote that was almost running.

Among the alphabetical cliques hamstrung was the commission to fix the height of midwestern basketball players. The game is getting too much like tiddlywinks.

The house decided that the fire plugs of the District of Columbia have been counted often enough. It reduced the appropriation eleven million. Which will still leave the counterfeiters a neat profit.

The dining car has been taken off the subway train connecting the capitol buildings. It was decided not to merge with the B. and O., the Pennsy or accept crosstown transfers.

Nothing much could be done about the $87,000,000 spent for army overcoats too heavy to wear. Very good suggestion by economical senator who suggested Indians could use 'em for teepees.

We'll talk about those army overcoats tomorrow. If $87,000,000 is hay, the room clerk can assign me a stall right now.

Civilian consumption of coffee in the United States amounts to nearly 16.6 pounds per capita compared with 14 pounds before World War II.

Senate Cloakroom

by Sen. J. Glenn Beall

We Americans are great ones to draw comparisons, but our fault lies too often in comparing things which are dissimilar.

Right now in almost every newspaper and magazine you see comparisons between the first 100 days of Eisenhower's administration and the first 100 days of the Roosevelt administration.

Comparisons are apt to indicate that the Eisenhower administration has moved slowly, that the anticipated "change" has not yet occurred. It is said that the Roosevelt group in its first 100 days had its New Deal well underway, and that in comparison it appears the Eisenhower administration has not yet begun to move.

Are the comparisons being made valid? Has the Eisenhower administration actually been too slow in effecting the "change" which was expected by the public?

Some Found Unconstitutional

The first days of the Roosevelt administration were typified by a rash of legislation—some of questionable merit — but the people were aware that things had changed. President Hoover had been immobilized by a Democratic Congress and Roosevelt, with a huge majority, was able to get Congress to act swiftly on measures he requested. The American people, and many members of Congress, grew accustomed to the President sending great stacks of bills over to the Capitol to meet any emergency or to avoid what was feared to be an impending crisis.

In such an atmosphere all kinds of legislation was hurriedly enacted under threat that a day's delay would bring disaster. Much such hurried legislation was later found unconstitutional by the Supreme Court.

But the country was suffering a severe economic upheaval and the public generally looked with approval on any prompt action intended to cure the depression.

President Eisenhower faced no similar situation when he was inaugurated on January 20. Our economy was threatened by inflation, taxes were at such a level as to be confiscatory, public confidence in goverpment was at an all time low. But these problems were not the type that could be remedied by giving the country a physic of new legislation.

The immediate problem of the Eisenhower administration is that of providing leadership to the free world in order to avoid war. On the success of our foreign relations our domestic progress depends.

Course Is Charted

The President has taken dynamic action in meeting the immediate problems, but the American people anticipating an atomic upheaval in Washington has not yet felt the full impact of the changes made.

Our economy has now been decontrolled, and considering that it took 20 years to get it regimented the decontrol process has been remarkably fast. The effect on our economy has not been immediate.

On April 16, the President announced the administration's foreign policy. The speech might have been given earlier if the death of Stalin had not changed the world situation from January 20.

President Eisenhower proclaimed a positive program for peace, if the Russians want to accept it, and a determination to not quietly acquiesce to Communist aggression. More time must elapse before changes resulting from these new policies are evident.

Comparisons can be misleading and it might be wise for us to take a look around us — I think we will find President Eisenhower has charted the course of the Ship of State, and the passengers are moving along the course laid out, whether or not they are aware that the ship is underway.

Reports of the progress of the administration will be related in future issues of this report.

UNDER THE DOME

During the last week I met many of our Maryland businessmen at the Association of Commerce dinner at the National Press Club, and also at the meeting of the Montgomery County Real Estate Board.

The Takoma Park Independence Day Committee is already planning for its July Fourth celebration and I hope to be able to obtain a military band to lead their parade.

The Maryland Women's Council called on me last week and enjoyed a luncheon at the Capitol.

Baering Down On The News

Motions Of Economy

The old new dealers would spin counterwise to gravity if they gandered the strange capers in Washington these spontaneous essions.

There has been a rash of economy that we can afford. It was confirmed by a standing vote that was almost running.

Among the alphabetical cliques hamstrung was the commission to fix the height of midwestern basketball players. The game is getting too much like tiddlywinks.

The house decided that the fire plugs of the District of Columbia have been counted often enough. It reduced the appropriation eleven million. Which will still leave the counterfeiters a neat profit.

The dining car has been taken off the subway train connecting the capitol buildings. It was decided not to merge with the B. and O., the Pennsy or accept crosstown transfers.

Nothing much could be done about the $87,000,000 spent for army overcoats too heavy to wear. Very good suggestion by economical senator who suggested Indians could use 'em for teepees.

We'll talk about those army overcoats tomorrow. If $87,000,000 is hay, the room clerk can assign me a stall right now.

My New York

by Mel Heimer

NEW YORK—Things one New Yorker thinks about: It's still eight months to Christmas, to be sure, but here's the gift for the baseball fan in the family: a copy of the new novel "The Southpaw" by Mark Harris. It's adult fare, with overtones of Ring Lardner, and is probably the only book ever written that presents a clear, untouched version of big league ball as it is. One thing troubles me. Mr. Harris' hero, a pitcher (on the thinly disguised Yankees), feels (with at least partial truth) that sportwriters are a lot of silly asses who write hogwash. Mr. Harris' early years were spent in Mt. Vernon, N. Y.—where I used to be a sports writer. A good one, too.

Hallelujah. I met a model who feels as I do about models—absolutely nothing. This was an unusual-type model, though, an Oregon girl named Addyse Lane who won two university scholarships, played the violin in the Salem Philharmonic, taught school for two years, got her MA from Stanford university, played leads in little-theater plays, writes plays and now is being sent around the country by the Kay Windsor dress firm to belie the old statement that models are "dull girls in smart clothes." Miss Lane, a pretty brunet, was wearing a black cotton faille dress with white pique trim and a black straw hat with white trim, when I met her. I trust all that means something to the females in the audience.

The moving finger writes, as O. Khayam put it. It used to be that the urchins who gathered in the darkened lobbies of Broadway's big clothing stores at night, and danced for pennies from passersby, did only jitterbugging. Now they mambo and samba and bring along their own bongo drums. . . . I don't want to be over-cynical, but the news that the French are going to paint the 63-year-old Eiffel tower a "cognac brown," at the "suggestion" of the cognac industry, makes me nod knowingly. After reading some of the lavish plugs for shows in Paris newspapers, I am convinced a lot of things in France are for sale at the right price.

Cab drivers in New York, as Lew Lehr used to say, are the cwaziest people. There's one tooling around now who hangs a bag of popcorn on a hook for his customers. "It only costs 20 cents a day," he said the other morning, "and it's always good for a laugh." . . . There's a little jewelry store in the East 50s that will sell you pierced-ear earrings—and then pierce your ears for you, if you like. If I remember my undergraduate days, the girls used to do that by first freezing their ear lobes in ice and then goring them. Ugh . . . Barroom detectives were utterly confused the other night. On one of the local "tough-guy" TV shows, the good guy, his pal and three bad guys all wore trenchcoats.

I have been invited by the producers of "Danger," the television thriller, to portray a newspaperman on a forthcoming show but I don't know if I'm up to it. I have no battered old hat. In fact, I have no hat. . . . There's a new movie out called "I Love Melvin," and the shameless fact is, I do. . . . The Metropolitan Opera house, which is after a million and a half in its new fund drive, reports that it's backstage elevator, a sad little thing, isn't wide enough for a fat basso (isn't that redundant?), which comes under the heading of sheer tragedy.

The giggle-and-titter habit can be replaced by beautiful laughter that is welcome to all ears!

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

The schoolgirl giggle is always annoying, but beyond the age of sixteen it is difficult to excuse. It transmits more than an unpleasant sound—it communicates to others a lack of poise and embarrassment

Often the giggle-and-titter habit is nothing more than an unchecked hangover from the childish gurglings that so enrapture a wee girl's admirers. Furthermore, you are apt to be totally unconscious of it. Like one's voice, one's laugh is not easy to self-appraise. You become so accustomed to your own voice and laughter that unless they are called to your notice, you are usually unaware of any special quality—pleasant or otherwise.

Self-Awareness

But you can become conscious of your laughing sounds. By listening to them with awareness, your ear will become sensitive enough to distinguish your personal idiosyncracies. When you hear tones that are deep and warm well and good.

But if high-pitched, rapid "tee-hee" or nervous, inane, self-conscious sounds are what you acknowledge as your expressions of mirth, it's time to do some serious listening to the laughter of others—and start emulating more attractive and pleasant ways of audibly making your amusement known.

Pleasing Laughter

On the whole, most of the sounds we make are imitative. If you wish to eliminate a habitual giggle all you need do is listen to the laughter of the women who charm with theirs. Note how easily and smoothly beautiful laughter flows—and how smoothingly and pleasantly it falls on the ear. Note, too, that the range from low to medium but never high or shrill. Listen and listen until you memorize and can imitate in private the laughter you most enjoy hearing.

You think you can't laugh aloud in private? Ah, but you can. And silly as the practice may sound, it will work for you as it has for actresses and public speakers. Such practice is a regular part of professional training. Through it you will develop laughter that warms the cockles of others' hearts to a degree where others will listen attentively—and strive to match your laughter ways. There's a compliment of the highest order.

LaVale School Land Purchased

The first parcel of a tract of five sections was purchased yesterday for the site of the new school in LaVale, Ralph R. Webster, county superintendent of schools, announced.

The school will be built on 13.4 acres of land which was subdivided by the heirs of the late Lloyd Shaffer on Parkside Street.

Webster said this is the first real estate transaction in connection with the $3,500,000 school expansion program provided in a bill passed in the 1953 session of the General Assembly.

The school in the western end of LaVale is one of the nine projects to be undertaken as soon as possible.

Webster said the first parcel for the LaVale school is being bought from Benjamin Sands, assistant superintendent of personnel at Amcelle Plant of Celanese Corporation, who had planned to build on it.

Options are held on the other four lots needed for the school site, Webster reported.

The site for the major project of the nine, the construction of a new high school at Westernport, is a problem, the superintendent said.

Because of the terrain in that area, it is difficult to get enough flat land for a playground and athletic field, he commented. Several locations are being considered, Webster added.

Mrs. Wanda Sanders Heads East Side PTA

Mrs. Wanda Sanders was elected president of the East Side School Parent-Teacher Association for the 1953-54 school term at a meeting Tuesday at the school.

Beall High Student Wins Livestock Judging Contest

Jerry Zumpano, a Beall High School student who lives on a small farm on the edge of Frostburg, won the third annual Allegany County Future Farmers of America market livestock judging contest at the Cumberland Stockyards.

James H. House, supervisor of vocational agriculture in the county schools, said that some 86 boys, representing all five FFA chapters, judged two classes of market hogs, a class of feeder steers and a class of fat steers.

The first 25 boys in the contest will share some $35 in premiums, House explained. In addition banners will be awarded to the two FFA chapters who representatives finished first and second in the contest.

Zumpano, in winning, scored 1,418 points out of a possible 1,500. Right behind him was Clinton Hartley of Flintstone with 1406 points. Zumpano will get a $5 premium and Beall High's FFA chapter will receive the first place banner. Hartley will receive $4 and his Flintstone chapter will get the second place banner.

Right behind them were Dewayne Morris, Flintstone, winner of the $3 third place premium, and Byron Kiser, Beall, who will get the $2 premium for fourth place.

Among the top 25 were 18 Flintstone boys, four from Oldtown, two from Beall and one from Allegany. Fort Hill failed to place a representative among the first 25.

All of the boys finishing from fifth through 25th, will get $1 premiums each.

In order, they were:

Robert Bible and William Platt, both Oldtown: Dwight Morris, Clifford Hartley, Danny Bible, Thronton Robinette and William Heavner, all Flintstone; Herbert Shryock, Oldtown; Argyle Wilson, Flintstone; Hayden Dawson, Allegany; Dick Roland, Carl Kifer, Thomas Buser Norman Smith, Arnold Smith, Royce Stafford, Nelson Willison, Charles Jackson, James Hartsock and Warren Howsare, all Flintstone, and Royce Crabtree, Oldtown.

Boyd T. Whittle, extension specialist in animal husbandry at the University of Maryland, served as official judge.

Kenneth Malone, vocational agriculture teacher at Flintstone, assisted House in conducting the contest.

Carver Program Planned

Carver Elementary and High School will present its annual spring music festival today at 8 p. m. in SS. Peter and Paul Hall under the direction of Mrs. Earle L. Bracey and Misses Mary Robb and Ruth E. Franklin.

Sentence Postponed In "Peeper" Case

Accused of being a "peeping Tom", Norman Gale DeWitt of Altoona pleaded guilty yesterday in Police Court to a charge of disorderly conduct.

Magistrate J. Milton Dick deferred sentencing the 26-year-old carnival worker until today. DeWitt posted $50 bond following his arrest yesterday on the complaint of Alex F. Schute, 113 Polk Street.

The defendant was ordered held in jail yesterday due to a previous criminal record. DeWitt was arrested in 1948 on a serious morals charge, police said.

Area Student Directs University Production

"Saint Joan," a play presented Monday at the University of Pittsburgh, was directed by Louis Everstine of 46 Carpenter Street, Ridgeley.

In conjunction with the presentation by members of the university's Humanities Society, Everstine also read Dante's "Divine Comedy."

Chapham junction, near London, claims to be the busiest railroad station in the world with 2,500 daily trains.

Trusty Nabbed After Escape

A 33-year-old Oldtown man, serving six months in Allegany county jail on a habitual drunk charge, made good an escape Saturday night while performing trusty duties outside the jail.

However the fugitive, James Trexler of Oldtown, was nabbed early Sunday morning following a Hagerstown street fracas in which he is alleged to have impersonated a state trooper.

On January 21 Trexler was sentenced by Trial Magistrate J. Milton Dick to serve six months for being a habitual drunkard. Records showed he had been convicted eight times in 12 months. The defendant pleaded guilty.

At the time of his arrest in Hagerstown, Trexler was charged with being drunk and disorderly as the result of a disturbance in the 300-block West Washington Street. The charges were not pressed, however.

Hub City authorities said "Trexler had been throwing his weight around and claimed he was a state policeman".

West Virginians To Elect Today

Potomac Chapter of the West Virginia Alumni Association will hold its monthly meeting today at 8 p. m. at Shaw's Restaurant, Oldtown Road.

Officers will be elected and plans made for an outing later in the month.

The meeting is open to all graduates and former students of West Virginia University.

County School Teachers Plan Conservation Tour

Sixty teachers from 14 Allegany County schools will use their day off Saturday to take a tour of the eastern port of the county to study conservation first hand.

Two bus loads of teachers will leave Fort Hill High School at 10 a. m. with Bryon Ashbaugh, of the Maryland Department of Research and Education, in charge.

Richard T. Rizer, assistant superintendent of schools, said there will be a car accompanying the buses equipped with loud speaker system for a commentary at each stop.

Marked For Removal

The caravan will move out Williams Road where the Theodore Stegmaier wood lot will be observed. Here fire scarred and poorly formed, undesirable species have been marked for removal on a 50-acre plot.

The next stop will be on the top of Irons Mountain where orchard trees are planted on contour with a good cover crop between rows.

Going on out Williams Road, the group will view a natural pond that feeds an underground creek whose outlet will be seen later.

The fourth stop will be farther east on Williams Road where an example of severe sheet erosion will be seen.

Next will be a limestone quarry followed by the underground stream outlet, Lost Creek, flowing into Murley's Branch.

To Check Farm Pond

Going up a branch road off Williams Road the entourage will see another example of extreme sheet erosion and gully formation.

Later a farm pond will be inspected. This has been stocked with fish and Mallard ducks. Two pine plantations and a multiflora rose hedge are in the nearby area.

At 12:45 p. m. lunch will be furnished by the Allegany County Board of Education in Flintstone School.

Near Flintstone, east on Route 40, will be observed sub-soil cultivation demonstration.

In Green Ridge State Forest game management practices, including grass strips, wild turkey trap, and food patches on a power line right-of-way will be inspected.

The tour will conclude at 4:30 p. m. at Fort Hill High School.

Agencies Cooperating

State agencies cooperating in the tour with the Board of Education and Ashbaugh, and their representatives who will attend are:

Harry Hartman, farm forester, Flintstone, Maryland Department of Forests and Parks; Dale Arner, Frostburg, wildlife game superintendent, Maryland Department of Game and Inland Fish; Kenneth Stone, Cumberland, Soil Conservation Service; and Fred Bull, College Park, Extension Service, University of Maryland.

Teachers from the following high schools will attend, Central, Beall, Mt. Savage, Barton, Oldtown, Allegany, Fort Hill, and elementary schools, Cresaptown, Penn Avenue, East Side, Columbia Street, Hill Street, Ellerslie and Beall.

The United States Coast Guard academy, New London, Conn., was founded in 1876.

LaVale School Land Purchased

The first parcel of a tract of five sections was purchased yesterday for the site of the new school in LaVale, Ralph R. Webster, county superintendent of schools, announced.

The school will be built on 13.4 acres of land which was subdivided by the heirs of the late Lloyd Shaffer on Parkside Street.

Webster said this is the first real estate transaction in connection with the $3,500,000 school expansion program provided in a bill passed in the 1953 session of the General Assembly.

The school in the western end of LaVale is one of the nine projects to be undertaken as soon as possible.

Webster said the first parcel for the LaVale school is being bought from Benjamin Sands, assistant superintendent of personnel at Amcelle Plant of Celanese Corporation, who had planned to build on it.

Options are held on the other four lots needed for the school site, Webster reported.

The site for the major project of the nine, the construction of a new high school at Westernport, is a problem, the superintendent said.

Because of the terrain in that area, it is difficult to get enough flat land for a playground and athletic field, he commented. Several locations are being considered, Webster added.

Mrs. Roeder Takes Over Phone Survey

Commissioner Lucile W. Roeder said yesterday a survey to determine if a telephone switchboard is needed in City Hall comes under the jurisdiction of the Department of Streets and Public Property — not the city engineer.

In view of that, she said she has notified the Mayor and Council she will make the survey instead of City Engineer Charles R. Nuzum.

Mrs. Roeder said she had made the request Monday during the regular council session. While not advocating such a system Mrs. Roeder said she was asking the study in the interest of economy and efficiency. Two departments recently installed flash phones in an attempt to augment and improve phone service.

Mrs. Roeder said yesterday she believes the city engineer who was ordered to make the survey by Mayor Roy W. Eves, "too busy and too high salaried a man to do such things" since the work came under the jurisdiction of her department.

She added she had sent a memo to the Mayor informing him that she would conduct the survey.

Mrs. Roeder has contacted Richard E. Harman, manager of the central office of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company here, and was informed that an expert from Baltimore would conduct the study. Mrs. Roeder said she would submit a report to the Mayor and Council based upon this study.

City Will Execute Deeds For Lots

Council on Monday authorized Mayor Roy W. Eves and City Clerk Wallace G. Ullery to execute deeds to five city properties to be sold to citizens.

The purchasers were Louis P. Soterakos, Thomas O. Swain, William B. Harris, Joseph W. Lewis and Marie K. Holzshu.

Swain's deed contains clauses that the lot cannot be used for building purposes and that the city retains the right to install a sewer through the lot. Thomas B. Finan, city solicitor, explained the purchaser wants the plot only for a garden.

Divorces Granted

Three divorces were granted yesterday in Allegany County Circuit Court. Billie Blanche Shanholtz was granted a divorce from Raymond L. Shanholtz and custody of their infant child. Alvera P. Knott was given a divorce from Paul E. Knott and custody of their infant child. Ruby Allena Morgan was divorced from Paul L. Morgan and was awarded custody of their minor child.

Flash Rain Stops Traffic, Swells Streams In District

A rain storm yesterday which only brushed Cumberland spilled over an inch of water in nearby communities, turning streams into raging avenues.

The center of the storm which hit this area about 3 p. m. struck east of Cumberland traveling over Dan's Mountain near Midland toward Cresaptown, the Tri-Towns and the Keyser area.

Observers said streams raised between 14 and 18 inches in three-quarters of an hour during the peak of the storm at 3 p. m.

At Keyser, streets were flooded as sewers backed up, unable to take the flood of water. On North Mineral and Center Streets near the Memorial Bridge that connects Keyser and McCoole, water was even with the curbs.

Along highways, the downpour was so heavy, motorists were forced to park until the wall of rain passed. Jennings Run that follows along side the McMullen Highway from Cresaptown to McCoole raised 18 inches in less than an hour.

However, just minor damage was reported in the area. Other than in inconvenience to students leaving school at Keyser and motorists forced to park, damage was kept to a minimum.

Meanwhile at Cumberland, only .17 of an inch of rain fell all day in periodic showers. The Potomac River yesterday was up about six inches according to Robert R. Golden, weather observer here.

Neither the B&O or Western Maryland Railroads' local division had any trouble due to the downpour but near Baltimore, the B&O reported a "washout" of a length of track. The Western Maryland reported two employes in Baltimore struck by lightning with only one surviving. Some other damage was reported in the Baltimore area.

State Police at Romney, W. Va., reported no damage in that area, but some streams were up "a little". Other than a "good word" the area escaped any heavy damage.

DEFENSE CAN USE "DUCK"

MOST BRIDGE players think of the play called the "duck" as being a weapon of the declarer. It is also just as useful to the defense on certain hands. This device differs from the play called the "hold-up" in one vital particular. Whereas the hold-up consists of deferring use of your high card in order to block a hostile suit later on, the duck is a means of bringing in the establishable cards of your own side's suit.

With his tenuous diamond stoppage, South took quite a chance in bidding the No Trump game after North's weak-sounding club rebid. He would have made the contract, however, except for good defense by West. The crucial stage was the second trick. The fourth-best diamond 5 was the opening lead, which East won with the K. He returned the diamond 10, which drew the J from South.

If West at that stage had played his A, South would have made his game. A diamond return could have been won by South, and East would have had no more of the suit to return. When East got in later with a spade, South could have won any lead and then raced to game and an extra with three tricks in spades, four in hearts, one in diamonds and two in clubs.

When West, however, played his 3 on South's diamond at the second trick, the contract was doomed. South was able to follow that with four tricks in hearts, two in clubs and one in spades before relinquishing the lead to East. The latter then returned his last diamond to the A, whereupon West set the contract with two more diamond tricks.

East complimented his partner on the nice "hold-up" play. But the latter corrected him by saying it was a "duck," and then explaining the difference between the two.

Summer Recreation Workers To Receive Wage Increases

New wage scales for summer employes of the City Recreation Department were announced yesterday by Robert E. Pence, director.

Pence said the adjustments were made to eliminate certain inequities and also to make the pay more attractive for persons who have had experience in recreation work.

The old pay scale, Pence said, was $80 a month for playground leaders and $100 monthly for playground directors. The new scale calls for a starting rate of $80 for playground leaders, with a $10 increase for each year of experience up to a top rate of $120 a month.

Playground directors, comprised of teachers or persons with experience in recreation work, will start out at $120 a month, with a $5 increase added for each year of experience up to a top rate of $140 monthly.

It is also under consideration, Pence stated, that directors will receive an additional $10 more per month. Certain supervisors, he continued, who direct activities at more than one playground will receive $10 extra for each additional playground where they supervise play.

Persons who wish to apply for the various positions available this summer may obtain application blanks at the Recreation Department office in the City Hall, Pence said. The deadline, originally set for Friday afternoon, has been advanced to the middle of next week.

World production of sugar has increased about 600,000 tons a year for the past 40 years.

Mrs. Roeder Takes Over Phone Survey

Commissioner Lucile W. Roeder said yesterday a survey to determine if a telephone switchboard is needed in City Hall comes under the jurisdiction of the Department of Streets and Public Property — not the city engineer.

In view of that, she said she has notified the Mayor and Council she will make the survey instead of City Engineer Charles R. Nuzum.

Mrs. Roeder said she had made the request Monday during the regular council session. While not advocating such a system Mrs. Roeder said she was asking the study in the interest of economy and efficiency. Two departments recently installed flash phones in an attempt to augment and improve phone service.

Mrs. Roeder said yesterday she believes the city engineer who was ordered to make the survey by Mayor Roy W. Eves, "too busy and too high salaried a man to do such things" since the work came under the jurisdiction of her department.

She added she had sent a memo to the Mayor informing him that she would conduct the survey.

Mrs. Roeder has contacted Richard E. Harman, manager of the central office of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company here, and was informed that an expert from Baltimore would conduct the study, Mrs. Roeder said she would submit a report to the Mayor and Council based upon this study.

City Will Execute Deeds For Lots

Council on Monday authorized Mayor Roy W. Eves and City Clerk Wallace G. Ullery to execute deeds to five city properties to be sold to citizens.

The purchasers were Louis P. Soterakos, Thomas O. Swain, William B. Harris, Joseph W. Lewis and Marie K. Holzshu.

Swain's deed contains clauses that the lot cannot be used for building purposes and that the city retains the right to install a sewer through the lot. Thomas B. Finan, city solicitor, explained the purchaser wants the plot only for a garden.

Divorces Granted

Three divorces were granted yesterday in Allegany County Circuit Court. Billie Blanche Shanholtz was granted a divorce from Raymond L. Shanholtz and custody of their infant child. Alvera P. Knott was given a divorce from Paul E. Knott and custody of their infant child. Ruby Allena Morgan was divorced from Paul L. Morgan and was awarded custody of their minor child.

Flash Rain Stops Traffic, Swells Streams In District

A rain storm yesterday which only brushed Cumberland spilled over an inch of water in nearby communities, turning streams into raging avenues.

The center of the storm which hit this area about 3 p. m. struck east of Cumberland traveling over Dan's Mountain near Midland toward Cresaptown, the Tri-Towns and the Keyser area.

Observers said streams raised between 14 and 18 inches in three-quarters of an hour during the peak of the storm at 3 p. m.

At Keyser, streets were flooded as sewers backed up, unable to take the flood of water. On North Mineral and Center Streets near the Memorial Bridge that connects Keyser and McCoole, water was even with the curbs.

Along highways, the downpour was so heavy, motorists were forced to park until the wall of rain passed. Jennings Run that follows along side the McMullen Highway from Cresaptown to McCoole raised 18 inches in less than an hour.

However, just minor damage was reported in the area. Other than in inconvenience to students leaving school at Keyser and motorists forced to park, damage was kept to a minimum.

Meanwhile at Cumberland, only .17 of an inch of rain fell all day in periodic showers. The Potomac River yesterday was up about six inches according to Robert R. Golden, weather observer here.

Neither the B&O or Western Maryland Railroads' local division had any trouble due to the downpour but near Baltimore, the B&O reported a "washout" of a length of track. The Western Maryland reported two employes in Baltimore struck by lightning with only one surviving. Some other damage was reported in the Baltimore area.

State Police at Romney, W. Va., reported no damage in that area, but some streams were up "a little". Other than a "good wash" the area escaped any heavy damage.

Daily Bridge Lesson

DEFENSE CAN USE "DUCK"

MOST BRIDGE players think of the play called the "duck" as being a weapon of the declarer. It is also just as useful to the defense on certain hands. This device differs from the play called the "hold-up" in one vital particular. Whereas the hold-up consists of deferring use of your high card in order to block a hostile suit later on, the duck is a means of bringing in the establishable cards of your own side's suit.

With his tenuous diamond stoppage, South took quite a chance in bidding the No Trump game after North's weak-sounding club rebid. He would have made the contract, however, except for good defense by West. The crucial stage was the second trick. The fourth-best diamond 5 was the opening lead, which East won with the K. He returned the diamond 10, which drew the J from South.

If West at that stage had played his A, South would have made his game. A diamond return could have been won by South, and East would have had no more of the suit to return. When East got in later with a spade, South could have won any lead and then raced to game and an extra with three tricks in spades, four in hearts, one in diamonds and two in clubs.

When West, however, played his 3 on South's diamond at the second trick, the contract was doomed. South was able to follow that with four tricks in hearts, two in clubs and one in spades before relinquishing the lead to East. The latter then returned his last diamond to the A, whereupon West set the contract with two more diamond tricks.

Bobo Holloman Hurls No-Hitter Against A's

Rookie Wins First Start For Browns

27-Year-Older Walks Five Men In 6-0 Triumph

ST. LOUIS, May 6 (AP)—"Bobo" Holloman, making his first major league start, held the Philadelphia Athletics hitless here tonight to lead the St. Louis Browns to a 6-0 victory.

The 27-year-old Holloman had appeared only in three games in relief prior to tonight's game.

Holloman faced a total of 31 batters, striking out three. Only six men reached base against him, five by walks and one on his own error in the fifth inning.

He drove in three of the Browns six runs with a pair of singles.

In the ninth inning, Holloman walked the first two men to face him, but forced Dave Philley to hit into a double play for the first two outs.

Loren Babe then followed with another walk Eddie Robinson lifted a fly to Vic Wertz in right field to end the game and clinch Holloman's no-hitter.

Holloman, according to the record books, is the second pitcher to hurl a no-hitter in his major league start.

Charley Jones turned the trick for Cincinnati back in 1892.

Dog Racing Bill Vetoed

McKeldin Approves Steeplechase Bets

BALTIMORE, May 6 (AP)—Gov. McKeldin said today he thought dog racing would probably be bad for Maryland and vetoed a bill to legalize the sport — with betting — in St. Mary's County.

But, with the approval of Chairman D. Eldred Rinehart of the State Racing Commission, he signed another measure allowing bets for two days of steeplechase horse racing in Cecil County.

The wagering was legalized on timber races staged every year on the Fair Hill estate of William Du Pont Jr. Bets may be placed only on the two Saturdays after Labor Day every year.

The St. Mary's dog racing bill would have been effective only if voters of the county approved at a referendum. Even so, McKeldin said he didn't believe "such a drastic change" in state policy should be decided by any one subdivision.

"Moreover," he said, "there is, in my opinion, grave doubt that the public interest would warrant any authorization of dog racing in this state, with its possible attendant problems, however limited and regulated."

Billy Pierce Hurls Six-Hitter For Win

CHICAGO, May 6 (AP)—Lefty Billy Pierce turned back the Boston Red Sox with six hits as the Chicago White Sox registered a 6 to 2 victory before a crowd of 4,500 today.

It was the fourth victory compared to one defeat for the Sox southpaw who fanned five and walked only one. Del Wilber slammed a pinch home run with a teammate on base in the seventh inning in his first time at bat this season to spoil Pierce's bid for his second shutout.

New York Hands Cubs Seventh Straight Loss

Giants Tie Assist Mark In 8-5 Win

NEW YORK, May 6 (AP)—The New York Giants blasted six Chicago pitchers in a 15-hit attack today to hand the Cubs their seventh loss in a row 8-5, in a three-hour five-minute struggle.

A big six-run rally in the fifth inning did the trick with the help of two-hit relief pitching by Al Corwin and Hoyt Wilhelm in the last five innings.

Corwin checked the Cubs effectively after off-form Sal Maglie was removed for a pinch-hitter. When Corwin tired in the ninth, Manager Leo Durocher called on Wilhelm's knuckler to save the lead. Wilhelm, making his 12th appearance in 18 games, retired three in a row with two men on base, striking out Hank Sauer for the final out.

The Giants tied a National League record with only one assist —a throw by Maglie to double Roy Smalley on first base in the fourth inning. Three Other National League teams have had only one assist, the last being Pittsburgh in 1950. The American League record is no assists.

Disgruntled Referee Turns In License

MILWAUKEE, May 6 (AP) — Ted Jamieson, veteran Milwaukee boxing referee who was booed out of the ring here Monday night after stopping a bout between Dan Bucceroni and Wes Bascom, turned in his license today to the state athletic commission.

"If they want mayhem in the ring, I want no part of it," Jamieson said as he handed his resignation to Fred Saddy, commission secretary.

Jamieson, 58, awarded the fight to Bucceroni on a technical knockout in the seventh round of a scheduled 10-round match before 4,500 fans at the Milwaukee Arena.

Kennel Club To Hold Dog Match May 24

Judges Are Named; Club Seeks License To Award Points

The Upper Potomac Valley Kennel Club will hold its second Class A sanctioned match at Cumberland Fairgrounds Sunday, May 24, Secretary Henrietta Snyder announced lost night.

Plans for the match were completed at a meeting held by the club at the Fairgrounds at which Walter E. Corley presided. The first such event ever held locally was conducted by the Upper Potomac group last year.

No Points Awarded

No points will be awarded with this sanctioned show, officials of the club noted, although prizes and ribbons will be given winners in all classes, for best of breed, best of opposite sex and best in match. A special trophy and rosette will be awarded the dog which captures best in match honors, Phillip Carolan, chairman of the trophies and awards committee, announced.

The local kennel club is seeking a license to award American Kennel Club championship points in their sanctioned matches but must hold two such matches before a license can be issued. This will be the local club's second affair.

A special feature of this event will be the "Parade of Champions," and all persons having champion dogs are urged to enter the animals in this event, Mrs. Snyder said.

Classes to be judged will include all-breed in both sexes, puppy, open and American bred in such divisions in regard to size and color as authorized by the American Kennel Club under whose authority the local match is being held.

Judges Are Chosen

All animals entered must be pure-bred but not necessarily registered, the secretary added.

Judges chosen for the event are John R. Hess, College Park, all sporting and all toy groups known in show circles as Groups No. 1 and No. 5; Robert J. Newman, Salisbury, Pa., all hound groups, group No. 2; Joseph O'Connel, Pittsburgh, all working dogs, group No. 3; James Johnson, Baltimore, terrier groups, No. 4; and Best In Match. Mrs. Jessie Thornton, Baltimore will judge all non-sporting groups, No. 6.

Cliff Jeffries will head the show committee.

Men Unavailable, Game Is Cancelled

DANBURY, May 6 (AP)—It takes nine players to make a baseball team so the scheduled game between the University of Connecticut Branch at Hartford and Danbury Teachers College was cancelled today.

Coach Harvey Jessup of the local outfit announced shortly before noon the Hartford coach had telephoned to say that he couldn't find nine men who could play baseball. Classes and preparations for examinations were reasons, he said.

As You Were

(This is the 138th in a series of sketches with pictures of well known sport personalities of the past from the album of the Cumberland News Sports Editor. See if you can identify them by their photo.)

Thirty-nine years ago this player was the shortstop of the Cumberland Colts, champions of the Cumberland and Georges Creek League. He batted .285 in 35 games and tied for the league leadership in stolen bases with 15 pilfered hassocks to his credit.

Other members of the 1914 Cumberland team, managed by Col. Nelson W. Russler, were John and Bill Marean, "Hump" Johnson, Charley and Frank Lippold, Bill Brode, Vic May, Russell "Mike" Diehl, George "Sonny" Geatz, Hugh Markwood, Earl Fuller, Ray Schriver and Johnny Stafford. The champs won 27 and lost 8.

A graduate of Allegany County High in 1906, when the school was located on Cumberland Street, he launched his athletic career there as a football and basketball player.

He attended St. John's College, Annapolis, for two years and played football and baseball there. In those days Hughey Jennings and Wilbert "Uncle Robbie" Robinson visited St. John's in the spring and instructed the collegians on the finer points of the diamond sport. Robinson, who later became famous as manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, was particularly interested in St. John's because his son played on the team.

Robinson and Jennings were old Baltimore Orioles and Hughey piloted Detroit teams in later years. He earned the nickname "Ee-Yah" which was derived from an exclamation he delivered with fists clenched and standing on one leg while directing the Tigers from the third base coaching box.

This player shown here was an outstanding shortstop for Cumberland teams from 1907 to 1917. He also played for Jimmy McGuire at Midland one season and played independent ball at Chattanooga, Tenn. In the early days of his baseball career he was with teams managed by Henry Helker, George Jordan and John Rohman. That was prior to the opening of South End Park in 1913.

In his opinion, Nick Maddox, who pitched for Piedmont in the early 1900s and got into the World Series with the Pittsburgh Pirates in 1909, was the best to show his wares in this section. Maddox was imported from Baltimore by Frank Forester of Piedmont and was a pitching sensation in those days. He had a buggy whip delivery similar to that of Ewell Blackwell, now of the Yankees, and owned a good cross fire pitch that really baffled the batsmen.

The player pictured here was in military service in 1917 and 1918. In the early 1920s he, Bill and John Marean and some of the other "oldtimers" came back to show the youngsters "how to play ball" as members of the City Hall team, managed by W. Arnold "Doc" Gunther, and won the championship of the City League, a twilight circuit.

Can you name this player?

He is Clarence F. Schafer, of 124 Greene street. A former trust officer and secretary to President Henry Shriver, he was employed by the First National Bank for 32 years. He is still interested in baseball — major league brand — and witnessed 27 exhibition games at Al Lang Field in St. Petersburg, Fla., this spring. The photo of Schafer was taken in 1915 when he played with the Cumberland Colts.

Garver Beats Senators 8-4

Detroit Pitcher Also Belts Homer

DETROIT, May 6 (AP)—Ned Garver, working with a sore knee, belted a two-run homer and scattered 10 hits to lead Detroit to an 8-4 victory over the Washington Senators today.

In winning his second game against three defeats, the five-footten righthander needed help from the Tiger trainer in the sixth inning when his bruised cartilege popped out of place.

Garver ran off the mound looking for a bunt when his leg buckled. Jack Homel, Tiger trainer, merely ran onto the field and slipped it back into place.

Garver held the Senators to one hit after that and hit his two-run homer in the eighth inning, a line drive into the lower left field stands.

The winner of the England, Clayton, Barnes game will be matched against the winner of the Twigg-Brown game for the championship of the school on a date to be set.

Today's games at SS. Peter and Paul School and tomorrow's games to decide the winners at St. Patrick's and LaSalle will wind up this week's schedule.

The remaining games are as follows:

Cumberland area finals are to be played June 2 (Tuesday) at the four model rings at Gephart Playground, Frederick street, according to J. William Hunt, marbles tournament director. The 22 city and area champions will "knuckle down for the grand finals at 3:30 p. m.

Each school champ will be given a "Marbles Champion" T-Shirt and four movie tickets, and each of the 22 runners-up will get two movie tickets. The four semi-finalists June 2 will also get big-league baseballs autographed by "Lefty" Groves, of Baseball's Hall of Fame, who has attended the last three marbles tournaments here.

The runner-up in the finals will be awarded $5 in cash, while the champion will get a $100 week's vacation to Asbury Park, N. J. during the National Marbles Tournament June 15-19, and a chance to play for the marbles championship of the United States. All expenses are paid by the Times-News.

Local Youth Caddies For Ike's Party

James Saylor, 14, Carries Hope's Clubs

A local 14-year-old boy got the thrill of his life last weekend when he was assigned to caddie for Comedian Bob Hope in a party of four personages which included President Dwight D. Eisenhower at Burning Tree Country Club in Washington, D. C.

James Saylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Saylor, 714 Lincoln Street, and a brother of Don Saylor, assistant club pro at Burning Tree, was the lucky youth who caddied for Hope and who collected numerous famous autographs that eventful day.

Included in the party with the President, young Saylor, whose brother was formerly assistant to Carroll Boggs at the Cumberland Country Club before going to Burning Tree, stated was Sen. Stuart Symington, former secretary of the air force.

Young Jimmy, who "don't do much golfing himself," caddies at the exclusive Washington golf course during the weekends, holidays and summer vacation months.

In his collection of autographs the youngster has such famed names as Vice President Nixon, Sen. Bob Taft, Sen. George Smathers, and Jackie Westland, national amateur golf champ.

"I missed a chance to caddy for the Duke of Windsor during a recent visit to the club," Jimmy states, "because his party was held up by rain and I left for home early that day."

Commenting on President Eisenhower's golf game, Jimmy said, "he plays a pretty good game. He shot a little over par but did some very nice putting."

Max Elbin, former Cumberlander, is the Burning Tree Club golf pro.

Frick Backs Measure To Restrict Televising Of Major League Tilts

Commissioner Speaks To Senate Probers

WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP)—Baseball's spokesmen, led by Commissioner Ford Frick, told senators today the Justice Department is forcing the major leagues "to eat our young."

They appeared before a Senate Interstate Commerce Subcommittee in behalf of a bill by Sen. Edwin C. Johnson (D-Colo) to permit the major leagues to restrict broadcasting and televising of their games into the home territory of minor league clubs.

Johnson, who presided at the hearing is president of the Western League. The other senators on hand appeared as enthusiastic for the legislation as Johnson.

The major leagues used to have a rule which provided a major league game could not be broadcast or televised in the territory of another club, major or minor, without its permission.

The majors repealed the rule when the Justice Department started making like it was going to file an anti-trust suit.

Johnson's bill would permit the majors to reinstate the rule, or some other rule, without any fear of anti-trust suit.

Lou Carroll, attorney for the National League, came up with the idea that unrestricted transmission of major league games into the territory of minor league clubs was "requiring the majors to eat their young." It caught on and got repeated in one form or another many times.

The witnesses used it to point up their contention that lack of a broadcast curb threatens the existence of the little fellows of baseball because they play to empty stands while the fans sit home and follow the big games.

Wyrostek's 1,000th Hit Washed Away

PHILADELPHIA, May 6 (AP)—The first place Philadelphia Phillies lost a chance to boost their margin tonight when the rains came in the third inning and halted their game with the Cincinnati Reds.

The Phillies were leading 2-0 with one out and Del Ennis on first by virtue of a walk at that point.

The washout delayed Johnny Wyrostek's drive to rack up his 1,000th Major League hit. Johnny tripled in the first inning — and that would have done the trick, but because of the rain, the hit went down the drain.

Moore To Meet Joey Maxim In Ogden June 24

OGDEN, Utah, May 6 (AP)—Champion Archie Moore will meet Challenger Joey Maxim in a light heavyweight fight in Ogden, June 24, Copromoter Al Warden announced today.

Warden said the last obstacle was cleared when the American Telephone and Telegraph Company said it could provide equipment to televise the fight over a nationwide hookup.

The TV picture will have to move 40 miles south to Salt Lake City for cutting into the main television lines. Final approval of the fight was held up until AT&T determined it could install a transmitter to handle the telecast.

Southern Hosts UHS, Vikings At Franklin

Coach John Maiden's Catamounts have won two games and lost eight.

Two high school baseball games are on tap for today.

Southern High of Oakland plays host to University High of Morgantown in a return game while Petersburg High's Vikings oppose the Franklin High Panthers at Franklin in a Potomac Valley Conference tilt.

Southern's only loss in five starts came at the hands of UHS, the score being 19-6.

Franklin won the first game of its series from Petersburg, 2-0.

Dodgers Win, 7-3

BROOKLYN, May 6 (AP)—A two-run single by Roy Campanella followed by Gil Hodges' first home run of the season highlighted a four-run sixth inning and gave the Brooklyn Dodgers a 7-3 protested victory over the St. Louis Cardinals tonight. The triumph moved Brooklyn to within a half game of the front-running Philadelphia Phillies—who were rained out.

Riley Scores TKO

Bobo Holloman Hurls No-Hitter Against A's

Rookie Wins First Start For Browns

27-Year-Older Walks Five Men In 6-0 Triumph

ST. LOUIS, May 6 (AP)—"Bobo" Holloman, making his first major league start, held the Philadelphia Athletics hitless here tonight to lead the St. Louis Browns to a 6-0 victory.

The 27-year-old Holloman had appeared only in three games in relief prior to tonight's game.

Holloman faced a total of 31 batters, striking out three. Only six men reached base against him, five by walks and one on his own error in the fifth inning.

He drove in three of the Browns six runs with a pair of singles.

In the ninth inning, Holloman walked the first two men to face him, but forced Dave Philley to hit into a double play for the first two outs.

Loren Babe then followed with another walk Eddie Robinson lifted a fly to Vic Wertz in right field to end the game and clinch Holloman's no-hitter.

Holloman, according to the record books, is the second pitcher to hurl a no-hitter in his major league start.

Charley Jones turned the trick for Cincinnati back in 1892.

Dog Racing Bill Vetoed

McKeldin Approves Steeplechase Bets

BALTIMORE, May 6 (AP)—Gov. McKeldin said today he thought dog racing would probably be bad for Maryland and vetoed a bill to legalize the sport — with betting — in St. Mary's County.

But, with the approval of Chairman D. Eldred Rinehart of the State Racing Commission, he signed another measure allowing bets for two days of steeplechase horse racing in Cecil County.

The wagering was legalized on timber races staged every year on the Fair Hill estate of William Du Pont Jr. Bets may be placed only on the two Saturdays after Labor Day every year.

The St. Mary's dog racing bill would have been effective only if voters of the county approved at a referendum. Even so, McKeldin said he didn't believe "such a drastic change" in state policy should be decided by any one subdivision.

"Moreover," he said, "there is, in my opinion, grave doubt that the public interest would warrant any authorization of dog racing in this state, with its possible attendant problems, however limited and regulated."

Billy Pierce Hurls Six-Hitter For Win

CHICAGO, May 6 (AP)—Lefty Billy Pierce turned back the Boston Red Sox with six hits as the Chicago White Sox registered a 6 to 2 victory before a crowd of 4,500 today.

It was the fourth victory compared to one defeat for the Sox southpaw who fanned five and walked only one. Del Wilber slammed a pinch home run with a teammate on base in the seventh inning in his first time at bat this season to spoil Pierce's bid for his second shutout.

New York Hands Cubs Seventh Straight Loss

Giants Tie Assist Mark In 8-5 Win

NEW YORK, May 6 (AP)—The New York Giants blasted six Chicago pitchers in a 15-hit attack today to hand the Cubs their seventh loss in a row 8-5, in a three-hour five-minute struggle.

A big six-run rally in the fifth inning did the trick with the help of two-hit relief pitching by Al Corwin and Hoyt Wilhelm in the last five innings.

Corwin checked the Cubs effectively after off-form Sal Maglie was removed for a pinch-hitter. When Corwin tired in the ninth, Manager Leo Durocher called on Wilhelm's knuckler to save the lead. Wilhelm, making his 12th appearance in 18 games, retired three in a row with two men on base, striking out Hank Sauer for the final out.

The Giants tied a National League record with only one assist —a throw by Maglie to double Roy Smalley on first base in the fourth inning. Three Other National League teams have had only one assist, the last being Pittsburgh in 1950. The American League record is no assists.

Kennel Club To Hold Dog Match May 24

Judges Are Named; Club Seeks License To Award Points

The Upper Potomac Valley Kennel Club will hold its second Class A sanctioned match at Cumberland Fairgrounds Sunday, May 24, Secretary Henrietta Snyder announced lost night.

Plans for the match were completed at a meeting held by the club at the Fairgrounds at which Walter E. Corley presided. The first such event ever held locally was conducted by the Upper Potomac group last year.

No Points Awarded

No points will be awarded with this sanctioned show, officials of the club noted, although prizes and ribbons will be given winners in all classes, for best of breed, best of opposite sex and best in match. A special trophy and rosette will be awarded the dog which captures best in match honors, Phillip Carolan, chairman of the trophies and awards committee, announced.

The local kennel club is seeking a license to award American Kennel Club championship points in their sanctioned matches but must hold two such matches before a license can be issued. This will be the local club's second affair.

A special feature of this event will be the "Parade of Champions," and all persons having champion dogs are urged to enter the animals in this event, Mrs. Snyder said.

Classes to be judged will include all-breed in both sexes, puppy, open and American bred in such divisions in regard to size and color as authorized by the American Kennel Club under whose authority the local match is being held.

Judges Are Chosen

All animals entered must be pure-bred but not necessarily registered, the secretary added.

Judges chosen for the event are John R. Hess, College Park, all sporting and all toy groups known in show circles as Groups No. 1 and No. 5; Robert J. Newman, Salisbury, Pa., all hound groups, group No. 2; Joseph O'Connel, Pittsburgh, all working dogs, group No. 3; James Johnson, Baltimore, terrier groups, No. 4; and Best In Match. Mrs. Jessie Thornton, Baltimore will judge all non-sporting groups, No. 6.

Cliff Jeffries will head the show committee.

Men Unavailable, Game Is Cancelled

DANBURY, May 6 (AP)—It takes nine players to make a baseball team so the scheduled game between the University of Connecticut Branch at Hartford and Danbury Teachers College was cancelled today.

Coach Harvey Jessup of the local outfit announced shortly before noon the Hartford coach had telephoned to say that he couldn't find nine men who could play baseball. Classes and preparations for examinations were reasons, he said.

As You Were

(This is the 138th in a series of sketches with pictures of well known sport personalities of the past from the album of the Cumberland News Sports Editor. See if you can identify them by their photo.)

Thirty-nine years ago this player was the shortstop of the Cumberland Colts, champions of the Cumberland and Georges Creek League. He batted .285 in 35 games and tied for the league leadership in stolen bases with 15 pilfered hassocks to his credit.

Other members of the 1914 Cumberland team, managed by Col. Nelson W. Russler, were John and Bill Marean, "Hump" Johnson, Charley and Frank Lippold, Bill Brode, Vic May, Russell "Mike" Diehl, George "Sonny" Geatz, Hugh Markwood, Earl Fuller, Ray Schriver and Johnny Stafford. The champs won 27 and lost 8.

A graduate of Allegany County High in 1906, when the school was located on Cumberland Street, he launched his athletic career there as a football and basketball player.

He attended St. John's College, Annapolis, for two years and played football and baseball there. In those days Hughey Jennings and Wilbert "Uncle Robbie" Robinson visited St. John's in the spring and instructed the collegians on the finer points of the diamond sport. Robinson, who later became famous as manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, was particularly interested in St. John's because his son played on the team.

Robinson and Jennings were old Baltimore Orioles and Hughey piloted Detroit teams in later years. He earned the nickname "Ee-Yah" which was derived from an exclamation he delivered with fists clenched and standing on one leg while directing the Tigers from the third base coaching box.

This player shown here was an outstanding shortstop for Cumberland teams from 1907 to 1917. He also played for Jimmy McGuire at Midland one season and played independent ball at Chattanooga, Tenn. In the early days of his baseball career he was with teams managed by Henry Helker, George Jordan and John Rohman. That was prior to the opening of South End Park in 1913.

In his opinion, Nick Maddox, who pitched for Piedmont in the early 1900s and got into the World Series with the Pittsburgh Pirates in 1909, was the best to show his wares in this section. Maddox was imported from Baltimore by Frank Forester of Piedmont and was a pitching sensation in those days. He had a buggy whip delivery similar to that of Ewell Blackwell, now of the Yankees, and owned a good cross fire pitch that really baffled the batsmen.

The player pictured here was in military service in 1917 and 1918. In the early 1920s he, Bill and John Marean and some of the other "oldtimers" came back to show the youngsters "how to play ball" as members of the City Hall team, managed by W. Arnold "Doc" Gunther, and won the championship of the City League, a twilight circuit.

Can you name this player?

He is Clarence F. Schafer, of 124 Greene street. A former trust officer and secretary to President Henry Shriver, he was employed by the First National Bank for 32 years. He is still interested in baseball — major league brand — and witnessed 27 exhibition games at Al Lang Field in St. Petersburg, Fla., this spring. The photo of Schafer was taken in 1915 when he played with the Cumberland Colts.

Garver Beats Senators 8-4

Detroit Pitcher Also Belts Homer

DETROIT, May 6 (AP)—Ned Garver, working with a sore knee, belted a two-run homer and scattered 10 hits to lead Detroit to an 8-4 victory over the Washington Senators today.

In winning his second game against three defeats, the five-footten righthander needed help from the Tiger trainer in the sixth inning when his bruised cartilege popped out of place.

Garver ran off the mound looking for a bunt when his leg buckled. Jack Homel, Tiger trainer, merely ran onto the field and slipped it back into place.

Garver held the Senators to one hit after that and hit his two-run homer in the eighth inning, a line drive into the lower left field stands.

Rain Interrupts West Side Mibs Tournament Play

Five Players Reach Upper Brackets

Rain interrupted the West Side School marbles tournament yesterday afternoon during the semi-finals games.

Five had shot their way to the upper bracket of West Side mibsters. Wayne England, Jimmy Clayton and Donald Barnes (the latter two tied in the quarter finals) were in one ring while Kenneth Twigg and Paul E. Brown were paired in another ring when the rain forced a halt.

The winner of the England, Clayton, Barnes game will be matched against the winner of the Twigg-Brown game for the championship of the school on a date to be set.

Today's games at SS. Peter and Paul School and tomorrow's games to decide the winners at St. Patrick's and LaSalle will wind up this week's schedule.

The remaining games are as follows:

Wiley Ford, May 12; Ridgeley, May 13; Cresaptown, May 14; Corriganville, May 15; Fort Hill, May 18; LaVale, May 19; St. Mary's, May 20; Humbird, May 21; Virginia Avenue, May 22; East Side, May 25; Allegany, May 27; Penn Avenue, May 28 and Gephart, May 29.

Cumberland area finals are to be played June 2 (Tuesday) at the four model rings at Gephart Playground, Frederick street, according to J. William Hunt, marbles tournament director. The 22 city and area champions will "knuckle down for the grand finals at 3:30 p. m.

Each school champ will be given a "Marbles Champion" T-Shirt and four movie tickets, and each of the 22 runners-up will get two movie tickets. The four semi-finalists June 2 will also get big-league baseballs autographed by "Lefty" Groves, of Baseball's Hall of Fame, who has attended the last three marbles tournaments here.

The runner-up in the finals will be awarded $5 in cash, while the champion will get a $100 week's vacation to Asbury Park, N. J. during the National Marbles Tournament June 15-19, and a chance to play for the marbles championship of the United States. All expenses are paid by the Times-News.

Local Youth Caddies For Ike's Party

James Saylor, 14, Carries Hope's Clubs

A local 14-year-old boy got the thrill of his life last weekend when he was assigned to caddie for Comedian Bob Hope in a party of four personages which included President Dwight D. Eisenhower at Burning Tree Country Club in Washington, D. C.

James Saylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Saylor, 714 Lincoln Street, and a brother of Don Saylor, assistant club pro at Burning Tree, was the lucky youth who caddied for Hope and who collected numerous famous autographs that eventful day.

Included in the party with the President, young Saylor, whose brother was formerly assistant to Carroll Boggs at the Cumberland Country Club before going to Burning Tree, stated was Sen. Stuart Symington, former secretary of the air force.

Young Jimmy, who "don't do much golfing himself," caddies at the exclusive Washington golf course during the weekends, holidays and summer vacation months.

In his collection of autographs the youngster has such famed names as Vice President Nixon, Sen. Bob Taft, Sen. George Smathers, and Jackie Westland, national amateur golf champ.

"I missed a chance to caddy for the Duke of Windsor during a recent visit to the club," Jimmy states, "because his party was held up by rain and I left for home early that day."

Commenting on President Eisenhower's golf game, Jimmy said, "he plays a pretty good game. He shot a little over par but did some very nice putting."

Max Elbin, former Cumberlander, is the Burning Tree Club golf pro.

Frick Backs Measure To Restrict Televising Of Major League Tilts

Commissioner Speaks To Senate Probers

WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP)—Baseball's spokesmen, led by Commissioner Ford Frick, told senators today the Justice Department is forcing the major leagues "to eat our young."

They appeared before a Senate Interstate Commerce Subcommittee in behalf of a bill by Sen. Edwin C. Johnson (D-Colo) to permit the major leagues to restrict broadcasting and televising of their games into the home territory of minor league clubs.

Johnson, who presided at the hearing is president of the Western League. The other senators on hand appeared as enthusiastic for the legislation as Johnson.

The major leagues used to have a rule which provided a major league game could not be broadcast or televised in the territory of another club, major or minor, without its permission.

The majors repealed the rule when the Justice Department started making like it was going to file an anti-trust suit.

"Johnson's bill would permit the majors to reinstate the rule, or some other rule, without any fear of anti-trust suit.

Lou Carroll, attorney for the National League, came up with the idea that unrestricted transmission of major league games into the territory of minor league clubs was "requiring the majors to eat their young." It caught on and got repeated in one form or another many times.

The witnesses used it to point up their contention that lack of a broadcast curb threatens the existence of the little fellows of baseball because they play to empty stands while the fans sit home and follow the big games.

Wyrostek's 1,000th Hit Washed Away

PHILADELPHIA, May 6 (AP)—The first place Philadelphia Phillies lost a chance to boost their margin tonight when the rains came in the third inning and halted their game with the Cincinnati Reds.

The Phillies were leading 2-0 with one out and Del Ennis on first by virtue of a walk at that point.

The washout delayed Johnny Wyrostek's drive to rack up his 1,000th Major League hit. Johnny tripled in the first inning — and that would have done the trick, but because of the rain, the hit went down the drain.

Terps Win Meet

COLLEGE PARK, Md., May 6 (AP)—Maryland scored ten firsts to down Georgetown 93-38 today in a dual track meet which saw Georgetown's Charlie Capozzoli take the two mile run in 9:4.2, a new track record and his best time yet.

Moore To Meet Joey Maxim In Ogden June 24

OGDEN, Utah, May 6 (AP)—Champion Archie Moore will meet Challenger Joey Maxim in a light heavyweight fight in Ogden, June 24, Copromoter Al Warden announced today.

Warden said the last obstacle was cleared when the American Telephone and Telegraph Company said it could provide equipment to televise the fight over a nationwide hookup.

The TV picture will have to move 40 miles south to Salt Lake City for cutting into the main television lines. Final approval of the fight was held up until AT&T determined it could install a transmitter to handle the telecast.

Potomac State Plays Wesleyan

Southern Hosts UHS, Vikings At Franklin

Potomac State College will play its 11th game of the season today when it meets West Virginia Wesleyan College at Buckhannon.

Coach John Maiden's Catamounts have won two games and lost eight.

Two high school baseball games are on tap for today.

Southern High of Oakland plays host to University High of Morgantown in a return game while Petersburg High's Vikings oppose the Franklin High Panthers at Franklin in a Potomac Valley Conference tilt.

Southern's only loss in five starts came at the hands of UHS, the score being 19-6.

Franklin won the first game of its series from Petersburg, 2-0.

Dodgers Win, 7-3

BROOKLYN, May 6 (AP)—A two-run single by Roy Campanella followed by Gil Hodges' first home run of the season highlighted a four-run sixth inning and gave the Brooklyn Dodgers a 7-3 protested victory over the St. Louis Cardinals tonight. The triumph moved Brooklyn to within a half game of the front-running Philadelphia Phillies—who were rained out.

Riley Scores TKO

Derby Victor Was Bought By Mistake

Dark Star Kept, Owner Liked Him

CINCINNATI, May 6 (AP)—Harry F. Guggenheim bought his Kentucky Derby winner, Dark Star, by mistake, according to Douglass M. Allen, Cincinnati Times-Star columnist.

Allen said he learned all about it when he telephoned Warner L. Jones, Jr., breeder of Dark Star, at his home near Goshen, Ky., to congratulate him.

Jones, an old friend of Allen, was not available, but Mrs. Jones, the former Harriet Seelbac, talked about last Saturday's Derby winner.

"Anything unusual about Dark Star?" Allen asked.

"Nothing except that Capt. Guggenheim bought him by mistake," was the reply. "We had two brown colts the same age that he looked at. He picked out one, but picked up the other.

"When we discovered it, we offered to let him switch, but he said 'Never mind, I've got this one now and I kind of like him.'

"The other was Great Mogul, and Capt. Guggenheim, actually paying for him, paid more than we were asking for Dark Star.

Dark Star's sensational victory in the Derby last Saturday supported Guggenheim's faith in a horse he didn't buy, but got by a fluke.

Snead Claims His Golf Game Is "Over Par"

Slammer To Defend Greenbrier Crown

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., May 6 (AP)—Sam Snead was singing the blues today in advance of defending his Greenbrier Open golf title starting tomorrow.

The mountaineer stylist reported his left hand is "not too good and I don't plan to do too well" in the 72-hole grind over his home course.

Snead complained two weeks ago that an old hand injury was bothering him and he quit the tournament trail after the Tournament of Champions at Las Vegas, Nev.

The slammer broke a bone in the hand two years ago.

He reported his practice rounds since returning here "haven't been too good" over the Old White Course.

Rained On Course

It rained on the course yesterday, but Snead felt it would "play pretty fast." He guessed that a score of 263 or 264 would cop the $2,000 first prize.

By coincidence, perhaps, those are the exact scores Snead posted to win the past two tournaments. Par for the four rounds is 280.

Par busting has been habitual since the Greenbrier was made a 72-hole affair in 1949. Cary Middlecoff beat it by 15 strokes that year to win and the next year Ben Hogan played the 6,368-yard layout like it was a miniature golf course.

It took Hogan only 259 strokes to whip around, 21 less than the regulation total. It tied the PGA record for 72 holes on a par 70 course.

Hogan is back again, apparently sharper than ever despite his infrequent competition. He made his 1953 tournament debut in the Masters April 9-12 with a record breaking 14-under par 274, five strokes better than anybody else had done in the 17-year-old tournament.

The cucumber-cool craftsman followed this last Sunday with victory in the Pan-American Open.

Shared With Amateurs

While the Snead-Hogan battle will hold the spotlight, there are 40 other dangerous pros in the field. Past U. S. Open champions in addition to Hogan are Lew Worsham and Billie Burke.

There also are such topnotch shotmakers as Jack Burke Jr., Pete Cooper, Jimmy Demaret, Doug Ford, George Fazio, Vic Ghezzi, Clayton Heafner, Claude Harmon, Mike Turnesa and Ed Gurgol. The international touch will be provided by Peter Thompson, Australian Open champion.

After the first 36 holes Thursday and Friday, the pros will share the course the next two days with 125 amateurs. These include Bob Hope, The Duke of Windsor and "names" from the industrial, political and social world.

The last star in the United States flag was added in 1912 when Arizona was admitted to the Union.

Native Dancer, Dark Star Prep For Preakness Race

Both Horses To Run In Preliminary Races

By JOHN CHANDLER

NEW YORK, May 6 (AP)—Derby winner Dark Star joined Native Dancer at Belmont Park today where their trainers mapped plans for the strategy leading up to their next meeting in the $100,000 Preakness at Baltimore May 23.

Horsemen still were buzzing over the dramatic defeat handed Alfred Vanderbilt's Dancer as the Cain Hoy stable's Derby hero arrived by train from Louisville.

"Our colt shipped here in fine shape," said Ed Hayward, who trains the Cain Hoy stable for Harry F. Gugenheim.

"It looks as if we'll make Dark Star's next start the Preakness Prep." The Prep, over the mile and one sixteenth distance, is May 18. The Preakness, middle gem in the Derby-Preakness-Belmont triple crown, is a mile and three-sixteenths, a sixteenth less than the Derby.

Native Dancer unbeaten in 11 races until Dark Star edged him by a head at Churchill Downs, galloped around Belmont's big mile and one half track this morning. His next start is expected to be the $25,000 Withers Mile at Belmont May 16, then the Preakness.

Trainer Bill Winfrey, still disappointed by the Dancer's loss, refused to be drawn into the controversy between Jockeys Eric Guerin and Al Popara, the latter aboard Money Broker who bumped Native Dancer on the first turn Saturday.

"The Derby is history and we have the Preakness on our hands now," said Winfrey.

He had read where Guerin claimed the bumping by Money Broker "was no accident," and of Popara's reply that it "definitely was not intentional."

"I hope for Popara's sake that it was accidental. He has to live with himself," Winfrey declared.

Derby Victor Was Bought By Mistake

Dark Star Kept, Owner Liked Him

CINCINNATI, May 6 (AP)—Harry F. Guggenheim bought his Kentucky Derby winner, Dark Star, by mistake, according to Douglass M. Allen, Cincinnati Times-Star columnist.

Allen said he learned all about it when he telephoned Warner L. Jones, Jr., breeder of Dark Star, at his home near Goshen, Ky., to congratulate him.

Jones, an old friend of Allen, was not available, but Mrs. Jones, the former Harriet Seelbac, talked about last Saturday's Derby winner.

"Anything unusual about Dark Star?" Allen asked.

"Nothing except that Capt. Guggenheim bought him by mistake," was the reply. "We had two brown colts the same age that he looked at. He picked out one, but picked up the other.

"When we discovered it, we offered to let him switch, but he said 'Never mind, I've got this one now and I kind of like him.'

"The other was Great Mogul, and Capt. Guggenheim, actually paying for him, paid more than we were asking for Dark Star.

Dark Star's sensational victory in the Derby last Saturday supported Guggenheim's faith in a horse he didn't buy, but got by a fluke.

Snead Claims His Golf Game Is "Over Par"

Slammer To Defend Greenbrier Crown

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., May 6 (AP)—Sam Snead was singing the blues today in advance of defending his Greenbrier Open golf title starting tomorrow.

The mountaineer stylist reported his left hand is "not too good and I don't plan to do too well" in the 72-hole grind over his home course.

Snead complained two weeks ago that an old hand injury was bothering him and he quit the tournament trail after the Tournament of Champions at Las Vegas, Nev.

The slammer broke a bone in the hand two years ago.

He reported his practice rounds since returning here "haven't been too good" over the Old White Course.

Rained On Course

It rained on the course yesterday, but Snead felt if would "play pretty fast." He guessed that a score of 263 or 264 would cop the $2,000 first prize.

By coincidence, perhaps, those are the exact scores Snead posted to win the past two tournaments. Par for the four rounds is 280.

Par busting has been habitual since the Greenbrier was made a 72-hole affair in 1949. Cary Middlecoff beat it by 15 strokes that year to win and the next year Ben Hogan played the 6,368-yard layout like it was a miniature golf course.

It took Hogan only 259 strokes to whip around, 21 less than the regulation total. It tied the PGA record for 72 holes on a par 70 course.

Hogan is back again, apparently sharper than ever despite his infrequent competition. He made his 1953 tournament debut in the Masters April 9-12 with a record breaking 14-under par 274, five strokes better than anybody else had done in the 17-year-old tournament.

The cucumber-cool craftsman followed this last Sunday with victory in the Pan-American Open.

Shared With Amateurs

While the Snead-Hogan battle will hold the spotlight, there are 40 other dangerous pros in the field. Past U. S. Open champions in addition to Hogan are Lew Worsham and Billie Burke.

There also are such topnotch shotmakers as Jack Burke Jr., Pete Cooper, Jimmy Demaret, Doug Ford, George Fazio, Vic Ghezzi, Clayton Heafner, Claude Harmon, Mike Turnesa and Ed Gurgol. The international touch will be provided by Peter Thompson, Australian Open champion.

After the first 36 holes Thursday and Friday, the pros will share the course the next two days with 125 amateurs. These include Bob Hope, The Duke of Windsor and "names" from the industrial, political and social world.

The last star in the United States flag was added in 1912 when Arizona was admitted to the Union.

Native Dancer, Dark Star Prep For Preakness Race

Both Horses To Run In Preliminary Races

By JOHN CHANDLER

NEW YORK, May 6 (AP)—Derby winner Dark Star joined Native Dancer at Belmont Park today where their trainers mapped plans for the strategy leading up to their next meeting in the $100,000 Preakness at Baltimore May 23.

Horsemen still were buzzing over the dramatic defeat handed Alfred Vanderbilt's Dancer as the Cain Hoy stable's Derby hero arrived by train from Louisville.

"Our colt shipped here in fine shape," said Ed Hayward, who trains the Cain Hoy stable for Harry F. Gugenheim.

"It looks as if we'll make Dark Star's next start the Preakness Prep." The Prep, over the mile and one sixteenth distance, is May 18. The Preakness, middle gem in the Derby-Preakness-Belmont triple crown, is a mile and three-sixteenths, a sixteenth less than the Derby.

Native Dancer unbeaten in 11 races until Dark Star edged him by a head at Churchill Downs, galloped around Belmont's big mile and one half track this morning. His next start is expected to be the $25,000 Withers Mile at Belmont May 16, then the Preakness.

Trainer Bill Winfrey, still disappointed by the Dancer's loss, refused to be drawn into the controversy between Jockeys Eric Guerin and Al Popara, the latter aboard Money Broker who bumped Native Dancer on the first turn Saturday.

"The Derby is history and we have the Preakness on our hands now," said Winfrey.

He had read where Guerin claimed the bumping by Money Broker "was no accident," and of Popara's reply that it "definitely was not intentional."

"I hope for Popara's sake that it was accidental. He has to live with himself," Winfrey declared.

Robbery Suspect Found Insane Seeks Release From Institution

BALTIMORE, May 6 (AP)—Dolfi Salinger, found legally insane and therefore innocent of armed robbery in a famous jury case of 1950, has been granted permission to plead for his release from a mental institution.

Judge John T. Tucker said yesterday there is a possibilty the hearing may be held sometime this month if the court calendar is otherwise clear but no date was set.

Salinger's case attracted wide attention in legal and psychiatric circles when a Baltimore Criminal Court jury set a precedent by finding him insane.

He was accused of armed robbery and the theft of eight pistols from a Baltimore home. Upon his acquittal he was ordered confined to a mental hospital.

In previous cases defendants were held legally sane if they knew right from wrong and realized they would be punished if they did wrong.

Psychiatrists' reports pictured Salinger as a person who could make such a distinction but was emotionally incapable of adhering to the right.

Salinger was committed to Spring Grove State Hospital after his trial by Judge Joseph Sherbow. Sherbow later refused Salinger's request for a sanity hearing which might lead to his release from the hospital. The late Judge Robert France later turned down another request.

Salinger still later wrote to former Chief Judge Charles Markell of the Maryland Court of Appeals, asking for help, and to Markell's successor, Judge Simon E. Sobeloff.

Even if the sanity hearing results in a finding that Salinger is now sane, his release still would require approval by a judge in Criminal Court, from which he was committed to the institution.

DETROIT—(INS)—One glowing endorsement which the Ford Motor Company never got around to using, in the half century of activity which is being celebrated this week, was a letter to the founder from John Dillinger, bandit.

"Hello old pal," Dillinger took time to write on May 16, 1934, when one of the greatest manhunts in our history was in full swing. "Arrived here at 10 a. m. today. Would like to drop in to see you.

"You have a wonderful car. It's a treat to drive one. Your slogan should be drive a Ford and watch the other cars fall behind you. I can make any other car take a Ford's dust. Bye-bye. John Dillinger."

Two months later Dillinger was stopped by a red dress — and a number of steel slugs.

The Dillinger letter was released today by the company's archives department, set up in the gloomy gray fortress which the motor pioneer built in rustic Dearborn in 1915. The man who once testified on a witness stand, "History is the bunk," left 5,000,000 documents for future generations to mull over.

Most of his letters were placed in huge boxes and put aside as each box was filled. The job of classifying them has taken six years. And there are surprises galore. One researcher, noticing a letter that had popped out of a ruptured letter box, found in it a facet of Ford's patience with his critics.

Note From McCormick

It was a note from Col. R. R. McCormick, publisher of the Chicago Tribune. In 1919 a McCormick editorial called Ford "an anarchistic enemy of the nation" who opposed Pershing's 1916 military expedition into Mexico and would not hold open jobs for Ford employes who enlisted.

Ford sued and won a 6-cent judgement against the publisher. The McCormick letter, which came to light after Ford's death at 83, was written July 30, 1941. The men shared the same birthdate. Commenting on that fact, McCormick wrote:

"I regret the editorial we published about you so many years ago. I only wonder why the idea never occured to me before. It was the product of the war psychology which is bringing out so many similar expressions today.

"I am not planning to publish this myself, but you are perfectly welcome to use it in any way you wish."

Ford never even told Mrs. Ford he had received it.

In the early days of the company, Ford sometimes received offers of goods for his cars, instead of money. One letter from the archives was from a man who in 1908 offered ". . . 448 gallons fine good O.K. bourbon whisky." Ford, a vigorous teetotaler, rejected the deal.

Sometime this year the company will make its 45,000,000th unit. But once it knew hard times. On July 10, 1903, James C. Couzens, secretary of the infant company, wrote 28 checks to meet the June bills. One was for $9.60 for tires. When the last check was written the Ford Motor Company had $223.65 left in the bank.

But the next day a Detroit carpenter named Albert Strelow invested $5,000 in the company, and five days later a doctor named Pfening bought the first Ford car—for $850.

Carpenter Invests $5,000

By the end of the first year the company paid a 68 per cent dividend.

Ford had 12 stockholders. Ford himself first owned 25 and one-half per cent of the stock, in return for his patents. Strelow sold his five per cent in 1907 to Couzens for $25,000 and invested it in a British Columbia gold mine which went broke. He later worked as a laborer for Ford.

Ford bought out Attorneys Horace Rackham and John W. Anderson, each of whom had a 5 per cent bit, bought for $5,000, for $12,500,000 each. That was in 1919.

John S. Gray was the company's first president. He died in 1906. Ford bought out his heirs' 10 and one-half per cent in 1919 for $26,250,000. Charles H. Bennet of Plymouth, Mich., only surviving charter stockholder, sold his 1/20th interest in 1907 for $35,000. So did Vernon C. Fry.

John F. and Horace E. Dodge, each of whom had a 1/20th interest, held on until 1919 and got $12,500,000 apiece. Alex Y. Malcolmson, who had as much at the start as Ford himself—25 and one-half per cent—sold out for $175,000 in 1906. So did Charles J. Woodall, a one per cent owner, who got $7,000.

Couzens, later U. S. senator, bowed out finally for $29,308,858, in 1919. During his years with the company he had received an additional $5,000,000 in dividends.

Perhaps the unluckiest man of all was Dr. Frederick E. Zumstein of Detroit. He tried to press $500 on Ford when the genius needed it very badly. But Ford shook his head. "That would make 13 of us," he said.

By 1919 Dr. Zumstein's five shares would have been worth $1,755,000.

Pardon me while I sit down a moment.

The following committees were appointed:

Jury Told Stands Built Stronger Than Required

BALTIMORE, May 6 (AP)—Edwin P. Coronati, contractor and amusements specialist from New Jersey, testified today some stands he built for a Sonja Henie ice show here in March of 1952 were almost twice as strong as the city required.

A section of seats collapsed, injuring 250 to 300 persons in a screaming, flailing welter of spectators. Coronati testified in a test case to determine the basic issues in about 400 suits asking more than 5 million dollars in damages.

Coronati told the jury he built the stands in the Fifth Regiment Armory to bear at least 90 pounds of weight per square foot.

The Baltimore regulation for such stands, he said, is 50 pounds to a square foot. He said he built them to 90 pounds because 80 is the regulation in most cities.

A city inspector suggested additional bracing the afternoon before the opening night show, Coronati said, and he put in 41 more braces.

Vincent Green of Bayside, N.Y., box office manager for Miss Henie's ice show corporation, testified Coronati told him before the show that about 600 chairs had not been delivered.

He said he pulled between 300 and 400 tickets out of box office slots for sections where they were supposed to be and hoped to find other locations for ticket holders who could find no chairs.

The blonde skating star was absent as the trial droned through its eighth day. Her troupe starts an appearance in Paris Saturday.

First Known 'Doodle' Believed Unearthed

WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP)—What may be history's first known "doodle" has been unearthed in ancient Mycenae. It's a figure on a slant-eyed dancing girl scratched on the back of a clay tablet, presumably by a pre-occupied Greek businessman of the Bronze Age.

This was reported today by the National Geographic Society after one of its staffers explored a recent copy of a British publication called "The Geographical Magazine."

The magazine, in an article signed by one Freya Stark, told of recent archeological discoveries in the Mycenaean ruins on the Greek Peloponnesus, including some 3,000-year-old clay tablets which "are the first ever to be found in a private house."

Two Navy Deserters Escape From Guard

BALTIMORE, May 6 (AP) — Two Navy deserters being held for military police took advantage of their guard stepping to a washroom today to escape from the Post Office building.

The Navy Recruiting Office identied them as Robert E. Homan, 26-year-old deserter from Bainbridge, and Frederick Robinson, 23, of Baltimore, a deserter from the Naval Receiving Station at Washington.

Baltimore police were asked to join the search. The men, picked up by the FBI yesterday, were awaiting military police to take them to Washington.

H. S. Bissonet, commanding officer of the recruiting section, said handcuffs were removed from the prisoners to allow them to eat.

68-Foot Chinese Junk Arrives At Annapolis

ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 6 (AP)—The 68-foot Chinese Junk Amoy, powered by an auxiliary engine because of low-speed winds, slipped into the Naval Academy's Santee Docks today for a one-week visit.

The red-sailed vessel, on loan to the Navy for a series of tests, has been sailing out of Hampton Roads, Va., and in the Chesapeake Bay for the past several weeks. It left Galesville this morning for the trip to Annapolis.

Owned and captained by Alfred Nilson, the Amoy has a hull constructed of aromatic camphor wood.

Lobbyist For Bill To Slash Bank Taxes Paid $30,000

ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 6 (AP)—The Associated Mutual Savings Banks of Baltimore reported to the Secretary of State's office today that it paid a lobbyist fee of $30,000 to Attorney Joseph M. Wyatt for work during the 1953 Legislature.

The association said Wyatt, South Baltimore political leader, was paid $30,000 counsel fees and another $266.99 for expenses.

Wyatt helped push a controversial bank-tax bill through the General Assembly which would reduce the state tax on mutual savings banks.

Gov. McKeldin put off until tomorrow his decision on whether to sign the measure into law.

Savings banks—there are seven in Baltimore City and one in Montgomery County—now pay an annual tax of 25 cents on each $100 of deposits. The bill would reduce this by 10 cents in the next five years.

Officials of Baltimore, which stands eventually to lose about $450,000 a year if the bill is enacted, have asked the governor to veto the measure.

Wyatt, former Chief Magistrate of Baltimore Traffic Court, also collected $1,000 from the Maryland Association of Insurance Agents for lobbying at the Legislature.

Other lobbyist fees and expenses reported today, the last day for filing them, included:

The Maryland Industrial Union Council-CIO reported it paid $441.95 to Charles A. Della for transportation and meals.

Fathers' Absence Tends To Make Sons Effeminate

LOS ANGELES, May 6 (AP)—Long absences of fathers from home, as in time of war, have helped to make their sons more effeminate than they otherwise would have been, a widely known child psychiatrist said today.

The increased effeminancy of the younger generation is responsible to some extent for the amount of juvenile delinquency in this country, he added.

Boy babies need their fathers as patterns for the development of their masculine traits, Dr. Leo H. Bartemeier of Wayne University Medical School, Detroit, told a press conference at the American Psychiatric Association meeting.

In the absence of fathers, boys necessarily have to use their mothers as a model, and this results in the assumption of feminine ways, the psychiatrist asserted.

Jobless Pay Ruling Upheld

Associate Judge Morgan C. Harris yesterday filed an opinion and order in Allegany County Circuit Court affirming the action of the Maryland Employment Security Board in deciding that a former employe of Potomac Motors, Inc., did have the right to quit his job and then collect unemployment benefits.

In his opinion, Judge Harris noted that the claimant, Owen J. Rice, had worked for Potomac Motors for about two years prior to July 28, 1952. Until March, 1952, he performed general duties of bookkeeper and was paid $50 a week plus a share of notary public fees.

After the office manager, earning $75 a week, left the firm in March, 1952, the claimant contends that he was given the job of office manager to perform in addition to his other duties and was told by his employer that he "would get the same deal as the other fellow." From March until July 28, 1952, the last day he worked, he received two raises, bringing his salary to $54 at the time of separation. He did not discuss the salary proposition with his employer until July 28 and then was told he would not get $75 per week, after which he quit.

The Employment Security Board concluded that Rice voluntarily left work without good cause and denied benefits for him. His attorney, Donald W. Mason, then appealed and Judge Harris heard the appeal last Wednesday. James N. Phillips served as attorney for the Employment Security Board.

Troopers Asked To Keep Eye On Clarksburg Fight

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., May 6 (AP)—One of Clarksburg's two city managers today appealed to the governor for more state troopers to keep an eye on the struggle of two factions for control of the municipal government.

J. Frank Wiseman wired the governor in Charleston:

"Being particularly concerned with the general public welfare, it appears to me the Clarksburg police department is in a state of ineptness."

Clarksburg has two chiefs of police at the moment, as well as two city managers. It also had two municipal police judges, two city clerks, and two city attorneys.

The situation came about when the new 5-4 Republican majority on the city council named A. Page Lockard to take Wiseman's place at a riotous session Monday night.

It takes six votes to depose a city official, however.

"I do not consider that any successor to me has legally been appointed," Wiseman wired the governor.

Lockard and one of the Republican councilman broke a lock on the door of the city manager's office yesterday and moved in while Wiseman was out of town.

Lockard found Wiseman at the city manager's desk when he arrived at City Hall this morning.

"I greet you as any other citizen and taxpayer of the city of Clarksburg," said Wiseman.

Chairs were found for Lockard and a secretary, but no desk space.

Everytime Wiseman stepped out of the office, Lockard took the chair at the city manager's desk.

Jury Told Stands Built Stronger Than Required

BALTIMORE, May 6 (AP)—Edwin P. Coronati, contractor and amusements specialist from New Jersey, testified today some stands he built for a Sonja Henie ice show here in March of 1952 were almost twice as strong as the city required.

A section of seats collapsed, injuring 250 to 300 persons in a screaming, flailing welter of spectators. Coronati testified in a test case to determine the basic issues in about 400 suits asking more than 5 million dollars in damages.

Coronati told the jury he built the stands in the Fifth Regiment Armory to bear at least 90 pounds of weight per square foot.

The Baltimore regulation for such stands, he said, is 50 pounds to a square foot. He said he built them to 90 pounds because 80 is the regulation in most cities.

A city inspector suggested additional bracing the afternoon before the opening night show, Coronati said, and he put in 41 more braces.

Vincent Green of Bayside, N.Y., box office manager for Miss Henie's ice show corporation, testified Coronati told him before the show that about 600 chairs had not been delivered.

He said he pulled between 300 and 400 tickets out of box office slots for sections where they were supposed to be and hoped to find other locations for ticket holders who could find no chairs.

The blonde skating star was absent as the trial droned through its eighth day. Her troupe starts an appearance in Paris Saturday.

First Known 'Doodle' Believed Unearthed

WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP)—What may be history's first known "doodle" has been unearthed in ancient Mycenae. It's a figure on a slant-eyed dancing girl scratched on the back of a clay tablet, presumably by a pre-occupied Greek businessman of the Bronze Age.

This was reported today by the National Geographic Society after one of its staffers explored a recent copy of a British publication called "The Geographical Magazine."

The magazine, in an article signed by one Freya Stark, told of recent archeological discoveries in the Mycenaean ruins on the Greek Peloponnesus, including some 3,000-year-old clay tablets which "are the first ever to be found in a private house."

Two Navy Deserters Escape From Guard

BALTIMORE, May 6 (AP) — Two Navy deserters being held for military police took advantage of their guard stepping to a washroom today to escape from the Post Office building.

The Navy Recruiting Office identified them as Robert E. Homan, 26-year-old deserter from Bainbridge, and Frederick Robinson, 23, of Baltimore, a deserter from the Naval Receiving Station at Washington.

Baltimore police were asked to join the search. The men, picked up by the FBI yesterday, were awaiting military police to take them to Washington.

H. S. Bissonet, commanding officer of the recruiting section, said handcuffs were removed from the prisoners to allow them to eat.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, May 6 (INS)—At the Danny Kaye party I sat and talked with Billy Wilder for a long time. Billy is such an honest, forthright person that I always enjoy talking with him.

He told me that he's moving back to Paramount where he was so happy for so long, and that he'll direct "Sabrina Fair," Sam Taylor's play.

Billy has Audrey Hepburn for the lead, and he did a rave about her—says she is sure to be the most discussed actress of the year after "Roman Holiday" is released. I can't wait until the picture is ready for me to see. I have heard so much about it.

Van Johnson is dying to play the tough Lt. Maryk in "Caine Mutiny"— and this I got straight from Van when he dropped over to see me on his return from Las Vegas. Stanley Kramer wants him, too.

"It would be an off-beat thing for me to play Maryk, who takes command of the ship when he thinks the captain has blown his top."

Despite his big success with his night club act, Van doesn't want to sing and dance all his life.

Of course, there's the little matter of Columbia borrowing him from MGM.

John Carroll, for a time, was so busy befriending his pals who were having trouble at home (Mario Lanza was his house guest for a while, so was Dale Robertson) he hardly had time for movies.

A very good singer, himself, as he proved in his night club act, John returns to Republic to star in "10,000 Singers." The story is about an opera star and an American heiress in Milan, and the picture may be filmed there. I say John "returns" to Republic because he was under contract to the Little Valley Studio before going to—and leaving—MGM.

Katherine Albert and Dale Euson, two writers who never seem to be idle, wrote "10,000 Singers."

Biff Elliott, the newcomer, who zoomed to stardom in his first role in "I, the Jury," lives at the Chateau Marmont where Garbo resides incognito.

The other morning, Biff, in his work clothes, was in the garage when G. G. got in a spot driving her car out.

"Young man," called Garbo, evidently thinking he was an attendant, "come here and get my car out for me."

Biff, as nervous as an autograph fan, did as he was asked—but was left flabbergasted when Greta slipped a dollar into his hand. He framed it.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Jane Withers and Bill Moss have been talking over the telephone every day and I'm glad to say it looks very favorable for a reconciliation.

Jack Arnold, director of "It Came From Outer Space," a three-D wonder, was called out of its preview—his wife had been rushed to the hospital for the birth of their first child.

Look to see Alexis Smith make her debut as a ballerina before the year is over. She's been studying for years.

This I call a wonderful deed. Jim Wakely drove 500 miles to Chico to do a one-day benefit for a little girl suffering from leukemia.

J. Carroll Naish is doing shows for the Army and Navy hospitals in Key West between scenes on "Twelve Mile Reef."

Gale Storm, one of the very nicest girls in our town, is such a hit on "My Litfle Margie" TV show that now she's been offered a big salary by the Thunderbird Night Club in Las Vegas.

At long last Lauren Bacall is off to meet the Wizard of Oz—I mean Humphrey Bogart, (the hot weather's got me down). She was accompanied by Richard Burton's wife, Sybil.

In the old days when I first came to Hollywood, Phil Goldstone was one of the few independent producers, and a very successful one. Now Phil has made a fortune in real estate and has recently sold a business block in Palm Springs for $400,000.

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

PRESENT ENTERTAINMENT—A program of readings, music and dramatics featured the entertainment at the annual fellowship dinner of the Philathea Bible Class of Grace Baptist Church. Two Children Hurt In Auto Accidents

Two small girls were injured here Tuesday in separate auto accidents.

Terry Robison, five, of 114 South Smallwood Street, was reported by police to have walked into the rear left fender of a car driven by Richard H. Rice, Baltimore Pike, at the corner of Baltimore and Liberty Streets about 4:30 p. m. Officer Richard E. Lashley, who investigated, said the child was not seriously hurt but was taken to Memorial Hospital for treatment. In the other mishap, Jean Elizabeth Taylor, also five, of Park Heights ran into the path of an auto driven by Cecil L. Schriver, 530 Centre Street. The accident occurred about 6:30 p. m. near her home. The child was treated at Sacred Heart Hospital for a nose injury. Attaches said she will return today for an X-ray. No charges were preferred.

Baboons have become a pest in parts of Africa where large meat-eating animals which used to kill them off have been eliminated or reduced in numbers.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, May 6 (INS)—At the Danny Kaye party I sat and talked with Billy Wilder for a long time. Billy is such an honest, forthright person that I always enjoy talking with him.

He told me that he's moving back to Paramount where he was so happy for so long, and that he'll direct "Sabrina Fair," Sam Taylor's play.

Billy has Audrey Hepburn for the lead, and he did a rave about her—says she is sure to be the most discussed actress of the year after "Roman Holiday" is released. I can't wait until the picture is ready for me to see. I have heard so much about it.

Van Johnson is dying to play the tough Lt. Maryk in "Caine Mutiny"— and this I got straight from Van when he dropped over to see me on his return from Las Vegas. Stanley Kramer wants him, too.

"It would be an off-beat thing for me to play Maryk, who takes command of the ship when he thinks the captain has blown his top."

Despite his big success with his night club act, Van doesn't want to sing and dance all his life.

Of course, there's the little matter of Columbia borrowing him from MGM.

John Carroll, for a time, was so busy befriending his pals who were having trouble at home (Mario Lanza was his house guest for a while, so was Dale Robertson) he hardly had time for movies.

A very good singer, himself, as he proved in his night club act, John returns to Republic to star in "10,000 Singers." The story is about an opera star and an American heiress in Milan, and the picture may be filmed there. I say John "returns" to Republic because he was under contract to the Little Valley Studio before going to—and leaving—MGM.

Katherine Albert and Dale Eu-son, two writers who never seem to be idle, wrote "10,000 Singers."

Biff Elliott, the newcomer, who zoomed to stardom in his first role in "I, the Jury," lives at the Chateau Marmont where Garbo resides incognito.

The other morning, Biff, in his work clothes, was in the garage when G. G. got in a spot driving her car out.

"Young man," called Garbo, evidently thinking he was an attendant, "come here and get my car out for me."

Biff, as nervous as an autograph fan, did as he was asked—but was left flabbergasted when Greta slipped a dollar into his hand. He framed it.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Jane Withers and Bill Moss have been talking over the telephone every day and I'm glad to say it looks very favorable for a reconciliation.

Jack Arnold, director of "It Came From Outer Space," a three-D wonder, was called out of its preview—his wife had been rushed to the hospital for the birth of their first child.

Look to see Alexis Smith make her debut as a ballerina before the year is over. She's been studying for years.

This I call a wonderful deed. Jim Wakely drove 500 miles to Chico to do a one-day benefit for a little girl suffering from leukemia.

J. Carroll Naish is doing shows for the Army and Navy hospitals in Key West between scenes on "Twelve Mile Reef."

Gale Storm, one of the very nicest girls in our town, is such a hit on "My Little Margie" TV show that now she's been offered a big salary by the Thunderbird Night Club in Las Vegas.

At long last Lauren Bacall is off to meet the Wizard of Oz—I mean Humphrey Bogart, (the hot weather's got me down). She was accompanied by Richard Burton's wife, Sybil.

In the old days when I first came to Hollywood, Phil Goldstone was one of the few independent producers, and a very successful one. Now Phil has made a fortune in real estate and has recently sold a business block in Palm Springs for $400,000.

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Two Children Hurt In Auto Accidents

Two small girls were injured here Tuesday in separate auto accidents.

Terry Robison, five, of 114 South Smallwood Street, was reported by police to have walked into the rear left fender of a car driven by Richard H. Rice, Baltimore Pike, at the corner of Baltimore and Liberty Streets about 4:30 p. m. Officer Richard E. Lashley, who investigated, said the child was not seriously hurt but was taken to Memorial Hospital for treatment. In the other mishap, Jean Elizabeth Taylor, also five, of Park Heights ran into the path of an auto driven by Cecil L. Schriver, 530 Centre Street. The accident occurred about 6:30 p. m. near her home. The child was treated at Sacred Heart Hospital for a nose injury. Attaches said she will return today for an X-ray. No charges were preferred.

Baboons have become a pest in parts of Africa where large meat-eating animals which used to kill them off have been eliminated or reduced in numbers.

ming pool for relief from the terrible desert heat. However, the congressmen, who adjourn during the summer because it's too hot in Washington, seem more interested in saving a few nickels.

Mrs. Elizabeth Gale Hill, Fort Worth, Tex.—"My husband, Capt. Sidney Hill, lost his life in a C-54 crash at Harmon Air Force Base, Newfoundland, on January 16. The week before he died, he told me that a maintenance disaster in the squadron was inevitable for the 6622 Air Transport Squadron, I am writing to solicit your aid. Nothing can ever bring my husband back to me, but unless constructive changes are made, more disasters are inevitable."

Answer—My investigation found no lack of safe equipment in Newfoundland, but rather a shortage of skilled maintenance men. This is because transport squadrons are near the bottom of the priority list, so that the skilled ground crews go first to Korea, then to the Strategic Air Command, leaving transport pilots to depend on green, sometimes slipshod maintenance men. The Air Force informs me, however, the unfortunate crash that cost your husband's life was not caused by mechanical failure. The Air Force has also promised to investigate the maintenance problem in Newfoundland and to plead again with Congress for enough money to train adequate ground crews.

ming pool for relief from the terrible desert heat. However, the congressmen, who adjourn during the summer because it's too hot in Washington, seem more interested in saving a few nickels.

Mrs. Elizabeth Gale Hill, Fort Worth, Tex.—"My husband, Capt. Sidney Hill, lost his life in a C-54 crash at Harmon Air Force Base, Newfoundland, on January 16. The week before he died, he told me that a maintenance disaster in the squadron was inevitable for the 6622 Air Transport Squadron, I am writing to solicit your aid. Nothing can ever bring my husband back to me, but unless constructive changes are made, more disasters are inevitable."

Answer—My investigation found no lack of safe equipment in Newfoundland, but rather a shortage of skilled maintenance men. This is because transport squadrons are near the bottom of the priority list, so that the skilled ground crews go first to Korea, then to the Strategic Air Command, leaving transport pilots to depend on green, sometimes slipshod maintenance men. The Air Force informs me, however, the unfortunate crash that cost your husband's life was not caused by mechanical failure. The Air Force has also promised to investigate the maintenance problem in Newfoundland and to plead again with Congress for enough money to train adequate ground crews.

Stock Changes Are Slight; Trading Is Slowest Of Year

NEW YORK, May 6 (AP)—Scant price changes were the rule today in the stock market in the slowest trading day of the year.

Changes of an eighth or a quarter were the most frequently seen, and when a stock moved more than a point it was rare.

Railroads sagged most of the day and were down more than any other major division, but the decline was held to fractions in key areas.

Oils were the best division with good gains all around. Buying enthusiasm, however, was contained in the group.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was down 10 cents, the same as yesterday, with the average at $110.00. The industrial Components was down 10 cents, the Railroads for 20 cents, and Utilities held unchanged.

There were only 1,088 issues on the tape. That is the smallest number since Oct. 29 of last year.

Whereas the average declined, there were 410 gainers as compared with 382 losers in the list.

Volume amounted to 1,110,000 shares.

Many commentators are thinking that the market may be getting ready to test the highs of the year (with some bears still looking for another try at the lows). The contention of this bullish contingent is that the market's action of the past two days indicates a consolidated phase. All that is needed, they believe, is a dramatic piece of good news to start the ball rolling.

Stock Changes Are Slight; Trading Is Slowest Of Year

NEW YORK, May 6 (AP)—Scant price changes were the rule today in the stock market in the slowest trading day of the year.

Changes of an eighth or a quarter were the most frequently seen, and when a stock moved more than a point it was rare.

Railroads sagged most of the day and were down more than any other major division, but the decline was held to fractions in key areas.

Oils were the best division with good gains all around. Buying enthusiasm, however, was contained in the group.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was down 10 cents, the same as yesterday, with the average at $110.00. The industrial Components was down 10 cents, the Railroads for 20 cents, and Utilities held unchanged.

There were only 1,088 issues on the tape. That is the smallest number since Oct. 29 of last year.

Whereas the average declined, there were 410 gainers as compared with 382 losers in the list.

Volume amounted to 1,110,000 shares.

Many commentators are thinking that the market may be getting ready to test the highs of the year (with some bears still looking for another try at the lows). The contention of this bullish contingent is that the market's action of the past two days indicates a consolidated phase. All that is needed, they believe, is a dramatic piece of good news to start the ball rolling.

Winchester Road Modernization Planned Soon

SRC Will Seek Bids This Month

The State Roads Commission hopes to advertise for bids for the modernization of Winchester Road this month, G. Bates Chaires, district engineer, announced yesterday.

When completed, the project will provide a modern highway from VanMeter's Store in Cresaptown to the Six Mile House on Route 40.

Planned is a standard highway with 24-foot pavement and 10-foot shoulders on each side.

The work will include major improvements of the state highway including relocation in some spots and removing some of the humps from the highway and improved drainage.

Chaires said the State Roads Commission is now securing rights of way for the highway, adding some 140 property owners are involved.

Engineering work on the highway is nearing completion.

Improvements to McMulleen Highway, between the Celanese plant to the Dingle, will be placed near the top of the the list of projects during the first phase of the SRC's 12 year plan.

Chaires said the SRC will try to expedite the work which includes adding a fourth lane to the three-mile stretch. In the 12-year plan, the SRC estimated the work would cost about $300,000.

He added the cost of a dual highway on the stretch would be prohibitive in view of the properties involved.

Judge Foils Man's Method Of Keeping Revoked License

A local man's clever method of keeping his auto operator's license after it had been revoked was foiled yesterday by a magistrate's ability to remember names.

Eugene T. Gurtler, 721 Shawnee Avenue, first lost his license September 9, 1952 when he was charged with operating a motor vehicle under the influence of intoxicants. At the hearing in September his license was revoked.

Authorities said that Gurtler had a duplicate operator's license which he sent to the Commission of Motor Vehicles and continued to drive his car on the original license. Gurtler had gotten the duplicate license after he wrote to the Commission of Motor Vehicles saying he had lost the original, authorities said.

On April 19, Gurtler was arrested by Trooper R. D. Wolford after Gurtler's car struck a car owned by A. N. Spano, 158 Park Street, and failed to stop. Trooper Wolford had to chase Gurtler's auto several miles.

A hearing was held for Gurtler April 21 on a charge of failing to stop after an accident, but it was postponed until Tuesday when Gurtler failed to appear at Trial Magistrate Court.

Brought to the court yesterday, Gurtler was fined $25 and cost on the motor charge by Magistrate Donald W. Mason.

It was during yesterday's hearing that Mason remembered Gurtler and a check of the records showed his license had been revoked.

Mason fined Gurtler $100 and costs on another charge of operating a vehicle while his license was revoked.

Lutherans Plan Fund To Aid Servicemen

Members of Trinity Lutheran Church, North Centre and Smith Streets, will join with the 5,000 congregations of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod next Sunday, Mother's Day, to receive an offering for the Church's Armed Services Commission, Rev. G. A. Wagner, pastor, announced yesterday.

The Commission, which has its executive offices in Washington, D. C., ministers to the spiritual welfare of The Lutheran Church-Missouri Snyod's 35,000 young men and women in the military.

The Commission's ministry begins with each individual member when he first enters the service. He is sent an initial packet containing a Lutheran Identification tag, Service Prayer Book, Scripture pocket calendar and several tracts.

The serviceman's name and military address, sent to the Commission by his home pastor, is forwarded to the nearest chaplain or contact pastor of the Church. One hundred and twenty-six chaplains and 400 contact pastors are cooperating in this effort. In addition, the Commission, with the assistance of 142 hospital pastors, serves Lutherans confined to Veterans Administration hospitals.

Forty-five Lutheran Service Centers—located in the United States and overseas—are supported by the Commission.

Pact Awarded To Equip School At Lonaconing

Baltimore Company Successful Bidder

The Jesse J. Hamp Company of Baltimore has been awarded the contract to supply science laboratory and home economic equipment for the new Lonaconing school.

Ralph R. Webster, superintendent of Allegany County schools yesterday said the Baltimore firm's bid for the laboratory equipment was $6,600 and for home economics equipment, $15,450.

The bids were accepted by Webster following approval by the Board of Education. Today, bids on cafeteria tables and stools will be opened at 4 p.m. in the office of Webster who will present them at the next meeting of the board.

Recently the Wayne Iron Works Company, of Wayne, Pa., was awarded the contract to supply gymnasium seats. The board accepted the alternate low bid, $5,250 for rollaway seats.

Webster said the "foldaway" type similar to those used at Mt. Savage school were $1,900 more and so the board accepted the other type.

For basketball backstops in the gymnasium, the Flowers School Equipment Company of Richmond, Va., was low bidder with $1,493 and was awarded the contract. The same firm was low and successful bidder on auditorium chairs with a bid of $5,100.33 or $8.63 per unit.

Select Positions And List Most Job Appointments

The Youth Mayor and Youth Council, elected by high school students of the city several days ago, has held a caucus and organized the Youth City Government.

David Walton, Allegany High School senior who was chosen the city's first Youth Mayor said the Council organized as follows:

Barbara Ann Campbell of Fort Hill is commissioner of streets and public property; Charles Kienhofer, LaSalle is finance commissioner; Edward Athey of Fort Hill is commissioner of police and fire; and Chester L. Price, of Allegany is commissioner of water and lights.

Walton observed that there was no contest on the seating of the commissioners. Each council member had made a previous choice which did not conflict with any other member's wishes.

There was some discussion over the choice of various appointments, Walton observed. Many of the nominations were acted upon unanimously but there was a split vote in several instances.

The students attempted to organize a complete city government as a counterpart to the local set-up, realizing of course, Walton said, that "this is being done for experience and education."

Douglas Houck of Allegany was accorded the prize appointment as city attorney. Mary Hafer of Fort Hill was named city auditor.

Other appointees include Jack Dolan, Fort Hill, fire chief; Dean Hancox, Allegany, street superintendent; Barbara Loraditch, Girls Central, water superintendent; Angela Dougherty, Girls Central, water inspector; Jack Stegmaier, LaSalle, police chief; Leone Saeli, Ursuline, tax collector; Leon Armentrout, Allegany, city clerk; Jack Parker, Fort Hill, magistrate; Barbara Martin, St. Mary's, health officer; and Judy Matt, Allegany, assistant health officer.

Also appointed to city posts were Bernard Beerman, Allegany, city engineer; George Eskins, Fort Hill, assistant engineer; William Comer, LaSalle, smoke abatement engineer; William Stephens, Carver; Bessie Ketterman, Fort Hill, and Gail Treiber, Ursuline, civil service commission, and Marion Snyder, Fort Hill, council stenographer.

Still to be appointed by the high school students are a recreation director, a smoke advisory board and a recreation board.

The Cumberland Junior Association of Commerce has sponsored this project to get high school students to take a greater interest in community affairs.

R. C. Dorn Named New Jaycee Head

Raymond C. Dorn last night was named president of the Cumberland Association of Commerce at the annual election held at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club. He succeeds J. Kenneth Morgan.

Other officers elected were Robert E. Moore, first vice president; George L. Carney Jr., second vice president; Albert D. Darby, Jr., secretary; Miles S. Amick, treasurer, and George R. Hughes Jr., state director.

Morgan, retiring president, who commended members on their cooperation during the past year, said that more than 35 projects were carried out during the year.

Youth mayor and councilmen of the recent youth city government project were guests at the meeting and were presented pen and pencil sets by George L. Hughes Jr., chairman of the project.

Also guests at the meeting were the top three winners of the Jaycees sponsored teen-age "Roadeo-O" held here April 26.

Clare J. Maguire accepted the first place winner's trophy for his son, John Maguire, LaSalle High School, and trophies were presented to Louis Spoerl, Allegany High School, second place, and Merle Smith, Fort Hill High School, third.

A trophy will also be presented to LaSalle High School for having the winning student.

Guest speaker at the meeting was A. Joynes Beane, Jaycee National director for Maryland, who commended the Cumberland chapter for its progress.

He pointed out that the local Jaycees climbed from sixth place to second place in membership for the state. The local organization in the past year enlarged from 62 members to 170.

Beane also commended the Jaycees for their Youth Mayor program and suggested that the local organization submit a resolution at the Jaycee state convention, recommending that other state chapters sponsor similar programs.

The speaker added that there are 2,050 Jaycee chapters in the United States with a total of 200,000 members. There are Jaycee chapters in 53 countries, he said, including three chapters in South Korea.

West Side Man Hit By Truck

A West Side man was admitted to Memorial Hospital early yesterday afternoon after he was knocked down by a truck on Virginia Avenue.

Lawrence A. Clopper, 45, of 103 Washington Street, was admitted to the hospital for X-rays of his right leg and ankle. Attaches said he was in good condition with abrasions of the right knee.

City Police Officer Fred O. Daum said Clopper was struck by a Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company truck driven by Cecil A. Grimes, 29, of 453 Central Avenue.

Grimes said the accident occurred at 1:05 p.m. as he was driving north on Virginia Avenue at the Offutt Street intersection.

He said Clopper stepped from the curb into the path of his truck, and that he was unable to stop in time to avoid striking Clopper.

No charges were filed.

Rent Control Here To Last 2 More Years

Governor Signs Disputed Bill

Despite doubts as to its constitutionality, a bill authorizing the extension of rent control in Allegany County for another two years got the signature of Governor McKeldin yesterday.

An early test appeared certain for the measure allowing Baltimore, Hagerstown and Allegany County to fix rent ceilings when federal controls expire later this year.

McKeldin acknowledged doubts still existed as to whether the bill passed Senate and House in the same form. Atty. Gen. Edward D. E. Rollins had cited that uncertainty, but the governor said the courts ought to decide.

Both conceded it might be determined that Baltimore County also was included in the House version but exempted in the Senate.

McKeldin said he wouldn't call the legislature together before the next regular session in February, 1954, even if the bill was thrown out.

He postponed until today (11:30 a. m., EDT) action on a couple of the thorniest problems remaining: Whether to reduce the tax on mutual savings banks and set up a special unit to check import of untaxed liquor from Washington and nearby states.

M. William Adelson, the governor's law associate and close adviser, said all but a few of the 45 bills left over would be vetoed.

Otherwise, he signed bills to:

Raise the ceiling on unemployment compensation from $25 to $30 a week and on workmen's compensation from $32 to $40.

Enlarge the state industrial accident commission, which rules on claims for workmen's compensation, from four members to five.

Outlaw hauling seine, the long nets to catch fish, by more than one power boat.

Appropriate, beginning in 1954, 10 cents per resident of Baltimore and each county for libraries — an outlay of some $230,000 with the present population.

Require vehicles traveling more than 10 miles per hour under the speed limit to stick to the right side of the road or on the shoulder, a proposal aimed at big trucks chugging up steep mountains.

Governor Signs Bill For Vote On Sewage Plant

Governor McKeldin yesterday signed into law a bill which will stall efforts of the State Board of Health to force Cumberland to proceed with the construction of a sewage treatment plant until a referendum is held.

The measure, Senate Bill 297, sponsored by Senate Minority Leader Robert B. Kimble provides that no bonds may be issued under the Allegany County Water and Sewage Authority unless approved by the voters.

The Mayor and Council on Monday urged the governor to sign the bill since they feel the city is in no position to proceed with the $1,900,000 plant in the face of other projects for which the city is committed.

The 1951 General Assembly authorized the city to hold a referendum on a $1,500,000 revenue bond issue to finance the sewage plant. The Mayor and Council, however, refused to place the issue on the 1952 ballot, saying the costs were not known.

Shortly after the election, the State Board of Health ordered the city to proceed with the sewage treatment plant. Court action on the order has been held up, pending regular reports from city officials on progress.

Performances will begin at 1:15 p. m., 3 p. m. and 8 p. m. Tickets for all three performances may be obtained at Hauger Jewelry Store, 16 North Centre Street.

In a letter to all teachers, Webster suggested that city school children attend the 1:15 p. m. performance, while the county school students attend the 3 p. m. matinee.

Among the many mirthful madcaps, will be Harry Ruster, the English clown, who is making his first tour of this country with his friend, "Buster", a duck which he brought from London.

Tots Thrown To Safety As Home Burns

Mrs. Glenrose (Bostjanic) McCutcheon, 22, and her two children, Nancy Lee, 3½, and Charles Ray, 10 months, were resting yesterday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Bostjanic, Pekin.

Flames broke out in the McCutcheon family's attic apartment at 10 a.m. Monday while Mrs. McCutcheon's husband, Lester, was at work.

The young mother, unable to reach the stairs when fire blocked the only exit from the apartment, opened a window and cried for help.

Two neighbors and a passing mailman who heard her stood near the entrance to the building as Mrs. McCutcheon dropped both her children onto a metal awning over the door. The tots slid to safety in the arms of the waiting men.

Then Mrs. McCutcheon leaped to the awning, but broke through. The metal, however, broke her fall, and she and the children sustained only abrasions and brush burns. They were treated at a hospital and released.

Mrs. McCutcheon and her children are staying with her parents until the McCutcheons can find another home.

Rec Board Plans For Bond Issue Are Advancing

The City Recreation Board reached a tentative agreement last night to use about a third of an authorized $150,000 bond issue for improving six playgrounds in the city.

No decision has been made on the use of the balance of the bond issue authorized by referendum in 1948, but there was general agreement part of the funds should be used to acquire and equip additional playgrounds in the city.

The Recreation Board met last night with Mayor Roy W. Eves to discuss some of the problems which will arise when the bonds are issued.

Discussed was the possibility of leasing Penn Avenue Field and Stitcher Field to the city so the Recreation Department may make needed improvements.

Robert E. Pence, city recreation director, said negotiations are now underway for leasing Stitcher Field. He did not anticipate any hitch in the negotiations.

A similar plan will be sought for Penn Avenue Field, which belongs to the Board of Education but has been improved by the City Recreation Department. Attempts to secure a long-term lease will be made.

Officials explained it would be impossible to use bond money to improve either field if the city did not hold full rights during the term of the bonds.

Agreed upon were improvements to six fields, including Post, Penn Avenue, Stitcher, Mapleside, Lamont and Pine Avenue.

Robert E. Pence, city recreation director, believes the funds for improving the fields should come from current budgets, and the $150,000 used for some project which would benefit the entire community.

His suggestion was that the city acquire a large tract of land which could be developed into a first class ball park and recreation center.

Mayor Eves promised to discuss some of the problems which would arise in selling the bonds, with investment bankers.

City Cab Driver, World War II Veteran Rescues Two Children, Father In Fire

By CHARLES H. KELLY
News Staff Writer

A city cab driver early yesterday morning played the role of a hero in the rescue of two small children and their father from a smoke-filled apartment in Jane Frazier Village.

He is Bruce Paetow, of 314 Waverly Terrace, a Navy veteran of World War II. Paetow, father of two children himself, disregarded his own safety and went into the apartment after hearing the screams of 20-months-old Elwood Harden, and eight-months-old Thomas Harden.

The cab driver had left off a passenger in Jane Frazier Village about 2:10 a. m. and as he was driving near the apartment occupied by Edward Elwood Harden and family he noticed black smoke billowing from the building.

Immediately he radioed the Yellow Top Cab Company to summon city firemen. He then rushed into the smoke filled apartment and snatched Elwood from his crib in the living room next to an overstuffed chair which was ablaze on the first floor.

Carrying the child to safety he again entered the building after tieing a handkerchief over his mouth and went upstairs and rescused the younger Harden child.

Meanwhile the father who was almost overcome by smoke staggered from a nearby room and was assisted downstairs to the outside by Paetow. The smoke was so thick "he could hardly see," the rescuer noted.

Paetow then threw the overstuffed chair outside and took the two children and the father to Memorial Hospital. Answering the alarm was South End firemen who checked the blaze. A rug was afire when they arrived.

Cause of the fire was unknown but it is believed to have started from a smouldering cigarette. The two children who remained at the hospital yesterday were reported last night as being in "good" condition. Elwood was sleeping downstairs Paetow noted because he had the measles.

Harden, who resides at Apartment 14B, is an employe of Holland's Esso Service Station, corner of Bedford and Mechanic Streets. Last night, Paetow said it was the first such experience he ever had and he was "mighty frightened and shaken up" after the rescue.

Being the father of two children himself the screams of the Harden children led him on to the rescue, he observed. Paetow has been driving a cab here for about six years.

McKeldin Kills State Liquor Tax Increase

9 Bills Believed Certain For Veto

BALTIMORE, May 6 (AP)—Gov. McKeldin today turned down a proposal that would have hiked Maryland's liquor tax to give its subdivisions more than $1,700,000 a year but cost the state treasury half that much.

Announcing he would veto the statewide liquor-tax bill, McKeldin signed two others extending until 1955 the power of Baltimore city and county to charge extra for whisky, wine and beer.

The rejected measure would have added a nickel a fifth to the cost of liquor by boosting the gallon levy from $1.25 to $1.50. Baltimore and the counties would have received 50 cents a gallon on the basis of deliveries for retail.

Fought By D'Alesandro

The increase would have gone into effect in mid-1954. At that time all local taxing privileges over alcoholic beverages would have ended. Mayor D'Alesandro of Baltimore fought the proposal because it would have prevented the city from taxing beer, a step it has never taken but which the mayor said it might some day need.

The governor also struck out more than a half-million dollars from the 1953 bond bill, reducing its size to $14,536,950.

He ditched a quarter-million apiece for a new gym and field house at Washington College and a dormitory at Western Maryland College. Both loans were squeezed in the bill by the Legislature, without a screening by the State Planning Commission.

The governor said it would be wrong to bypass the agency that looks over all requests for capital improvements.

He also announced he would knock out $4,000 to buy a trailer for the Department of Research and Education.

And in the only veto actually applied, he threw away a bill to legalize dog racing with betting in St. Mary's County, if the voters approved at a referendum.

Bill Improperly Passed

A spokesman said the attorney general found a bill proposing a constitutional amendment to shift state police costs to general funds had been passed improperly. Rollins has said the measure, which could be duplicated at the next session, isn't adequate to put the subject on the ballot in 1954, the spokesman added.

Considered certain for veto are bills which would:

Exempt from the sales tax the trade-in value of farm machinery and farm chemicals.

Ban haul seining over the weekend except in Worchester County and Chesapeake Bay north of the bridge.

Prevent the state roads commission from limiting access roads to Rt. 301 in Southern Maryland, except at heavily traveled intersections.

Allow Cecil and Harford County vehicles free trips across the Susquehanna River Bridge and provide cheap tolls for residents of the two counties.

Authorize amateur radio operators special license tags.

Make permanent this year's system of issuing only one plate for the back of every vehicle.

Police Cite Difficulty

Officials said police had complained of the difficulty of identifying cars without a front tag. They explained the governor would ask for reports before the next session.

They also described as "probably dead" a proposal to allow each delegate two scholarship appointments to the University of Maryland. Members of the House may now have one scholarship student at the university.

Louis E. Haus Named Postmaster At Mt. Savage

Louis E. Haus, Calla Hill, Mt. Savage, has been selected as postmaster of the Mt. Savage Post Office, it was announced yesterday.

Haus, a native of Mt. Savage, was notified yesterday that he would be sworn into office as postmaster tomorrow. He will succeed Thomas Stephen who has been acting postmaster for several months.

The new postmaster, prior to his appointment, was a mail carrier at the post office for five years. A veteran of World War II, he served three years in the U. S. Army, with an Ordnance Company. He saw duty at Okinawa and Korea while in the South Pacific.

Before going into the armed services, Haus was a teacher of machine mathematics and trigonometry at Morgan's Vocational School, Ridgeley.

A graduate of Mt. Savage High School, he also attended State Teachers College at Frostburg.

Judge Foils Man's Method Of Keeping Revoked License

A local man's clever method of keeping his auto operator's license after it had been revoked was foiled yesterday by a magistrate's ability to remember names.

Eugene T. Gurtler, 721 Shawnee Avenue, first lost his license September 9, 1952 when he was charged with operating a motor vehicle under the influence of intoxicants. At the hearing in September his license was revoked.

Pact Awarded To Equip School At Lonaconing

Baltimore Company Successful Bidder

The Jesse J. Hamp Company of Baltimore has been awarded the contract to supply science laboratory and home economic equipment for the new Lonaconing school.

Ralph R. Webster, superintendent of Allegany County schools yesterday said the Baltimore firm's bid for the laboratory equipment was $6,600 and for home economics equipment, $15,450.

The bids were accepted by Webster following approval by the Board of Education. Today, bids on cafeteria tables and stools will be opened at 4 p.m. in the office of Webster who will present them at the next meeting of the board.

Recently the Wayne Iron Works Company, of Wayne, Pa., was awarded the contract to supply gymnasium seats. The board accepted the alternate low bid, $5,250 for rollaway seats.

Webster said the "foldaway" type similar to those used at Mt. Savage school were $1,900 more and so the board accepted the other type.

For basketball backstops in the gymnasium, the Flowers School Equipment Company of Richmond, Va., was low bidder with $1,493 and was awarded the contract. The same firm was low and successful bidder on auditorium chairs with a bid of $5,100.33 or $8.63 per unit.

Other officers elected were Robert E. Moore, first vice president; George L. Carney Jr., second vice president; Albert D. Darby, Jr., secretary; Miles S. Amick, treasurer, and George R. Hughes Jr., state director.

Morgan, retiring president, who commended members on their cooperation during the past year, said that more than 35 projects were carried out during the year.

Youth mayor and councilmen of the recent youth city government project were guests at the meeting and were presented pen and pencil sets by George L. Hughes Jr., chairman of the project.

Also guests at the meeting were the top three winners of the Jaycees sponsored teen-age "Roadeo-O" held here April 26.

He pointed out that the local Jaycees climbed from sixth place to second place in membership for the state. The local organization in the past year enlarged from 62 members to 170.

Beane also commended the Jaycees for their Youth Mayor program and suggested that the local organization submit a resolution at the Jaycee state convention, recommending that other state chapters sponsor similar programs.

The speaker added that there are 2,050 Jaycee chapters in the United States with a total of 200,000 members. There are Jaycee chapters in 53 countries, he said, including three chapters in South Korea.

West Side Man Hit By Truck

A West Side man was admitted to Memorial Hospital early yesterday afternoon after he was knocked down by a truck on Virginia Avenue.

Lawrence A. Clopper, 45, of 103 Washington Street, was admitted to the hospital for X-rays of his right leg and ankle. Attaches said he was in good condition with abrasions of the right knee.

City Police Officer Fred O. Daum said Clopper was struck by a Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company truck driven by Cecil A. Grimes, 29, of 453 Central Avenue.

Grimes said the accident occurred at 1:05 p.m. as he was driving north on Virginia Avenue at the Offutt Street intersection.

He said Clopper stepped from the curb into the path of his truck, and that he was unable to stop in time to avoid striking Clopper.

No charges were filed.

Rent Control Here To Last 2 More Years

Governor Signs Disputed Bill

Despite doubts as to its constitutionality, a bill authorizing the extension of rent control in Allegany County for another two years got the signature of Governor McKeldin yesterday.

An early test appeared certain for the measure allowing Baltimore, Hagerstown and Allegany County to fix rent ceilings when federal controls expire later this year.

McKeldin acknowledged doubts still existed as to whether the bill passed Senate and House in the same form. Atty. Gen. Edward D. E. Rollins had cited that uncertainty, but the governor said the courts ought to decide.

Both conceded it might be determined that Baltimore County also was included in the House version but exempted in the Senate.

McKeldin said he wouldn't call the legislature together before the next regular session in February, 1954, even if the bill was thrown out.

He postponed until today (11:30 a. m., EDT) action on a couple of the thorniest problems remaining: Whether to reduce the tax on mutual savings banks and set up a special unit to check import of untaxed liquor from Washington and nearby states.

M. William Adelson, the governor's law associate and close adviser, said all but a few of the 45 bills left over would be vetoed.

Otherwise, he signed bills to:

Raise the ceiling on unemployment compensation from $25 to $30 a week and on workmen's compensation from $32 to $40.

Enlarge the state industrial accident commission, which rules on claims for workmen's compensation, from four members to five.

Outlaw hauling seine, the long nets to catch fish, by more than one power boat.

Appropriate, beginning in 1954, 10 cents per resident of Baltimore and each county for libraries — an outlay of some $230,000 with the present population.

Require vehicles traveling more than 10 miles per hour under the speed limit to stick to the right side of the road or on the shoulder, a proposal aimed at big trucks chugging up steep mountains.

Governor Signs Bill For Vote On Sewage Plant

Governor McKeldin yesterday signed into law a bill which will stall efforts of the State Board of Health to force Cumberland to proceed with the construction of a sewage treatment plant until a referendum is held.

The measure, Senate Bill 297, sponsored by Senate Minority Leader Robert B. Kimble provides that no bonds may be issued under the Allegany County Water and Sewage Authority unless approved by the voters.

The Mayor and Council on Monday urged the governor to sign the bill since they feel the city is in no position to proceed with the $1,900,000 plant in the face of other projects for which the city is committed.

The 1951 General Assembly authorized the city to hold a referendum on a $1,500,000 revenue bond issue to finance the sewage plant. The Mayor and Council, however, refused to place the issue on the 1952 ballot, saying the costs were not known.

Shortly after the election, the State Board of Health ordered the city to proceed with the sewage treatment plant. Court action on the order has been held up, pending regular reports from city officials on progress.

Circus To Give Three Big Performances On Monday

King Brothers and Cristiani Combined Circus will give three performances Monday at the Community Park grounds on Wineow Street, formerly Mid-City Ball Park.

Performances will begin at 1:15 p. m., 3 p. m. and 8 p. m. Tickets for all three performances may be obtained at Hauger Jewelry Store, 16 North Centre Street.

The circus under the auspices of the Optimist and Exchange Clubs has 600 people, 150 performers and 250 wild animals which includes a giraffe, a hippopotamus and 15 elephants.

Most all of the clowns will be seen in the old-time circus street parade to be held at 11:30 o'clock Monday morning, and in the gorgeously produced opening spectacle, "Persia" in which masses of people and hordes of animals take part.

Ralph R. Webster, county superintendent of schools, has announced that Allegany County schools will close at 12:30 p. m. Monday so children may attend the afternoon shows.

In a letter to all teachers, Webster suggested that city school children attend the 1:15 p. m. performance, while the county school students attend the 3 p. m. matinee.

Among the many mirthful madcaps, will be Harry Ruster, the English clown, who is making his first tour of this country with his friend, "Buster", a duck which he brought from London.

Tots Thrown To Safety As Home Burns

A young mother who formerly resided at Pekin threw her two small children to safety from a third-floor window in their burning home at Ambridge, Pa., Monday, and then jumped out herself.

Mrs. Glenrose (Bostjanic) McCutcheon, 22, and her two children, Nancy Lee, 3½, and Charles Ray, 10 months, were resting yesterday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Bostjanic, Pekin.

Flames broke out in the McCutcheon family's attic apartment at 10 a.m. Monday while Mrs. McCutcheon's husband, Lester, was at work.

The young mother, unable to reach the stairs when fire blocked the only exit from the apartment, opened a window and cried for help.

Two neighbors and a passing mailman who heard her stood near the entrance to the building as Mrs. McCutcheon dropped both her children onto a metal awning over the door. The tots slid to safety in the arms of the waiting men.

Then Mrs. McCutcheon leaped to the awning, but broke through. The metal, however, broke her fall, and she and the children sustained only abrasions and brush burns. They were treated at a hospital and released.

Mrs. McCutcheon and her children are staying with her parents until the McCutcheons can find another home.

Rec Board Plans For Bond Issue Are Advancing

The City Recreation Board reached a tentative agreement last night to use about a third of an authorized $150,000 bond issue for improving six playgrounds in the city.

No decision has been made on the use of the balance of the bond issue authorized by referendum in 1948, but there was general agreement part of the funds should be used to acquire and equip additional playgrounds in the city.

The Recreation Board met last night with Mayor Roy W. Eves to discuss some of the problems which will arise when the bonds are issued.

Discussed was the possibility of leasing Penn Avenue Field and Stitcher Field to the city so the Recreation Department may make needed improvements.

Robert E. Pence, city recreation director, said negotiations are now underway for leasing Stitcher Field. He did not anticipate any hitch in the negotiations.

A similar plan will be sought for Penn Avenue Field, which belongs to the Board of Education but has been improved by the City Recreation Department. Attempts to secure a long-term lease will be made.

Officials explained it would be impossible to use bond money to improve either field if the city did not hold full rights during the term of the bonds.

Agreed upon were improvements to six fields, including Post, Penn Avenue, Stitcher, Mapleside, Lamont and Pine Avenue.

Robert E. Pence, city recreation director, believes the funds for improving the fields should come from current budgets, and the $150,000 used for some project which would benefit the entire community.

His suggestion was that the city acquire a large tract of land which could be developed into a first class ball park and recreation center.

McKeldin Kills State Liquor Tax Increase

9 Bills Believed Certain For Veto

BALTIMORE, May 6 (AP)—Gov. McKeldin today turned down a proposal that would have hiked Maryland's liquor tax to give its subdivisions more than $1,700,000 a year but cost the state treasury half that much.

Announcing he would veto the statewide liquor-tax bill, McKeldin signed two others extending until 1955 the power of Baltimore city and county to charge extra for whisky, wine and beer.

The rejected measure would have added a nickel a fifth to the cost of liquor by boosting the gallon levy from $1.25 to $1.50. Baltimore and the counties would have received 50 cents a gallon on the basis of deliveries for retail.

Fought By D'Alesandro

The increase would have gone into effect in mid-1954. At that time all local taxing privileges over alcoholic beverages would have ended. Mayor D'Alesandro of Baltimore fought the proposal because it would have prevented the city from taxing beer, a step it has never taken but which the mayor said it might some day need.

The governor also struck out more than a half-million dollars from the 1953 bond bill, reducing its size to $14,536,950.

He ditched a quarter-million apiece for a new gym and field house at Washington College and a dormitory at Western Maryland College. Both loans were squeezed in the bill by the Legislature, without a screening by the State Planning Commission.

The governor said it would be wrong to bypass the agency that looks over all requests for capital improvements.

He also announced he would knock out $4,000 to buy a trailer for the Department of Research and Education.

And in the only veto actually applied, he threw away a bill to legalize dog racing with betting in St. Mary's County, if the voters approved at a referendum.

Bill Improperly Passed

A spokesman said the attorney general found a bill proposing a constitutional amendment to shift state police costs to general funds had been passed improperly. Rollins has said the measure, which could be duplicated at the next session, isn't adequate to put the subject on the ballot in 1954, the spokesman added.

Considered certain for veto are bills which would:

Exempt from the sales tax the trade-in value of farm machinery and farm chemicals.

Ban haul seining over the weekend except in Worchester County and Chesapeake Bay north of the bridge.

Require Kent and Anne Arundel County welfare boards to give their county commissioners a monthly list of persons on relief.

Prevent the state roads commission from limiting access roads to Rt. 301 in Southern Maryland, except at heavily traveled intersections.

Allow Cecil and Harford County vehicles free trips across the Susquehanna River Bridge and provide cheap tolls for residents of the two counties.

Authorize amateur radio operators special license tags.

Make permanent this year's system of issuing only one plate for the back of every vehicle.

Police Cite Difficulty

Officials said police had complained of the difficulty of identifying cars without a front tag. They explained the governor would ask for reports before the next session.

They also described as "probably dead" a proposal to allow each delegate two scholarship appointments to the University of Maryland. Members of the House may now have one scholarship student at the university.

City Cab Driver, World War II Veteran Rescues Two Children, Father In Fire

By CHARLES H. KELLY
News Staff Writer

A city cab driver early yesterday morning played the role of a hero in the rescue of two small children and their father from a smoke-filled apartment in Jane Frazier Village.

He is Bruce Paetow, of 314 Waverly Terrace, a Navy veteran of World War II. Paetow, father of two children himself, disregarded his own safety and went into the apartment after hearing the screams of 20-months-old Elwood Harden, and eight-months-old Thomas Harden.

The cab driver had left off a passenger in Jane Frazier Village about 2:10 a. m. and as he was driving near the apartment occupied by Edward Elwood Harden and family he noticed black smoke billowing from the building.

Immediately he radioed the Yellow Top Cab Company to summon city firemen. He then rushed into the smoke filled apartment and snatched Elwood from his crib in the living room next to an overstuffed chair which was ablaze on the first floor.

Carrying the child to safety he again entered the building after

tieing a handkerchief over his mouth and went upstairs and rescused the younger Harden child.

Meanwhile the father who was almost overcome by smoke staggered from a nearby room and was assisted downstairs to the outside by Paetow. The smoke was so thick "he could hardly see," the rescuer noted.

Paetow then threw the overstuffed chair outside and took the two children and the father to Memorial Hospital. Answering the alarm was South End firemen who checked the blaze. A rug was afire when they arrived.

Cause of the fire was unknown but it is believed to have started from a smouldering cigarette. The two children who remained at the hospital yesterday were reported last night as being in "good" condition. Elwood was sleeping downstairs Paetow noted because he had the measles.

Harden, who resides at Apartment 14B, is an employe of Holland's Esso Service Station, corner of Bedford and Mechanic Streets. Last night, Paetow said it was the first such experience he ever had and he was "mighty frightened and shaken up" after the rescue.

Being the father of two children himself the screams of the Harden children led him on to the rescue, he observed. Paetow has been driving a cab here for about six years.
